Debate Opens

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday by a vote of 15 to 8 recommended modified lend-lease authority for the President as "a practical safeguard aimed at keeping us out of war."

Moving at top speed, the committee filed a report denying the bill is a "war measure" and affirming a foreign policy based on the following two principles:

"The United States must strive in all ways reasonably possible to stay at peace with all the world; and the United States must, in its own interests, supply effective material aid to those countries whose defense is vital to our defense."

Amended with provisions tightening Congressional controls over aid money and contracts, the bill was slated for Senate consideration Monday. With a round of pro and con statements, friends and foes of the measure actually opened Senate debate yesterday. Administration leaders immediately set to work on one further "concession."

An additional amendment, expected to be submitted to the Senate next week by the committee majority, would further narrow the President's aid authority to such nations as are attacked or threatened with invasion.

In Line With Willkie's Idea

The new proposal is in line with one suggestion made to the committee by Wendell L. Willkie, who wanted nations due for arms help to be specifically named.

Managers of the bill considered the Willkie proposal "inflexible," but are expected to offer another authorizing the President to transfer defense equipment to "any country invaded or threatened with aggression and whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States."

Willkie's Tuesday testimony thus further cast its influence into Senate deliberations, foreshadowing a strengthened Republican vote for the measure in the Senate. The bill as originally drafted would have permitted the President to send arms to any nation vital to this country's defense. The proposed change imposes another condition—aided nations must be subject to aggression.

Administration managers claimed a minimum of 60 Senate votes for the measure with committee amendments and a maximum of 27 "noes."

The committee's report, filed eight hours after it voted approval, urged prompt enactment. Leaders tentatively are seeking passage by March 1.

"To the end that we may have peace the bill authorizes aid to be given promptly to those nations whose defense is vital to ours," said the reoprt.

"To the end that we may have freedom, the bill casts the strength of American industry into the struggle against forces which may be directed against us."

The report said it "amply, safely and constitutionally" provided for the aid-for-defense policies, emphasizing peace, and not war, as the objective. It declared the bill con-

Taken for a Ride

Nay! Nay! Say Women To Horse Gag

Worried Victims Of Joker Told They Had Won Animal

Someone went to a lot of trouble yesterday to play a not very practical joke.

Gift horses were involved. A person identifying himself as "Mr. Stephenson, of the Laurel Hunt Club," telephoned two District women and informed them he had selected their names at random from the Washington telephone directory as the recipients of a horse apiece. The horses were to be presented to them with the compliments of the hunt club, which, he said, he wished to publicize.

Both women, Miss Beatrice Rosenblum, 1129 B Street Southeast, and Mrs. Dora Zerbe, 20 T Street Northeast, protested they did not ride, had no use for a horse.

"Mr. Stephenson" assured them that was all right, they could learn, they could sell the horses later should they not wish to keep them, and declared he was even then in the process of having the animals delivered.

"Mr. Stephenson" also took the trouble to call three Washington newspapers, and telephoned back several times to both Mrs. Zerbe and Mrs. Rosenblum to ask if the "stable boy has arrived?"

Newspaper inquiries determined that there was no Laurel Hunt Club listed in the telephone directory or known to the Laurel postmaster, Mrs. Elizabeth G. Boss. Likewise no Bruce or Charles Stephenson (both names were given to different newspapers) could be found.

Yesterday evening Miss Rosenblum and Mrs. Zerbe yawned slightly as the horses failed to arrive, putting an end to their worry, and guessed it was all a joke. Had Mr. Stephenson been around he conceivably might have seen something funny in the situation.

Bergdoll's Cousin Enlists in Army

Philadelphia, Feb. 13 (AP).—William Charles Bergdoll, 21, a cousin of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, World War draft dodger, has enlisted in the Army and will be inducted here February 19.

Grover, a member of a wealthy Philadelphia brewing family, now is serving a sentence in Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary for evading service in the World War.

Destroyer Row Denied By President

Statement Says He Sees Eye to Eye With Knox, Willkie On More Transfers

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

There is no quarrel on destroyer transfers among President Roosevelt, Navy Secretary Knox and Wendell L. Willkie, and the President is now studying the question of British destroyer needs, the White House announced late yesterday.

This intimation that all three advocates of all-out aid to Britain see eye to eye on the problem presented by Britain's need for destroyers followed conflicting statements from Knox and Willkie about whether the Navy can spare the vessels.

Stephen Early, White House secretary, who made the announcement for the President, declined, however, to say whether the President, Knox and Willkie were agreed this country had destroyers to spare or were agreed that it did not have them. He told reporters they would have to go somewhere else with that question.

Knox Sees President

Earlier in the day Knox had lunched with the President to discuss the destroyer question, which was raised by Willkie Tuesday when he testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that this country should furnish 5 to 10 destroyers a month to Britain in addition to the 50 transferred some months ago.

Knox had declared that the United States did not have the vessels to spare and yesterday he left the President's office telling newsmen that "my opinion has not changed at all."

Willkie had asserted, in reply to Knox, that he understood from "high authorities" after testifying that this country could send more destroyers to England. The only "high authority" he saw Tuesday after testifying was President Roosevelt.

Questioned by reporters about what appeared to be a major policy clash among leading advocates of the lend-lease bill, Early consulted the President and then in the late afternoon slowly read the following statement to reporters:

"The President is thoroughly informed concerning the question of British destroyer needs.

"Despite differences of expression on this question, as reported in the press, the President has reason to believe that this question will be under study for some time because of the many elements which enter into the picture."

"Created by Press"

Early insisted that what the White House knew of the supposed quarrel came only from reports in the newspapers.

"It is a situation created by the press," he said, "and, I'll add, in the legitimate pursuit of news."

Early was trying to imply to reporters, it was believed, that any seeming difference of opinion between Willkie and Knox over the destroyer question is only a difference of language, that the two men are agreed on the objective of helping Great Britain maintain her ocean trade.

A previous statement still stands, Early said, that there will be no more ship transfers until the bill passes Congress. He added, however, that the aid-England bill would not be needed to effect another destroyer deal.

Good naturedly, Early fended off a barrage of questions by reporters who wanted to know what agree-

STANLEY ROBERTSON AND MITZI

Five-year-old Stanley Robertson, Jr., couldn't swim, but Mitzi, his pet fox terrier, which is less than half his size, could. So Stanley is safe, and Mitzi is more beloved than ever at the Robertson home at Silver Spring.

"I thought I would never see you again," Stanley told his mother. The child told her that he fell through soft ice into a water-filled excavation near his home Wednesday. But Mitzi was with him.

The dog plunged in after its little master. Stanley said he held tightly to Mitzi, and the little dog kept both of them above the water until a woman passing in an automobile pulled them out.

Stanley's mother was so excited when her child was carried home that she didn't get the woman's name. She would like to thank her again.

The excavation was abandoned when housebuilders struck a private sewer line. Seepage and surface water had filled the hole to a depth of 6 feet. Joseph D. Buscher, clerk to the Montgomery County commissioners, promised the hole would be filled by the health department if the owner declined to do so.

Berlin Claims 13 Ships Sunk In One Convoy

Germans Report Several of Them Were 'Ocean Liners'

Berlin, Feb. 13.—In the second big attack on British shipping within three months German warships patrolling in Atlantic waters yesterday sank 13 armed British merchantmen out of a "large" convoy sailing to England.

Among them were several "ocean liners" whose tonnage, it was stated today, probably exceeded 20,000 tons each. Although no official figures were given on the total tonnage sunk in this attack, competent

Many British Warships Reported in Mid-Atlantic

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—The British radio reported tonight in a broadcast heard by NBC that a number of British warships have met in mid-Atlantic to take part in activities during which they would cover more than 1,000 miles.

The squadron was said to include one of the largest units of the British fleet.

Nazis Said to Have Invisible Bomber

London, Feb. 13 (AP).—The magazine Aeroplane said today Adolf Hitler had a new "secret weapon," which it described as a bomber embodying several revolutionary improvements including "absolutely silent running and invisibility."

The bomber, an improved version of the Junkers JU-88, is hardly discernible at 2,500 feet because fuselage and wings are made for the most part of transparent plastics, the magazine said.

Franco Rejects Duce Aid Plea, Vichy Reports

Proposal for United Attack on Gibraltar Believed Hitler's

By Ralph E. Heinzen,
United Press Staff Writer

Vichy, Feb. 13.—Generalissimo Francisco Franco was reported tonight to have rejected a request by Benito Mussolini that Spain enter the war, either by attacking Gibraltar with Axis air and naval aid or by permitting German mechanized forces to move down through Spain.

Mussolini's proposal, made during his talks with Franco yesterday at Bordighera on the Italian Riviera, was said to have originated with Adolf Hitler who, however, hesitated to put the matter up to Franco directly because of the strong chance of its rejection.

The report lacked confirmation in Vichy tonight, but appeared to have a basis of fact inasmuch as Franco, in his 80-minute conference with Marshal Philippe Petain at Montpellier today, was understood to have made it clear that Spain will continue a policy of "prudent neutrality."

From everything that could be learned here of Franco's talks at Bordighera and Montpellier it appeared that nothing had occurred to

Weygand Reported Off for Morocco

Madrid, Feb. 13 (INS).—Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander in chief of France's African forces, was reported in Madrid tonight to have left Algiers, Algeria, to proceed to the western part of French Morocco.

No reason was given for the sudden trip, but it was pointed out that French Morocco borders on Spanish Morocco, which has been in the news in connection with Axis war plans aimed at Britain.

Dutch Ships Reported Fleeing To Ports Safe From Japanese

By the Associated Press

Manila, Feb. 13.—Return of a Dutch vessel to the safety of neutral waters, official expressions of concern at Sydney, Australia, and new warnings for Americans to leave the Orient emphasized tonight the heightening tension in the Pacific.

Reliable sources reported that American Army officers had been ordered to remain here indefinitely, canceling earlier orders for return to the United States.

Their wives and children, however, went ahead with plans to leave soon on Army transports along with other Army families.

United States consulates urgently renewed advice to Americans in China, French Indo-China and the Japanese empire to go home unless they have good reasons for remaining.

The call was issued in circulars which used such phrases as ". . . in the light of present trends of the international situation" . . . "with a desire of reducing risks to which Americans abroad may be exposed" . . . "in the interest of national security" . . . "it is expected that you will give prompt and serious consideration to this matter."

Britain May Act

Reliable foreign sources in Shanghai declared today that Anglo-Japanese relations in the Pacific are approaching a crucial stage as a result of Japanese assistance to Nazi sea raiders and Japan's military pressure on Singapore, Britain's great naval base.

The British may be forced to take "extremely important action," informed circles said, to counteract the activities of the raiders, who are being supplied and refueled from Japanese ports, especially Kobe and the mandated islands.

The British have not announced shipping losses in the Pacific since early January but informed sources said the British were deeply concerned that Japan was giving the Nazis facilities.

Ordered Back to Manila

Sudden return late today of the Dutch merchant ship, Tjitjalegka, which had put out earlier for Hongkong, added to the concern first felt yesterday when it was learned army families had advanced plans for departure. This concern persisted despite continued insistence from army officials that no evacuation orders had been issued.

The Tjitjalegka was ordered back to Manila, without an explanation, her captain said, by the ship's Batavia agency.

Presence of Japanese ships in the China Sea—whether naval or merchant was not made clear—caused the vessel to seek a neutral haven, some of the passengers said.

Apparently only Dr. W. Huender, the Dutch East Endies consul-general, knew why the vessel returned, and he kept it a secret. He did say that no general order had been issued for Dutch ships to make for neutral waters. Sources considered reliable asserted such an order had been given to the

Alfonso Asks Throne for Son

PRINCE JUAN

Franco's Plan For Monarchy Irks Hitler

Alfonso's Son, British Educated, May Be Placed on Throne

By Adolfo V. Da Rosa
United Press Staff Writer

Lisbon, Feb. 13.—Early restoration of the Spanish monarchy was foreseen tonight after disclosure that former King Alfonso XIII, under an agreement with Gen. Francisco Franco, has renounced all claims to the throne in favor of his 27-year-old son, Prince Don Juan.

Adolf Hitler was reported in diplomatic quarters to be angered by the naming of Juan, pointing out that the youth was educated in England as a naval officer and might work against Germany's wartime interests.

Should Don Juan be placed on the throne to restore the monarchy after a bloody ten-year interval Franco would remain in high authority, in direct control of all the armed forces and perhaps other posts, it was understood.

Opposition to Franco's desire to restore the monarchy as a means of curbing Spain's bitter internal struggles also has developed within the ranks of the Falangist (Spanish Fascist) organization, which wants to wield supreme power in Spain.

Alfonso, reported recovering in Rome today from a mild attack of angina pectoris, issued a proclamation to the Spanish people urging them to place Don Juan, his fifth son, on the throne "when Spain judges it to be opportune."

Franco was understood to have demanded that Alfonso's formal abdication be signed on Spanish soil, and it was believed that the 55-year-old exiled monarch traveled secretly to Spain to sign the document either at Escorial or at Alcala Henares near Madrid.

It was his first return to Spanish soil since he fled from the Republican revolution on April 15, 1931, after signing a manifesto giving up the throne but "renouncing none of my rights."

Big Stick Diplomacy

By the Associated Press

Belgrade (Friday), Feb. 14, Reports that Germany is seeking passage for German troops through both Yugoslavia and Bulgaria in order to get at Greece and the eastern Mediterranean shores reached diplomats here early today as Yugoslavia's premier and foreign minister began "request" conferences with the Nazi leadership in Germany.

Diplomatists with usually reliable sources of information in government quarters said Premier Cvetkovic and Foreign Minister Cincar-Markovic will discuss passage of German troops from Rumania through the Yugoslavian railway junction of Nis, thence by rail down the Vardar River Valley toward Greece and the important Aegean seaport of Salonika.

There were unconfirmed reports that King Boris of Bulgaria might follow the Yugoslavs to Germany today.

Turkish Pledge Sought

In any event, Sofia dispatches said that Bulgaria, with Italian and German backing, now is trying to get British-allied Turkey to promise not to fight if the Germans start through Bulgaria toward the Dardanelles.

An indication that Turkey was not prepared to fight to prevent the Nazi armies reaching Greece and the Mediterranean was seen in an announcement that Nazi-controlled Rumania had agreed to send 160,000 tons of oil to Turkey immediately—a deal hardly to be expected if Germany believed Turkey would be lined up against her soon.

Boris saw Hitler in November, but nothing came of it.

Cvetkovic and Cincar-Markovic flew to Germany Thursday in response to a summons to confer with Hitler, presumably at Berchtesgaden, where the fate of so many European states has been settled.

With tension in the Balkans mounting, German sources in Belgrade openly declared Yugoslavia would cast her lot with the Axis "within ten days."

The absence of any unusual military measures in Yugoslavia was interpreted in diplomatic circles as meaning that, whatever Hitler expects of this country, Yugoslav statesmen are ready to concede.

In Rumania, where 600,000 German troops are reported massed,

New 'Bottleneck' Problems

Strikes at Three More Plants Slow Work on Defense Orders

By the Associated Press

Labor disputes developed yesterday at three additional plants working on defense orders.

A walkout of C. I. O. workers forced the Youngstown (Ohio) Sheet & Tube Co. to close down 11 furnaces which have been turning out 3,000 to 4,000 tons of steel a day. About 1,000 men were idle. The union said grievances included "seniority and other problems."

The company's direct defense orders are relatively small, but much of its production goes to other firms filling Army and Navy orders.

Members of the C. I. O. United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers struck at the Foster-Wheeler Corporation plant, Carteret, N. J., which manufactures steam generating and refining equipment, and has an undisclosed amount of defense contracts. About 800 workers were affected. Union demands included a 10 per cent wage increase and seven holidays annually with pay.

At Lansing, Mich., some 800 employes of the Motor Wheel Corporation left their jobs.

Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner called upon the strikers to "go back to work at once, so that our country's national defense program will not be placed in jeopardy."

The Governor said 40 per cent of the company's facilities were engaged in defense work and charged the United Automobile Workers (A. F. of L.), whose members are engaged in the strike, with breach of faith. He asserted that representatives of the union had agreed

WJSV Broadcasts as Father Gives Blood for Hospital Bank

Those who were tuned in on radio station WJSV last night from 10:15 to 10:30 o'clock heard in real-life drama why the Children's Hospital blood bank campaign has won the hearts and help of so many thousands of Washingtonians.

In the program, Floyd Higbee, father of a patient in Children's Hospital, was the principal figure. As staff doctors took some of his blood for the bank, they also answered his questions about the uses of the bank, where blood on deposit has given renewed health to hundreds of children, like Higbee's.

WJSV, with The Post and the the American Legion, is local sponsor of the blood bank campaign, whose high spot in the three years of its existence has been St. Valentine's Day. The American Contract Bridge League is national sponsor.

Receipts and the newly scheduled benefits, chiefly card parties, continued to mount yesterday as the third annual February drive moved into high gear.

Events last night included a benefit bridge party at the University Club and another at the Army and Navy Club.

Today's highlight will be the benefit broadcast to be given at 8 p. m. at the Willard Hotel by the Junior Board of Commerce and Station WOL, with the latter sending the first half of program out on the air from 8 to 8:30.

Frank Blair, of the WOL staff, will be master of ceremonies. The roster of performers on the variety show includes Art Brown, Tony Wakeman, Frank Young, the Dixie Harmonies Quartet, Walter Comp-

Aid Bill Report Defends U. S. Foreign Policy

A 15-man majority of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last night signed a report on the Administration's lend-lease bill, asserting America's right under international law to aid "those nations whose defense is deemed vital to ours."

"As is the way with individuals, nations may, under international law, take such measures to defend themselves as seem just and needful in relation to the peril they face," said the report written by Chairman Walter F. George.

"Nor must a nation remain idle while others plot her harm. The doctrine of mutuality prevails in international law as in equity, and clearly proscribes the attempt by any sovereign to sin with the one hand, and admonish with the other."

The committee's written defense of the aid-Britain bill emphasized the Nation's two-fold foreign policy objectives, first to strive to remain at peace, and second, "in its own interests," to supply arms to nations whose defense is vital to the defense of this country.

The report discussed at some length the committee's reasons for rejecting an amendment proposed by Wendell L. Willkie, to specifically name those countries to be loaned or leased arms.

"It is the conviction of your committee that such an amendment would be unwise," said the report.

"No one today, in our own best interests, can determine definitely whether, for example, Ireland, Brazil, or what parts of North America should have our material aid tomorrow."

War Unpredictable

"Though today it might seem clear, for example, that the defense of Great Britain, China and Greece is vital to our defense," it continued, "the scene could change in the near future so that the defense of the Argentine or Turkey might also become vital to our defense. Too few of us know the course which wars like those now in progress may take.

"In times so unpredictable, under a Constitution which authorizes it, a President should be trusted to use the responsibility imposed upon him adequately and swiftly to safeguard the best interests of this Nation against dangers of which he, better than most, can be aware."

Without mentioning Willkie's name, the report denied in effect that two other technical amendments suggested by Willkie are necessary. It said no part of the bill, and in particular no meaning which may be attached to the word "facility" or the word "procured" authorizes the United States "to commandeer or requisition any property in any manner not now provided by law."

Legality Defended

The report further denies that the much-debated clause providing that the President shall have these full powers "notwithstanding the provisions of any other law," applies to such social legislation as the Wagner National Labor Relations Act, the Wage-Hour law, and the Walsh-Healey Act. This is disputed by Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, who has demanded that this section be changed to safeguard labor.

At the end of the bill, the President is authorized to make regulations to carry out the authority granted by the measure. This has been attacked as a very sweeping grant of power, in itself. The majority report denied that this could be "construed as a grant to the President of dictatorial power" since regulations made under this section would have to be consistent with the bill's manifest terms and purposes.

The report defines "defense articles" to be loaned as including "the usual implements of war, such as guns, airplanes and tanks, and also the food, clothing, medical supplies, and the like, without which warring nations would be helpless."

No Authority for A. E. F.

And at this point it emphasizes that "the bill contains no authority, however, for sending American troops, under any circumstances, to fight on foreign soil or waters."

Much of the report is devoted to answering opposition charges of alleged "war-like" acts authorized by the bill. It states at one point that nothing in the bill enlarges the existing power of the Government "to requisition defense articles, such as foreign vessels in our ports. Nor is the repairing of a large flying boat, for a foreign nation, in one of our coastal factories any more of a war-like act than the building of such a flying boat in the self-same factory."

House provisions saying that the bill does not authorize convoying of ships to Britain by the Navy, or the entry of American ships into war zones, were supported in the Senate report by the following statement:

"It is clear, in the light of these latter two sections, that nothing in the bill contemplates the carrying, in American bottoms, of goods to England or any other place located within a combat area under the 1939 Neutrality Act."

to call no strike while negotiations being conducted by a special mediation commission were under way.

In Washington, the Defense Commission continued its efforts to effect a settlement of the strike of C. I. O. employes of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co.'s Milwaukee plant, which has $45,000,000 worth of Army and Navy contracts. It was the third successive day of commission-sponsored conferences between management and union representatives.

[Indications that the Allis-Chalmers stoppage is looked upon as something of a test case for Wisconsin industry and labor were reported by officials yesterday, some of whom expressed impatience with the way negotiations are dragging.

[However, various officials hastened to deny as "a wild rumor" a printed report that consideration was being given to the Government taking over the plant if no agreement is reached soon.—Editor's note.]

The National Mediation Board appealed to the receiver for the Rutland (Vt.) Railroad and representatives of its employes to withhold wage reductions and strike action scheduled for today, to permit further efforts to reach a settlement without a strike.

Work on Army clothing contracts was resumed by the Utica Knitting Mill, Anniston, Ala., after nearly two weeks' idleness due to a dispute between C. I. O. and A. F. L. textile unions. The plant reopened after Gov. Frank Dixon sent 25 highway patrolmen and announced he intended to "see to it that those employes desiring to work are permitted to enter and leave the plant in peace."

During the day, C. I. O. United Construction Workers Organizing Committee charged that C. I. O.-produced materials were being boycotted as defense construction projects in the St. Louis area. A. D. Lewis, committee chairman, made the charges in a letter to Robert Patterson, Assistant Secretary of War.

Lewis attributed the "indefensible boycott" to A. F. L. building trades unions.

Early Denies Destroyer Quarrel

ment on the destroyer problem had been reached by Knox and the President.

Some naval experts, meanwhile, pointed to a flotilla of 45 old destroyers, recently renovated and reclassified as auxiliary ships, as a possible avenue of compromise in the apparent dispute. These "auxiliaries," it was explained, could be readily reconverted into "destroyers" by restoring equipment stripped from them. This device would simultaneously fill British convoy needs and leave intact the present fleet of 160 United States destroyers.

Some of the old destroyers were changed into mine sweepers and others into fast transports for landing marines quickly at trouble spots.

Believed a 60-Day Job

These experts said that the auxiliaries required only from 30 to 60 days to convert, and could be changed back in the same length of time.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that President Roosevelt has directed American Army and naval forces to help control foreign and domestic shipping in the territorial waters of the United States and the Panama Canal Zone whenever asked to do so by the Treasury or the Governor of the Canal.

The order became known when it was published in the "Federal Register." Military guards already are placed aboard ships passing through the Panama Canal, it was said reliably, but Secretary Morgenthau had not yet requested Army or naval assistance in maintaining control over ship movements in United States territorial waters.

Contracts Let For 'Gibraltar' At Trinidad

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Plans for converting the British-owned island of Trinidad into an American "Gibraltar" were disclosed yesterday at the War Department.

Contracts for construction of fortifications, air fields, barracks, etc., on six of the eight Alantic sites leased from the British were signed by the Army, revealing for the first time something of the scope of the defenses to be installed on the islands.

At the same time, the War Department announced the creation of a mobile barrage unit at Fort Lewis, Wash., to experiment with this type of air-raid protection.

Undersecretary Robert Patterson said the Army would spend $102,280,000 at the six bases, and that half of it—$51,000,000—would go for the development of Trinidad. Yesterday's award covered initial phases of this work.

Anchor for Chain of Bases

Approximately 15,000 troops will form the garrison of the Trinidad base, it was stated, roughly the number of soldiers stationed in the Panama Canal Zone until the present emergency.

A strong base on the island, which is close to South America at the southern end of the island chain running southeast from Cuba, will effectively close the Caribbean Sea and Gulf of Mexico to an aggressor, officials say, assuring the Panama Canal and Southern States from attack from this direction.

Existing bases at Puerto Rico, Guantanamo, Cuba, and Key West, Fla., effectively guard other entrances to the Caribbean, but the lack of an operating center for planes, submarines and light surface craft, south of Puerto Rico has long worried Army and Navy officials.

Planes and naval craft operating from Trinidad also can control the northern coast of South America, extending the range of American naval and air forces hundreds of miles to the south.

The $51,000,000 to be spent at the island, it was made clear, is only for Army construction, such as flying fields, barracks, and gun foundations. The cost of the guns, planes and equipment is not included. Naval base development likewise is additional as is the cost of the land.

Yesterday's awards covered the bases to be built at Bermuda, Newfoundland, St. Lucia, Antigua and British Guiana. Contracts for fortification of Jamaica and the Bahamas will be let later, it was said.

Nineteen million dollars will be spent at Bermuda, and $23,400,000 in Newfoundland. The bases at St. Lucia and Antigua, island stepping stones between Puerto Rico and Trinidad, will cost $3,000,000 and $2,880,000, respectively, while $3,000,000 will be expended at British Guiana, on the South American mainland.

Air Station Contracts Let

During the day the Navy also let contracts for air stations on three of the British leased bases. A $11,487,000 order for stations in Trinidad and British Guiana was awarded and a $9,425,000 deal closed for a station at Argentina, Newfoundland.

Undersecretary Patterson, in announcing the formation of the balloon barrage unit, said that the action was prompted by success of such equipment abroad. The British have found that the network of wires forces German bombers to altitudes where accurate bombing is impossible, he said. Some German and Italian cities also have such barrage protection.

Chairman Vinson, of the House Naval Committee introduced legislation authorizing the development of Guam and other naval stations for which President Roosevelt has asked immediate appropriations.

Wage Fixing Held Advisable In Wartime

By the Associated Press

The Wage-Hour Administration has advised Congress that in view of the last World War the United States "cannot enter a future war without giving serious thought to the need for standardizing wages" to protect workers and make efficient use of their time.

In the last war, the administration said in its annual report made public yesterday, wages were completely unstabilized, and in the resultant "chaotic turnover" workers wandered from plant to plant seeking the best wages obtainable.

The confusion was such, the report added, that the War Labor Policies Board had begun consideration of wage standardization when peace brought the conflict to an end.

Wage-hour authorities said they were not prepared now with any plan of wage standardization, but were making a thorough study in this country and abroad, to be prepared to meet any contingency.

"In recent years the unionization of industrial workers has spread rapidly and a degree of uniformity in wage conditions by industries has been achieved through collective bargaining contracts," the report said.

It also asserted that through the operation of the wage-hour law more than $5,000,000 had been paid as restitution to 200,000 workers found to have been receiving substandard wages.

In addition, the report stated that the 30 cents an hour minimum wage required by the law, plus wage orders requiring payment of minimum rates from 32½ to 40 cents an hour in particular cases, had increased the pay rolls of low-wage industries more than $100,000,000 a year.

Col. Philip B. Fleming, wage-hour administrator, told Congress he was not prepared to make any recommendations for changes in the law.

"Many fundamental changes recently have been made in the regulations, which it is hoped will eliminate certain difficulties in administration encountered in the past," he said. "Pending further experience in the administration and further study of the effects of the act, it is not possible at this time to foretell whether amendments will prove necessary."

Power Shortage For Defense Work Spurs U.S. Action

Secretary Ickes said yesterday that the Nation faced a potential shortage of power for national defense purposes and that already there was a shortage in the Pacific Northwest.

To meet the latter, he said, the Reclamation Bureau will hasten efforts to bring the vast Western Federal power projects into capacity use. He said the Bureau of the Budget had been asked for "certain sums" to accelerate work which would triple present production.

"Skyrocketing power demands have made mandatory a wholesale expansion of the production program," Ickes said.

"We are definitely in a race between mounting demands for power and our ability to produce it . . . in a struggle to prevent a repetition of the involuntary blackouts of the last war. National power consumption is going up and up toward an unknown peak with defense demands not yet at a crest."

Lend-Lease Bill Sent to Senate

tains no authority "for sending American troops, under any circumstances, to fight on foreign soil."

Before voting approval, the committee adopted the following three amendments, all previously indorsed by special subcommittees. These were:

Authority for the President to proceed with aid orders only "to the extent to which funds are made available or contracts are from time to time authorized by Congress." This was designed primarily as an answer to "blank check" charges.

A requirement that all money received after June 30, 1946, in payment for defense articles leased or loaned shall be turned into the general fund of the Treasury rather than used to finance additional aid for England.

A revision of the House-approved "Dirksen amendment" to reinforce constitutionality. The redraft would terminate the President's aid powers either "after June 30, 1943, or after the passage by both houses of Congress of a concurrent resolutions . . ." Thus Congress, by a simple majority vote, not requiring Presidential signature, could end the President's powers at any time.

The committee rejected, 13 to 9, an attempt to write a definite ban against use overseas of American troops.

Lee Opens Debate

The Senate meanwhile did not wait for Monday to discuss the speeding bill.

Hardly had the committee voted approval before Senator Josh Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, took the Senate floor to declare England "the only barrier between Hitler's blitzkrieg and the American youth." Lee said that "as long as Hitler is on the loose it is suicide for America to place her faith in neutrality and appeasement."

Senator Austin (Republican), of Vermont, outstanding minority supporter of the measure, joined the debate to ask a commitment that England "will present our views at the peace table."

In return for aid, Austin said America should have a statement of British peace aims, making certain that these guarantee the maintenance of Anglo-American "ideals of freedom."

"We should learn whether Britain will support our stand in the Far East or leave us holding the bag, as she did in the case of Manchuria," said Austin.

"We should attempt to guarantee the principle of safety for British-American ideals, spirituality and democratic institutions."

Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, questioned Austin, asserting he "would never want to become a party to British control of American lives." Austin denied he advocated any such thing, but said Britain and Canada have "spiritual ties" in common with the United States.

Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, complimented Austin on his address and said the apparent large majority for the bill "indicates a new unity on the part of the American Congress and American people toward aggression of the dictators."

Receiving reporters following the Foreign Relations Committee vote, Chairman George explained the three major amendments.

He called the change emphasizing Congressional power to appropriate and set contract limits before the Presidents proceeds with aid commitments "a vital amendment as it retains in Congress full control over the purse strings."

It was learned that the following eight members voted "no" on the motion to favorably report the bill: Senators Clark, of Missouri, and Gillette, of Iowa (Democrats); Senators Johnson, of California; Capper, of Kansas; Vandenberg, of Michigan; Shipstead, of Minnesota, and Nye, of North Dakota (Republicans), and Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin (Progressive).

Arnold Sees Industry Peril In Labor Ruling

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold declared yesterday that "major dislocation in vital industries" was threatened by jurisdictional strike situations which a Supreme Court decision last week "put beyond the reach of any law."

The majority opinion of the high court in the case of United States vs. Hutcheson (William Hutcheson, president of the A. F. of L. Carpenters Union) made the jurisdictional strike "expressly exempt" from the Sherman Antitrust Act, Arnold stated.

Arnold offered his views on labor and antitrust laws at a hearing of the Temporary National Economic Committee.

But Representative Hatton Sumners (Democrat), of Texas, a member of the TNEC, indicated that the House Judiciary Committee would soon consider advisability of new legislation dealing with labor and antitrust laws.

"The Judiciary Committee is going to sort of prowl around in this general field pretty soon," Representative Sumners, chairman of the House committee, said. "Labor," he added, "won't be neglected."

The "modifications" in the antitrust laws which have resulted from "judicial determinations" should be considered, the Texan observed.

Declaring that the antitrust suits are directed against "only a small segment of labor," Arnold said that "an infinitesimal portion of the working men of this country" are "so strategically situated" that they can pass "enormous costs" on to the consumer for the necessities of life.

"The restraints of trade of the character we are attacking," he said, "occur principally in the building industry and in transportation by trucks. Higher rents and higher food prices have a greater effect on the dislocation of an economic system than restraints of trade anywhere else because they absorb more purchasing power of low-income groups."

Arnold told the TNEC that the Justice Department believed the Hutcheson decision did not apply to certain types of "labor restraints" on interstate commerce, which the department is now investigating or prosecuting.

These, he said, included union attempts to exclude efficient methods or prefabricated materials from building construction; to erect "protective tariffs" around localities; to force small independent concerns out of business to facilitate the "policing" of union regulations; to combine with employers to maintain prices; to require the hiring of unnecessary labor, and to strike against another union certified by the NLRB as the only legitimate union with which the employer can deal.

Arnold told the committee that a dispute between the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. in St. Louis—apparently taken out of the hands of the antitrust division by the Hutcheson case—had brought a threat of "Statewide labor civil war," if remedial action is not undertaken.

The projects affected include construction work on a TNT plant, an aircraft factory and a cartridge plant, although, he said, no labor stoppages have yet occurred.

"If the Government does nothing, they (the workers) say they will take the law in their own hands," Arnold warned.

Meanwhile, President William Green of the A. F. L. said in Miami yesterday that he had arranged with President Roosevelt to have Arnold confer on labor antitrust cases with Joseph Padway, A. F. L. general counsel. Green declared that under the Hutcheson decision nearly 100 cases now pending against building trade union officials should be dropped by the Government.

At the close of Arnold's testimony yesterday Chairman O'Mahoney, of the TNEC, observed that none of the witnesses before the committee ever had suggested that the antitrust laws be repealed.

"There's no danger the antitrust laws will be abandoned," Arnold commented, "but they may be whittled away."

'Crusading Mothers' Scuffle With Capitol Police After Demonstration Against Aid Bill

Associated Press Photos.

OFFICER TAKES LEAD IN THIS SWING STEP—Left—Lieut. Walter H. Hunt, in the lead, and Mrs. Mynnie Fisher, of Milwaukee, whirl through the swinging door and out of the Capitol. She was the leader of a flag-waving group of "Crusading Mothers" who shouted their opposition to the lend-lease bill. The women, who also call themselves the Paul Revere Sentinels, carried their demonstration to the British Embassy, where they hung a two-faced effigy representing President Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie

Women, Shouting 'Down With H. R. 1776,' Demand to See Senator Lucas but He Gives Them Slip; Then the Law Steps In

Capitol police late yesterday ejected more than a score of indignant women who called themselves "Crusading Mothers" and shouted their opposition to the lend-lease bill.

Waving small American flags, they marched into the Senate reception room in search of Senator Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, as many of them were from Illinois. Lucas saw them coming and slipped into a room off the lobby. The Senate had adjourned.

Under the leadership of a militant woman with a small megaphone they chanted: "We want Lucas," and "We want Pepper," then "We want Sol Bloom and his benchmen."

Several times they broke into "Down with Britain" and "We are Americans," then "Kill H. R. 1776 and not our sons."

After listening for a while to the rally, the Capitol Police seized the leader, Mrs. Minnie Fisher, of Milwaukee, and escorted her out of the Capitol while several other women, some of them gray-haired, burst into hysterical denunciation of the police.

The Capitol policeman, Ed Brown, 6 foot 10 inches and weighing 328 pounds, was caught in the turmoil as the women resisted ejection. Several women pounded futilely on his massive back.

When the remaining women continued to mill about the lobby muttering their displeasure, the police ordered them all out on the ground that the Capitol was being closed.

One graying mother shouted just before departing: "I know how we'll get even with 'em. We won't have any more sons for them to kill."

Meanwhile, a two-faced effigy—one showing President Roosevelt and the other Wendell Willkie—was hanged from a wall on the British Embassy grounds, 3100 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, by a group of women who said they represented the Women's Neutrality League and Paul Revere's Sentinels.

Axis Ships Here May Be Bought For Britain

Private American shipping interests are negotiating with private German and Italian shipowners to buy 29 vessels of those countries interned in American ports for possible resale or charter to Great Britain, it was learned yesterday.

At the same time, high officials informed The Post that the much-rumored plan for the Government to seize 84 Axis-controlled ships tied up in American ports, including 24 Danish vessels, has been shelved for the time being, largely due to the complicated legal problems involved.

What attitude the German and Italian governments would take toward sale of ships of their flags to the United States for possible use by the British was not disclosed. Officials said that so far the negotiations were between private individuals. The deal in its present stage has the approval of the United States Government, but the German and Italian governments have not yet made known their positions, it was said.

Funds Might Be Frozen

The problem of whether the United States would allow money paid for the ships to be transferred to German or Italian account is also under study, officials said. There is a possibiliyt, they explained, that the money paid for the ships would be frozen when the Treasury extends "freeze" orders to all German and Italian funds in this country, a move that has been expected for some time.

There are 27 Italian and 2 German ships in American ports. One of the latter is an oil tanker in Boston and the other is a new freighter, the Aranaca, which has been at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., since it was chased there at the start of the war by a British war vessel.

The private discussions also have touched on possible purchase by Americans of the German and Italian ships tied up in Latin-American harbors. Though some of these ships have been able to slip back to their home ports through the British blockade, a considerable number remain idle in South America and Mexico.

British Problem Is Acute

Ronald Cross, British shipping minister, said in December that Britain "casts a covetous eye" on Axis ships in American ports.

This statement, and reports of American plans to make the ships available to Britain, brought from a German spokesman a charge that Cross was "inciting America to commit a warlike act" against the Axis.

Qualified authorities said that American help in easing Britain's commercial ship requirements would be confined to selling, chartering and constructing vessels here for the British. Officials admitted that Britain's shipping needs now were acute, but said they thought President Roosevelt's 200-ship construction program, when combined with Britain's 60-ship order and purchases and chartering of other vessels, would meet future demands.

A.F.L. Council Weighs Racketeering Charge Against Official Once Convicted of Extortion

By Fred L. Strozier,
Associated Press Staff Writer

Miami, Fla., Feb. 13.—The American Federation of Labor's executive council considered for the first time today racketeering charges against a member elected to a minor union office after having served part of a prison term for extortion.

William Green, president of the A. F. of L., said he brought before council members charges filed by officials of the Brooklyn district council of the Painters' and Decorators' Union against Jacob Wellner.

He said Wellner once served as business agent of the council, was convicted of extortion and served part of a two-year sentence, then recently was reelected to the same office.

The Internation Painters' and Decorators' Union's council recently held that Wellner's election was proper and ordered Brooklyn district officers to permit him to assume his duties.

The president of the international union, Lawrence Lindelof, told the A. F. of L. council today, Green said, that the same men who now are fighting Wellner testified in his behalf at his trial for extortion.

Green reported the Wellner case was the only one involving "racketeering" that had been brought to his attention for action by the executive council, under authority of a resolution adopted by the last national convention. The case is to be decided at a council meeting in Washington three months hence.

The A. F. of L. president said the council must determine first whether the International Painters' Union is evading or seeking to evade its responsibility before any action is taken.

Just what can be done by the A. F. L., he said, has not been decided because there is no precedent for stepping into such decisions by one of the free unions which make up the federation. In a similar case in New York one year ago, Green said, Joseph Lanza was reelected business agent of the Fish Workers' Union after a prison term for extortion.

Because the union had a Federal charter and thus came directly under A. F. of L. control, Green said, he revoked the fish workers' charter until Lanza was ousted.

Maj. Wofford Named 1st Army Attache to Eire

Copyright by New York Times

Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson disclosed yesterday that the United States was sending its first military attache to Eire. He announced that Maj. John W. Wofford, Cavalry officer, will leave soon for Dublin.

Patterson said the appointment "does not indicate that we expect an invasion of Eire, but the duties of the attache in London have been so enormously enlarged that he has plenty to do without looking after Dublin."

Frank Named To Appeals Court Bench

President Roosevelt yesterday nominated Jerome N. Frank, member since 1937 of the Securities Exchange Commission and its chairman since 1939, to be a judge of the Second United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Frank would succeed Robert P. Patterson, who left the bench to join the War Department and become Undersecretary of War. The Second Circuit Court's jurisdiction covers New York, Vermont and Connecticut.

Nomination of Frank to a judgeship opened a vacancy on the five-man commission. There were frequent predictions yesterday that the President would appoint to the post an SEC employe, Ganson Purcell, head of its Trading and Exchange Division, which polices the Nation's securities and commodities markets. Appointment of Purcell to the commission would be the first time an SEC member has been recruited from the agency's ranks.

Chester Lane, chief counsel for SEC, and David Schenker, head of the investment company division, also were mentioned for the appointment. The name of Thomas G. Corcoran, an original New Deal brain truster who no longer holds official position, also entered the speculation, but it is believed more likely that he may take a Navy Department post.

IN TRINITY CLASS DAY PLAY—Patricia Colbert (left) as the Cossack, and Judith Atkinson as Suzanne supplied the love interest in the freshman class day play, "For All We Know," staged last night at Trinity College

OGPU Spy Hunt Started By Dies Agents

Dr. James B. Matthews, Dies Committee research director, yesterday said he "hoped" by the first of next week to have rounded up enough agents of the Russian secret police in this country to develop, through questioning, a detailed "picture" of OGPU methods.

He said committee investigators are now searching for Soviet agents and that he "hoped" they would find the mysterious "Hans," master spy who, according to friends of Gen. Walter G. Krivitsky, entered the United States with a mission to assassinate the former official of the Soviet military intelligence.

Krivitsky was found shot to death in his room in the Bellevue Hotel here Monday.

Matthews emphasized that the committee's attempted spy roundup was not intended specifically as an investigation of the Krivitsky case, closed by Washington police as a suicide. He said that if the agents were found there would be no public hearing but that they would be brought to Washington for questioning.

Matthews declined to disclose where the spy hunt is being conducted except to say that the search is being made in the East.

At 11:30 a. m. yesterday Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, the District coroner, swore in a jury over Krivitsky's body. The action officially recorded the case as a suicide but at the same time created an inquest jury that would be legally constituted to hear additional evidence if any should be uncovered.

Named to the jury were L. B. Souder, Harold J. Smith, H. C. Adler, J. H. O'Neil, P. Gilbert Breen and F. J. A. Bennett.

Krivitsky's body was released shortly after noon to the John R. Wright funeral home. It was shipped at 4:30 p. m. to the Fairchild & Sons funeral home in Brooklyn. The funeral will be private.

The Gallup Poll

Sentiment for Lease-Lend Bill Found Rising; Issue Splits G.O.P.; Men Over 50 Most Warlike

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 13.—An increase in sentiment for the President's lease-lend bill during the past ten days is revealed in a new nation-wide survey of public opinion by the American Institute. Nearly six persons in every ten interviewed favor passage of the measure. This represents an increase of four per cent since the Institute's last poll reported February 9.

58% Now in Favor

To a cross-section of men and women voters in all parts of the country who had heard of the bill—more than four in every five had—the Institute put the following question in its latest survey:

"Do you think Congress should pass the President's lease-lend bill?"

The trend is as follows:

	Feb. 9 Survey	Today (Feb. 14)
Yes	54%	58%
No	22	21
Qualified Answers	15	14
No opinion	9	7

If the latest percentages are applied against the 50 million voters in the last Presidential election, approximately 29 million favor passage of the bill, while 10½ million oppose it, and the rest either say they are undecided or give a qualified opinion.

How G. O. P. Stands

The lease-lend controversy is one which splits the rank and file of the Republican Party. Today's study shows that while Democratic voters are in favor of the bill by a vote of 71 per cent, a substantial number of Republicans support the measure as well.

The actual G. O. P. vote is 43 per cent approve, 30 per cent opposed, 20 per cent qualified, and 7 per cent no opinion.

While the country, judging by this survey, is willing to grant President Roosevelt extraordinary powers for aid to England, it is still just as stubbornly opposed as ever to American entrance into the European war.

The latest survey on this subject, completed a few days ago, shows only 14 per cent in favor of going to war now against Germany and Italy, as compared to 13 per cent in a poll February 2.

Old Favor War Entry

Who are the 14 per cent now in favor of going to war?

The greatest enthusiasm for war today is among men 50 years and over—those safely beyond the draft age.

The question put in the survey was:

"If you were asked to vote on the question of the United States entering the war against Germany and Italy, how would you vote—to go into the war, or to stay out of the war?"

	Go In	Stay Out

Officer Who Ordered Last Shot in War Dies

Laguna Beach, Cal., Feb. 13 (AP).—The officer who ordered the firing of the last shot in the World War is dead.

Col. Willis Grandy Peace, United States Army, retired, was commander of the Eleventh United States Field Artillery in the Argonne Forest. A German shell, a minute before the 11 o'clock Armistice hour, killed several members of his staff. He ordered a shot fired in retaliation. It exploded over the German lines exactly on the hour.

Col. Peace, 64, died at his home here Tuesday.

Franco Refuses Aid to Axis, Says Vichy

alter Spain's policy in relation to the war nor were there any decisions which would spread the conflict to the western Mediterranean, and particularly to Britain's fortresses of Gibraltar.

Franco was reported here to have inquired of Mussolini what could be expected to occur in the eastern Mediterranean this spring and Italy's position in the face of a possible imminent Greek offensive and a continuation of the British North African drive toward Tripoli.

At the same time, under the plan, Spain would have given to Italy many naval and air bases to support the German mechanized assault on Gibraltar.

Although he is a devout champion of the Axis, Spanish Foreign Minister Ramon Serrano Suner was reported to have been no more enthusiastic for Spain's active participation in the war than Franco.

Had Franco accepted the reported war proposal, it was said here, his reward would have been the recovery of Gibraltar after an Axis victory.

French quarters said that, as a result of his talk with Petain at Montpellier, Franco undoubtedly understands that he could expect no war support of any kind from France.

War Believed Their Topic

Copyright by New York Times

Montpellier, France, Feb. 13.—Matters relating to the prosecution of the war, rather than to peace feelers, are believed to have formed the subject of a three-hour conference at the prefecture here this afternoon between Marshal Petain and Generalissimo Franco.

While the heads of the French and Spanish states reviewed the general situation, their respective foreign ministers, Admiral Darlan and Ramon Serrano Suner, were closeted together.

Despite the continuance of great secrecy, there is reason to believe that Gen. Franco informed Marshal Petain of the broad lines of his conversation with Premier Mussolini at Bordighera the day before, and also discussed the outlook for the future.

Well informed circles consider that two of the most pressing questions at the moment are the turn which military operations are taking in Africa and the attitude of Moslem tribes in the Italian colonies.

Tunisia is a French protectorate but since France asked Italy for an armistice Tunisia is, in relation to Italy, in the position of a vanquished nation. The situation is, therefore, complex, but it is believed that should hypothesis become reality, Marshal Petain's government would be likely to hold that international law compels the internment and disarming of any belligerent entering Tunisian territory. This would rule out another supposition, namely the transfer of combatants to Europe through French Africa and Spain.

On the other hand, there is reason to believe that France would receive Italian civilian refugees from Libya, should any cross into Tunisia.

The attitude of Moslem tribes under Italian rule, according to reliable opinion, interests France not only as regards refugees, but also as a great Moslem power. Moreover, there is in Tunisia a very large population of Italian origin, which would look to the French authorities for protection in case of need. The Moslem world generally is today inclined to sympathize with the British cause.

Madrid Silent on Subject

Madrid, Spain (Friday), Feb. 14 (AP).—Generalissimo Francisco Franco and his foreign minister, Ramon Serrano Suner, had a "cordial conversation" at luncheon yesterday with Chief of State Marshal Petain of France and his vice premier, Admiral Darlan, it was officially announced today.

But the subjects discussed were not disclosed.

13 Ships Reported Sunk in Convoy

quarters in Berlin estimated that it surpassed the 86,000 tons sunk in the north Atlantic battle early last November.

In that attack the Germans claimed to have "destroyed" an entire convoy. Yesterday, it is asserted, the convoy was broken up and dispersed. A number of the larger ships, according to German reports, were "fully loaded with war materials."

Attacks like that, the Germans say, will beat the British and should drive home to Americans that any aid the United States may send to Britain will come too late. For it must be assumed that most of the war materials sent to the bottom yesterday came from the United States.

In the week from February 4 to 11, the Germans assert, 117,500 tons of British shipping were sunk by combined actions of the navy and the air force. The navy is credited with 73,500 tons, of which 40,000 tons were sunk by German warships operating overseas and 35,500 tons by German U-boats. The air force, it is stated, sank 44,000 tons during that one week.

The German communique specifies yesterday's attack as being a "continuation of the destructive attacks which in the past few days have been directed against the British convoy system west of Portugal." This appears to indicate that yesterday's attack likewise took place somewhere off the Portuguese coast. German quarters, furthermore, pointed out that by thus phrasing its communique the German high command seeks to emphasize that all these attacks were by no means "coincidences," but part of a "systematic plan of operation of the German armed forces."

Neutral quarters declared that the successes the Germans claimed recently, speak well for the German intelligence system. For if the British have shifted the bulk of their shipping from the North Atlantic to more southern waters the Germans appear to know about it and have shifted their blockading forces accordingly.

Suez Attacked

Traffic through the Suez Canal, the German high command reports today, has also been seriously hampered as a result of German air attacks. Two vessels were sunk in the middle of the canal, the Germans claim, while the canal itself as well as harbors and freight yards have been extensively damaged. German reconnaissance planes, it is asserted, brought home pictures showing large numbers of ships waiting at each end of the canal, from which the Germans deduce that the canal is at least partially blocked.

U. S. Warns Nationals to Leave Far East

Meanwhile, reports circulated that an unidentified Dutch vessel, three days out of Manila for the United States, had been ordered back to Philippine waters.

The transports Etolin and Grant will return army families to the United States, sailing soon. The Etolin already is in the harbor.

Army authorities said they were taking advantage of the presence of these vessels to return some families which ordinarily would not leave until midsummer, in accordance with Army transfer orders affecting husbands and fathers. Otherwise, they added, there would be a congestion on the transport scheduled to leave in July.

Australia Sounds Warning

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 13 (AP).—An extraordinary warning that "the war has moved into a new stage involving the utmost gravity" was issued today by Acting Prime Minister A. W. Fadden and John Curtin, leader of the Labor opposition in Parliament, and the war cabinet and service chiefs arranged to meet together tomorrow.

Fadden, who holds Australia's highest powers in the absence of Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies on an African trip, and Curtin issued their declaration at the close of a hurriedly adjourned meeting of the war council—an adjournment taken pending tomorrow's war cabinet conference.

The people of this city awoke this morning to the unexpected presence of the 6,980-ton cruiser Sydney, which had come home in the night at the end of a year's service at sea during which she sank Italian cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni, steamer an aggregate of 80,000 miles, fired an aggregate of 4,000 shells and survived 60 bombing attacks.

The return of the Sydney suggested that Australia might be assembling her fleet in home waters against the fears of the future.

Informed persons in London suggested that the motivation for the Fadden-Curtin statement was a report that Japan and Soviet Russia were on the brink of making an accord—the sort of an accord which Japan presumably would make to protect her rear before starting any new movement to the south.

In London, it was stated, there is a growing belief that Japan—which now is tied in closely with Germany and Italy—might be preparing thrusts against Malaya and the Dutch East Indies. This view has been supported by reports that the Japanese are seeking bases in southern French Indo-China and Thailand (Siam) in reward for their mediation of the Indo-Chinese-Thailand border dispute.

Reported Massing at Haiphong

Shanghai (Friday), Feb. 14 (U.P.).—A reliable Occidental informant said today that "a Japanese battle fleet" was concentrated off Haiphong, Indo-China, yesterday, but that "nothing was known of the reasons" for the demonstration. Japanese said a number of their warships were in the Haiphong area in connection with measures for enforcement of the armistice agreement between Thailand and Indo-China.

The United Press correspondent in Saigon quoted an authoritative foreign aviation source as asserting that Japan has reinforced her air strength on Hainan Island, off Haiphong, and Waichow Island, to the northward, to 600 first-line planes.

Japanese Chiefs to Confer

Copyright by New York Times

Hongkong, Feb. 13.—Usually reliable Chinese sources said today that an important conference by high Japanese military, naval and air chiefs would be held on Hainan Island this weekend to discuss a southward drive.

Additional Japanese warships were reported to have passed the Fukien coast on the way south recently, and it was reported from Formosa last week that Japanese bases in Hainan, in Indo-China and in the Spratley Islands were receiving concentrations of troops, planes, ships and stores.

Commons Member Asks Secret Talks On Base Leasing

London, Feb. 13 (AP).—A House of Commons member requested the government today to allow time for a secret debate on the circumstances of leasing naval bases in the Western Hemisphere to the United States and their subsequent administration by the United States.

Clement R. Attlee, lord privy seal, replied that the government was pressed for time, but that the suggestion would be brought to the attention of Prime Minister Churchill.

The request came from Commander Sir Archibald Southby, Conservative, who said there was a "very widespread desire" that Commons should know exactly what was being done and what was proposed.

Gibson's "GREAT FROM THE 1st SIP"

SULLY DISCOVERS HOW TO SIP

Sully had a one-track mind. Each night after work he'd drop in at the club and say, "I'll have a whiskey." Then he'd just "toss it off."

One day, his friend Henricks suggested Gibson's. But when Sully got ready to gulp, Henricks grabbed his hand and said, "Whoa! Take it easy! Gibson's is too good to gulp. I want you to taste this whiskey. Sip it a little at a time!"

Sully looked startled—but he tried sipping. Suddenly he smiled. "Man, that's the smoothest, cheeriest whiskey I ever drank."

Now Sully sips his Gibson's XXXX Rye—he says it's just too good to gulp. Tonight, won't you experiment and discover why Gibson's is "Great from the First Sip"?

British Explorers' Unit Wages Guerrilla War in Desert

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Feb. 13.—A motorized unit of desert explorers waged guerilla warfare on interior Libyan posts of the Italians for months last summer and fall before Britain actually launched the North African offensive, British army headquarters disclosed today.

Formed and led by three Britons who "for fun" had spent their last ten annual vacations exploring the vast Sahara wastes, the unit made daring raids on Italian garrisons and caravan trains and participated with Free Frenchmen in their attack on Fezzan and Mursuk from French Equatorial Africa.

From the middle of August until the unit—once given up for lost—returned with Italian prisoners and military documents, the desert raiders traveled 500,000 truck miles without the loss of a vehicle.

They crossed 1,200 miles of hitherto unexplored Sahara dunes to participate in the battle of Mursuk, where the Free French commander, Col. Dornano, lost his life in the destruction of the Italian fort and airdrome.

The idea for the unit was conceived by Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander of the British African forces, when he learned the three explorers were in his middle Eastern army.

Within six weeks, the three had formed and trained the unit of Britons and New Zealanders whose first assignment was to find out if, as rumored, the Italians planned to attack the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and the Nile Valley from the Kufra Oasis in southeastern Libya.

By mid-August, well armed troops were journeying thousands of miles through trackless enemy territory.

Much ground they covered was unexplored—bleak desert and huge sand ranges previously deemed impassable.

The column split into three patrols, each setting off on a 1,000-mile reconnaissance through sandstorms the like of which they never met before.

Nothing more was heard of the unit for days and a garbled wireless message led to the belief that they were lost.

A month later, three bearded men appeared with a batch of Italian prisoners and several bags of Italian documents seized when the patrols ambushed an Italian column on the Sahara caravan route.

Other expeditions followed throughout the autumn. Once the party appeared before the Fort Augila Oasis, and seized the Italian sentry before he completed his challenge.

Three shells fired point-blank into the mud walls of the fort then drove the garrison out the back door, enabled the raiders to remove at their leisure all the post's equipment and supplies, and disappear again into desert wastes.

On the same day, 600 miles away, another of the patrols raiding Uweinat Oasis killed and wounded a dozen bewildered Italians.

Two more oases were attacked by the patrols on their return to Egypt. At one, Traghen, Bedouin tribesmen marched out en masse in surrender, with banners flying and drums beating.

An idea of the enormous distances involved in the patrols' operations is gained from the fact that one wounded member was carried by truck 700 miles across a desert, then taken in a plane 3,000 miles to a Cairo hospital.

Italian prisoners have admitted frankly that the patrols stopped normal traffic over caravan routes; made movements between oases impossible without convoy of heavy guns, clumsy to handle in the desert, or airplanes, and forced reinforcement of interior garrisons with men and weapons far over normal need.

130 Greeks Flee Bengasi Camp, Capture 3,000

By Edward Kennedy.

Associated Press Staff Writer

Bengasi, Libya., Feb. 13.—Not all the Greek fighting has been in Albania, it was disclosed today.

A band of 130 Greeks who broke out of an internment camp during the Italian rout captured 3,000 Italians and turned them over to the British.

The Greek residents of Bengasi were interned at Zuetina, 80 miles south of here when their Italian guards joined the attempted Fascist exodus which the British intercepted nearby.

Seizing abandoned armament, they fell on the Italian ranks from the rear and inflicted considerable casualties before the Fascist began surrendering.

When it was all over they had bagged 3,000, including an Italian general and colonel.

Then the Greeks returned to their homes in Bengasi and provided one of the few jubilant notes in the gloomy Italian port by holding victory celebrations.

"You can imagine how happy we were to have that chance after eating that prison camp food," one of them said.

Rhodes Raided for Fourth Day

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 13.—Royal Air Force bombers today raided airdromes on the Italian Island of Rhodes for the fourth day in succession, blasting hangars, supplies and war planes at Maritza, Calato and Kattavia.

Fires were started at all three points, consuming buildings at Maritza, gutting a munitions dump at Kattavia and damaging fuel dumps and seven warplanes at Calata, according to official sources. Heavy antiaircraft fire failed to halt the raid or bring down the raiders.

R. A. F. Attacks in Waves

Copyright by New York Times

In Eritrea British bombers and artillery continued to bombard Cheren, where Italian troops are fighting desperately to halt the British. Among the high cliffs surrounding the town British army units worked madly attempting to hoist armored cars and guns into position for an assault. An Italian counterattack failed.

Yesterday the R. A. F. took the battle to the Italians in wave after wave of bombers, blasting a railway station, fuel dumps, trucks and gun positions in a continuous day-long raid. Northeast of Cheren, at Orti, several direct hits landed on military stores. Warehouses and other military targets were raided at Assab and along the coast.

The army continued local attacks around Cheren itself, feeling out the strength of the Italian positions, but the work of getting mechanized forces onto higher ground received most attention, being vital to an assault of the scale necessary to oust the desperate Italians from strong natural defenses.

South Africans Advance

The work of pursuing the other Italian column from Barentu into the hill country toward Arreza continued, and it was believed these Italians, once numbering 15,000, would never be able to re-form into an effective fighting force.

South African troops continued to advance northward in the Rift Valley region, although natural barriers of sand, rocks and hills made progress slow.

German and Italian warplanes raided Malta today, but with no damage or casualties.

Von Luckner Far From Raid Scenes

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—Count Felix von Luckner is living a peaceful life in a log cabin in the Harz Mountains in Germany—far from the South Seas where sailors from destroyed ships have reported him as operating—Lowell Thomas said today.

Thomas said that he received a letter from Von Luckner, dated January 1, in Halle, Germany. It was January 2 that the Count was reported active as a raider in the Pacific.

An excerpt from the famous Sea Devil's letter said:

"I spend most of the time at the present with hunting in the great forests of the Harz Mountains, and Ingeborg (his Swedish wife) and I are living in a log cabin. . . .

"My yacht, Sea Devil, is berthed in Stebbins, waiting for new adventures."

Greeks Menace Italian Force In Tepeleni

By the Associated Press

Bitolj, Yugoslavia (Friday), Feb. 14.—Greek troops were reported today to have reached strategic heights north of and beyond Tepeleni, Albania, after heavy fighting and threatened to outflank the Italian defenders of that town.

The Italians were reported to have brought up heavy batteries to defend Tepeleni, which controls the highway to the Fascist port of Valona, Albania.

The Italians used armored units in the central sector where the terrain allowed, it was said.

The Greeks said the Italian morale was higher than in recent weeks but that progress was made in the direction of Valona by the "infallible" bayonet charges.

Advance on Valona

By the Associated Press

Athens, Feb. 13.—A three-mile advance toward Valona in the bitterly contested southern coastal region of Albania, accompanied by a general attack over a broad central sector where the Italians also yielded ground, was reported in Greek dispatches today.

Greeks said that their repulse of the counterattacks in the last month had caused the Fascists to fall back to the defensive and prepare a new line running from Valona to Berati.

This apparently means the Italians intend to abandon all the Tepeleni area, where Greek fighters have infiltrated along the mountain ridges until they are on both sides of that key town, Greeks said.

The Italians stubbornly defended their positions in heights about Valona, on the Adriatic coast, it was reported, but suffered severe losses from an intense artillery bombardment and yielded before Greek bayonet charges.

The Greeks previously have been reported near the southern side of Valona Bay, which is about 8 miles wide. (British artillery batteries have been shelling the city, say dispatches from Yugoslav border points.)

Berati, through which the new line was reported to run, is about 30 miles northeast of Tepeleni and 45 miles south of Tirana, the capital.

Officer Killed in Crash

Balboa, C. Z., Feb. 13 (AP).—Second Lieut. John Keplinger Fisher, of the United States Air Reserves, was killed today when his pursuit plane crashed into the mud flats at Chame Point during combat maneuvers. The accident was the fourth pursuit plane crash in the last 36 hours here.

Nazis Act to Put 50,000 Jews Of Amsterdam in Canal Ghetto

By the Associated Press

Amsterdam (via Berlin), Feb. 13. German authorities ordered all Gentiles out of the old Jewish quarter of Amsterdam around Waterloo Square today, raising the possibility of a moated ghetto of 50,000 inhabitants.

The German order, it was stated, was the result of street fighting in which Dutch Nazis and armed opponents from Waterloo Square clashed on February 9, and of a series of drubbings which the Jews gave Nazis in that district in the ensuing two days. Nazi shop windows were smashed in the rioting.

It is estimated that about half of Amsterdam's 100,000 Jews live in the Waterloo Square district. The population of Amsterdam is about 800,000. Traffic to and from Waterloo Square district can be controlled by raising or lowering canal drawbridges.

A communique from the occupation authorities said that disorders broke out following a "training march" of the Nazis on Sunday and that several combatants as well as members of the Amsterdam police force were wounded.

On the following day, the communique added, ten groups of young Jews attacked Nazis who live in the Waterloo Square neighborhood. They had various weapons. Some of those attacked were seriously injured, the communique said, and some shops were demolished.

Police quickly rounded up suspects, some of whom were identified as members of the armed bands. Then the Jewish quarter was closed to traffic by raising the drawbridges.

When order was finally restored, the communique said:

"It became an urgent necessity that all non-Jewish inhabitants of the quarter leave immediately. This action began today."

A Jewish council has been formed to guarantee maintenance of order in the vicinity.

Rioting in Utrecht

Utrecht, The Netherlands (via Berlin), Feb. 13 (AP).—Clashes between Netherlands Nazis and political opponents in the course of which a number of shots was fired took place last night, it was announced officially today.

The clashes followed the smashing of a window at a Nazi sympathizer's home. Several Nazis were injured, one seriously.

Axis Pressing for Bulgar-Turk Pact

civilians began moving from the Nazi-dominated oil fields and strategic ports along the Danube River, opposite Bulgaria, as a precaution against possible British air attacks.

Reports from Rumania told of fleets of German transport planes, of a type used to carry parachute troops and infantrymen in the Nazi campaigns in western Europe and Scandinavia, arriving at Craiova, Turnuseverin and Pietesi airports. These Rumanian air bases already are manned by German aviation units.

Thus, with the completion of Spanish Generalissimo Franco's conferences with Premier Mussolini of Italy, and Chief of State Petain of France, the Germans were moving swiftly toward a showdown in southeastern Europe.

Cvetkovic and Cincar-Markovic were expected to remain in Germany three days.

Well-informed political quarters said Hitler's invitation was extended ten days ago, apparently with the date timed to follow completion of Franco's talks with Mussolini and Petain.

Sofia Seeks Turkish Pact

Sofia, Feb. 13 (AP).—Bulgaria with Italian and German aid, is making determined diplomatic efforts to obtain a pledge from Turkey to refrain from fighting if Nazi troops enter Bulgaria, usually reliable informants said tonight.

Diplomatic quarters said this may explain why transit of German troops has not already occurred, although the weather is favorable.

The Axis idea, it was understood, was to obtain a Turkish-Bulgarian friendship agreement. Turkey is a nonbelligerent ally of Britain.

Sources close to Russia say that if the Germans enter Bulgaria to get at Greece, and if Turkey fights, the Soviet will act to get territorial benefits from Turkey.

Germans here do not deny that German "tacticians" are in Bulgaria. They are described as radio men and operators of airplane detection devices numbering a "few hundred."

Nazi Plan Confirmed

Copyright by New York Times

Sofia, Feb. 13.—Responsible foreign office circles tonight confirmed reports that Germany intends to march its army through Bulgaria at least as far as the Greek frontier, with the idea of assuming absolute control of southeastern Europe by absorption and forcing peace on Axis terms between Greece and Italy, or pushing its military might still further south if Athens is still obstinate.

The British Minister to Bulgaria said:

In an interview with this correspondent, the British Minister to Bulgaria, George Rendel, authorized publication of the following statement, which can be taken as the official viewpoint of the British Foreign Office:

"If the Germans occupy Bulgaria and make it a base against our ally, obviously we shall have to break off relations with Bulgaria and take whatever measures the situation requires."

Soviet Fleet Concentrates

Tokyo, Feb. 13.—Relaying what is described as reliable information obtained from Soviet authorities in Vladivostok, the newspaper Hochi announced today that Russia's Black Sea fleet is concentrating near the Bosphorus.

Alaska Asks to Be Thought 'Part of U. S.'

Juneau, Alaska, Feb. 13 (AP).—Alaska's legislative house appealed to Congress today to "consider Alaska as part of the United States" in determining immigration policies.

The plea was included in a memorial asking Congress to kill the Dickstein bill for opening the Territory to refugee colonization.

'My Heart Beats for You'

Sweethearts, Who Want to Make Love, Not History, Demand Valentines to Penetrate the Selectee's Heart

By Lucia Giddens.
Post Staff Writer

There's a new call at the counters this year—for Valentines for service selectees whose defenses against love are not impregnable.

But Cupid still sticks to the old weapons—bow and arrow. When this year's crop of Valentines were in the making, months ago, he had no warning that his amorous ammunition should have a more military flavor on February 14, 1941.

Girls behind the Valentine counters yesterday confessed to almost a shortage of messages to aim at the specific target of a soldier's heart.

One of the few with a military air proclaimed that "My heart beats for you" and showed a girl, in a marching uniform, beating a drum.

Girls who have been left behind—and who don't care if they were—can get sweet retaliation with a trick Valentine, prominently displayed at a bookstore here yesterday. The cover, showing a demure girl with hat decorated in an ardent blue forget-me-not blossom, bore the words, "Just a Valentine forget-me-not from the girl you left behind you." But inside, the same girl was sticking out her tongue and loudly exclaiming "Raspberries."

A soldier himself might send a certain Valentine, spied in a shop here yesterday. A little boy, with a cocked hat and a shiny sword, was interrupting his march step to say, "I don't wanna make history . . . I wanna make love."

A new-fangled Valentine, a "talkacard," was selling fast in an F Street store yesterday. The square red-and-white card, with a lacy illustration, was centered with a glazed disc which can be played on a phonograph, emitting a properly sentimental jingle. Mildred Runyon, the salesgirl, said she'd sold 110 of these miniature records from 10 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. yesterday.

Many more feminine customers than masculine, she said, were letting this card speak their sentiments.

Mrs. Margaret Jones, at Brentano's, pointed out the predominance of old-fashioned lacy Valentines this season, even though 1941 is a stern year. She turned over one typical Valentine, with a printed explanation on the back, that it was copied after an 1848 model.

Madge Davis, a smiling brunette behind a downtown Western Union counter, was busy yesterday helping customers put their sentiments into winged words. They could choose among 31 form Valentines at a special bargain rate, or frame their own message at a rate only 10 cents higher. A Valentine "sing-ogram" to the tune of "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean" also is offered this year — with the message to be sung over the telephone in the city for which it is destined, or at a higher rate to be sung in person at the door by a messenger boy.

President Roosevelt's mail yesterday included an extra cargo of good wishes—he had between 200 and 300 Valentines to look over. When he has finished scanning them, it is expected that they will be sent to children in hospitals here.

Odd Jobs

Wrong Number? Maybe The Squirrels Cut In

Benjamin F. Lusby, cable trouble shooter for Washington's telephone company, carries on a perpetual feud with the District's squirrels.

Squirrels like to gnaw on telephone cables, and it is Lusby's job to see that cables are not gnawed upon—or otherwise impaired.

His biggest headache, however, occurs after a heavy rain, when water enters small breaks in the lead cables and shortcircuits the telephone wires. Then calls come in to the trouble switchboard and the cable detective goes to work.

A complicated "buzz mechanism" on the board is switched in, and by figuring the intensity of the buzz and the resistance per foot of the wire involved, the trouble can be located within a few feet of the break.

Lusby usually goes out with one of the company's three trouble trucks to the spot and the cable is either repaired or replaced. Occasionally, though rarely, a large cable containing from 1,400 to 4,200 wires must be spliced, each wire being tested and connected individually. "That," says the trouble shooter, "is some job!"

Cable troubles, ranging from shortcircuiting of individual wires to severing of whole cables by street-repair crews, average from four to eight daily. The worst day in the 29 years Lusby has been with the telephone company was last September 25.

On that day a severe storm broke cable poles and wet numerous cable wires until more than 60 repair trips were made. Lusby's 20-man crew stayed on the job from 8 a. m. until midnight.

The safest place to lay a cable, apparently, is under water. There are five lines running under the Anacostia and no trouble has been reported on any of them.

The trouble shooter comes from a long line of telephone men. His father was with the company and he joined it as a boy. He also has three brothers and four nephews who are telephone men. His job, Lusby says, is as exciting as they come. "There is always something new happening—like those squirrels."

New Municipal Center Won't Be Ready Till June

Washington's scattered District agencies will not move into the new $5,650,000 Municipal Center until June, it developed yesterday.

Even at that time, many of the important District bodies, including the Commissioners, engineering agencies and the sewer and water divisions will remain in the 37-year-old District Building.

Built with funds supplied by the Public Works Administration, the huge Municipal Center, the opening of which has been planned for April, will house the Police Department, Board of Public Welfare, Fire Department, Traffic and Vehicles Department, Parole Board, Community Center and Playground Department, City Refuse Division, Minimum Wage Board, Weights and Measures Division, main switchboard, Barber Board and Board of Cosmetology.

CELL BLOC IN MUNICIPAL CENTER

Assistant Engineer Commissioner John Person, who is in charge of the building operations, said early plans to have the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board and the Commission on Mental Health move into the new building have been abandoned.

The superstructure itself cost $3,600,000 and was built by the D. M. W. Construction Co., of New York. This phase of the work is due for completion about the end of next month or early in April. After this job is done the painters, telephone people, landscape workers and the moving companies will take over until June 1.

Court Demands 'Fair Play' From NLRB

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Feb. 13.—Asserting fair play required that hearings be conducted at a place convenient to both parties, The Sixth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals today denied the National Labor Relations Board an enforcement order against the Ann Arbor Press, of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Arthur J. Wiltse, president of the publishing firm who argued his case in person December 6, contended the NLRB was unfair in holding a hearing in Washington, D. C., because, he said, the company was "financially unable to make a proper defense to the matter . . . at such a great distance" from its home site.

The denial, Judge Elwood Hamilton's opinion declared, in no way prejudiced the right of the board to conduct a rehearing at Ann Arbor.

The opinion recounted that the board "urges on us that under . . . provisions of the (Wagner Labor) Act, it has the uncontrolled discretion to hold hearings at whatever point it deems proper within the United States and its Territories. To this we cannot agree. . . .

"It was not intended that those affected by the act should be penalized by being required to travel and transport witnesses unreasonable distances to attend hearings. . . .

"If the board had authority thus to proceed, it could have issued its citations to respondents to appear in St. Andrews, Maine or Fort Dick, Calif. No sensible rule . . . would support such an interpretation . . . and such a course would shortly bring a beneficent statute into disrepute."

The NLRB order, issued on complaint of the International Typographical Union, directed the firm to disestablish an independent employe association and bargain with the I. T. U.

D. C. Social Work Group to Meet At Luncheon

Joining a network of nearly 200 cities in the United States and Canada, the Community Chest-supported Social Service Exchange will unite with the Social Work Publicity Council today noon in the observance of "Universal Social Service Exchange Day."

Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan, lecturer on international affairs, will address the meeting, which will be a luncheon at 12:10 o'clock in the Press Club dining room of the National Press Building.

Mrs. Mary F. C. Leute, secretary of the local Social Service Exchange, will have on display a collection of exhibits from other cities, showing various means of interpretation used to bring the work of exchanges to the attention of citizens. The first Social Service Exchange day was initiated one year ago by Mrs. Leute. Following a plan suggested by her, nearly 200 other exchanges in cities of the United States, Canada, Alaska and Hawaii, celebrated the day for the first time last year, taking the opportunity to explain exchange functions through meetings, news stories, radio programs and printed literature.

Big U. S. Bombers Flying to Britain By Bermuda Route

Baltimore, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—A group of pilots and radiomen engaged in ferrying American warplanes to Great Britain disclosed here tonight that at least seven long-range consolidated patrol bombers have been flown from the San Diego (Calif.) plant to the British Isles with stops at Elizabeth City, N. C., and Bermuda.

The group—headed by Bernt Balchen, noted Norwegian aeronautical expert, and Clyde Pangborn, American ace—arrived here aboard the Bermuda Clipper of the Pan American Airways on a flight from Bermuda, presumably after participating in one of the flights.

Although none of the men would permit themselves to be quoted, they indicated that the planes, camouflaged and bearing the British insignia, are flown direct from San Diego to the United States Coast Guard station at Elizabeth City, N. C. After refueling, they are flown to Bermuda, thence to England. The Bermuda-England hop is between 3,500 and 4,000 miles.

U. S. Plane Lag Slows Canada's Pilot Training

Ottawa, Feb. 13 (AP).—A bottleneck has developed in the British Commonwealth air training plan through slow delivery of training planes from the United States and Britain, Air Minister C. G. Power said today.

Some classes may be several weeks late in graduation as a result, he said, but added that the difficulty is expected to be overcome within two months.

Also contributing to the delay is a shortage of instructors, Powers asserted, explaining that "we are not getting enough civilian instructors from the United States."

He attributed the delay in plane shipments from Britain to the acute shortage of shipping space on Atlantic routes.

"We shall be on very thin ice for aircraft for the next eight weeks," Power said.

Bad weather also was a handicap, in some cases, all planes being grounded for 15 days waiting for suitable weather, but time lost as a result of the weather has been made up, he added.

Power said Canada has not yet received any official offer to use air fields in the United States for regular R. C. A. F. training.

He recalled that President Roosevelt last year said young Canadians seeking instruction at civilian flying fields in the United States would be treated on the same basis as Americans, but the air minister pointed out such instruction hardly could be fitted into the R. C. A. F. training program.

District Guard Review Postponed For Two Weeks

Gen. Albert L. Cox, commander of the District National Guard, yesterday announced postponement of the review of Washington Guard units on the Ellipse Sunday.

The parade, called off because it was found impossible to make the necessary transportation arrangements for soldiers from Fort Meade to the Capital, will be held in about two weeks at Fort Meade, Gen. Cox said. At that time relatives and friends of the citizen-troopers will be able to inspect the Army camp and its facilities.

Know Your Meats!

Meaning of Federal Grading Is Explained by an Authority

By Bureau of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture.

"If you want to make sure of getting your money's worth out of what you spend for beef, veal, or lamb, it will pay you to know the Federal meat grades," says W. O. Fraser of the United States Department of Agriculture. Mr. Fraser heads up the meat-grading work of the Agricultural Marketing Service, the agency in charge of Federal meat grading.

"As surely as the butcher's scales show you how much meat you are getting," Mr. Fraser points out, "the purple grade stamp indicates the quality of the meat."

This purple grade stamp vouches for the fact that the meat has been judged for quality by competent officials. On a large cut of meat this stamp has the appearance of a narrow, pale purple ribbon. A closeup view shows the grade name printed clearly over and over, with A. M. S., the initials of the Agricultural Marketing Service, stamped occasionally. The grade stamp will appear on every retail cut.

Also purple, but not to be confused with the grade identification, is the round stamp used in Federal meat inspection. The round purple stamp shows that the meat has passed the inspection of other Federal experts who examined it for its wholesomeness as food.

Both stamps are of harmless vegetable coloring and need not be cut off before cooking.

"Of all our meat-grading services, we consider the grading of beef the most helpful," Mr. Fraser says. "For beef is perhaps the most difficult of all meats for the inexperienced shopper to judge. Also Americans eat much more beef than they do lamb or veal."

The homemaker who learns the beef grades and their position on the quality scale will also know the grades of lamb and veal, because they are identical. In descending order as to their quality, the five grades of beef sold on the butcher's block are—"prime," "choice," "good," "commercial" and "utility."

Ordinarily butchers will keep on hand only one of these grades. Less than 1 per cent of all beef produced can meet the requirements of "prime" grade. Consequently, most of this top grade goes to dining rooms and restaurants catering to a luxury trade.

"Choice," therefore, is the highest grade of beef available for the most discriminating retail trade. Choice meat has a moderately thick covering of white or creamy white fat. The lean meat is bright in appearance, well marbled with fat. "Marbling" is the way meat experts refer to the tiny flecks and streaks of fat scattered through the lean.

"Good" grade beef is used most widely by those who want quality at a moderate price. The fat covering on this beef is thinner, and the cut surface of the lean shows some marbling of fat.

"Commercial" beef has very little, if any, excess fat. The fat covering is thin and the cut lean meat shows practically no marbling or fat.

"Utility" beef has even less fat covering and rarely any fat marbling through the lean. This grade of beef is not satisfactory for oven roasting or broiling, but can be used to advantage in pot roasts, stews and similar dishes. There are other differences in the grades, too, but most of them can be observed only by expert meat graders.

Important to the consumer is the fact that the grade does not reflect nutritive values. Every one of the grades can be a good "buy" if the homemaker knows how to get the best out of it by proper cooking.

For instance, a top round or rump steak from a choice grade of beef will be tender enough and have enough fat on it to make an excellent piece to broil. But this same steak from a commercial grade would be better made up into a Swiss steak with some added moisture and a lid on the pan to keep in the steam and help soften the connective tissue. Both make equally nourishing food and both have good flavor. But it takes the right kind of cooking to bring out the best in each.

Federal meat grading started less than 15 years ago—at the request of meat distributors and producers. Every year, since 1927, it has expended. At first beef was the only meat graded. In 1930 lamb and veal were added. Pork is regularly not graded for the consumer trade, according to Mr. Fraser, because a large percentage of the pork produced in this country does not vary a lot in quality.

Today Government graded meat is available in most large cities and in many towns from coast to coast.

Mrs. HOMEMAKER did you read this?

If not, we cannot urge you too strongly to read and digest this concise resume of the increasingly important Federal Beef grading operations—and its effect upon the quality of the beef you serve at your table.

Mr. Bridges Again

Attorney General Jackson's move to reopen the Bridges case raises several grave questions of public policy. Only 14 months ago an extensive hearing before James M. Landis, sitting as trial examiner for the Immigration Service, led to the conclusion that Harry R. Bridges is not affiliated with the Communist Party. As a general principle decisions thus arrived at should not be disturbed. Continued harassment of an individual exonerated of charges may be equivalent to actual punishment.

Departure from the sound rule that an individual should be tried only once on a given charge is said to be justified in this case by the discovery of new evidence and passage of the Alien Registration Act of 1940. Mr. Jackson has not revealed the additional evidence assembled by the FBI; so judgment as to whether or not it is sufficient to warrant reopening the case must be withheld until the new hearing has been conducted. A more immediate and far-reaching question is raised by use of the Alien Registration Act as a basis for the new proceedings.

Before Mr. Landis made his report the Supreme Court had handed down a ruling which makes deportation in cases of this sort contingent upon a finding that the alien was a member of a subversive group at the time proceedings were instituted against him. The present law makes an alien deportable if he has been affiliated with an organization advocating overthrow of the Government by force and violence at any time in the past. In other words, the long arm of the law can reach out and deport an alien who belonged to a subversive group in his youth but has long since been a law-abiding resident of this country.

The Constitution clearly provides that "no bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed." This is generally understood to prohibit only the enactment of retroactive criminal statutes and not civil regulations as to the deportation of undesirable aliens. In effect, however, deportation for communistic affiliations is a severe penalty for a crime against the United States. Surely the Government ought to move cautiously in applying this punishment for old offenses, particularly in view of the fact that the Communist Party has never been officially outlawed.

Constant vigilance is essential to prevent Fifth Columnists and foreign agitators from carrying out any designs against our Government in this critical period. But care must be exercised to prevent this vigilance from degenerating into persecution of individuals or unpopular minorities. It is apparent that the Alien Registration Act throws upon the Department of Justice a tremendous responsibility to avoid abuses in its administration.

Treaty Power

Another of the Congressional powers which is said to be threatened by the lend-lease bill is the Senate's treaty power. Senator Lodge makes the charge. "The President," says the Constitution, "shall have power, by and with the consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur." Under the lend-lease bill the President, according to the Senator, would be able to enter into any alliances that might suit him, and alliances involve treaties.

Certainly the President intends that this country shall be in a close working understanding with the fighting democracies. It is the theory of the lend-lease bill that the Hitler menace must be defeated out of American resources which we propose to put at their disposition. But whether the working understanding leads to an alliance, and the alliance involves a treaty, is a question for the future. At any rate, nothing in the bill would dispense with the need for Senatorial ratification of any treaty that the President might seek to sign.

For Senate action in the matter of foreign relations is ex post facto. The initiative constitutionally belongs to the President—just as his power over the military forces is final. In both respects the President is seeking to persuade Congress to fortify his own powers. In respect of our democratic friends, he is in fact going back to Washington's attempt to act with Congress in the field of foreign relations. Washington sought to have the Senate play the part of an executive counsel during the negotiation of an Indian treaty. But the experiment went so badly that the first President stomped out of the Senate, and threatened never to return.

Anything that improves the relation between legislature and executive in the conduct of our foreign relations is to be commended. An effort to do so in connection with the working out of the lend-lease measure, indeed, is the object of the House amendment calling for a Presidential report every 90 days.

Willkie To G. O. P.

The consternation in the isolationist wing of the Republican Party over Wendell L. Willkie's blasts at isolationism will be deepened by his Lincoln Day address. Mr. Willkie is not content with a refutation of an ostrich attitude toward the irreducible and stubborn facts of our physical situation. He goes further, and shows how our isolation has been broken down in ideas and principles.

Yet there is nothing novel in this approach to the tie we have established with the rest of the world. Before communications made this world as crowded as Juvenal's Rome, before we became such a great nation that we couldn't live unto ourselves, our ideas had a universal context. Our Constitution owes not a little to the most profound thought upon historical and contemporary experience and to political thought in other countries. Montesquieu was only one of the philosophers who influenced the founding fathers. Down the years this free trade in ideas has helped to build up our culture, and the more zealously that the political state, resisting the shrinkage which has come from new methods of communication, has added bricks to its customs barriers, the more avidly have we given to and partaken of the world pool of ideas.

The universal oneness that's grown up in this regard could be illustrated endlessly. After World War I Einstein's impact was instantaneous throughout the world. The new psychology, seeded in Vienna, immediately began to sprout everywhere. Communism became a supranational force as soon as Lenin had given it a springboard in a governmental home and habitation. Fresh religions have moved like caravans picking up converts without regard to nationality. Civil wars nowadays cannot be detached from universal principles; as, for instance, the one in Spain, which was fought, if nonbelligerently, in all countries, and in none with more upsetting gusto than in the United States.

It was simply fatuous to expect that, aside from any physical contact, we could ever keep World War II from setting up a ferment inside America. The least reason for any such expectation is the melting pot. World War II is more than a war; it is a revolution on a universal scale, with rival ideas in almost cosmic combat, and one of those ideas happens to be the idea upon which this Nation was founded, namely, liberty. For this reason World War II has never been foreign from the beginning. As President Roosevelt said at the outset, he couldn't expect the people to be neutral in thought, and we have become increasingly unneutral. Our partisanship has been intensified as we have seen that our hope of retaining our liberty in this shrunken world hangs upon an issue which might either fortify or immensely contract "the area of freedom," as Mr. Willkie puts it. In short, this war, begun to counter a revolution, has developed into an international civil war.

In this light our main preoccupation must be to maintain the existing "area of freedom" for the sake of our own liberty. And to this end we must meet our emergencies not out of our prejudices, not out of the shadows of the past, not out of the carcasses of dead policies, but, as Lincoln did, out of the facts. That means that we must relate ourselves to the British struggle. Just as the "isolationist" Washington sought the French alliance in order to make America free, so we must develop relations with the British rampart of world liberty in order to keep America free. "When bad men combine," said Edmund Burke, "the good must associate; else they will fall one by one, an unpitied sacrifice in a contemptible struggle." For, if Germany creates its greater Europe, then we can forget Yorktown and Gettysburg, and start fighting for our existence as a free nation all over again. Mr. Willkie sounds a tocsin to the Republican Party which will be recognizable by freemen everywhere who keep their eyes front and their minds functioning.

Shut-Eye In Italy

During recent weeks spokesmen of the Fascist government have denied with ever-increasing vehemence reports circulated abroad that discontent is growing in Italy. If these individuals are to be believed, all is serene in the peninsula, the people are a unit behind Mussolini and the nation is confident of an ultimate triumph for the Axis, despite the defeats suffered by the Italian forces in the Balkans and in Africa.

It is impossible, however, to reconcile this official sangfroid regarding Italy's internal and external situation with the new restrictions prohibiting foreign diplomats from leaving Rome without express permission from the authorities. Such restraints on freedom of movement have long been imposed on nondiplomatic foreigners, including newspapermen. Extension of the ban to diplomats suggests that there is a great deal happening in Italy which Mussolini wishes to hide from the representatives of other nations who have the prerogative, not enjoyed by newspaper correspondents, of sending uncensored dispatches.

Italy's action also raises the question as to whether the time has not come for the United States to limit the prerogatives of diplomats accredited to this Nation to those vouchsafed our envoys by various foreign governments. There is no reason why the rule of reciprocity which lies at the bottom of an exchange of envoys should not work both ways. Certainly Ambassador Phillips will now find it difficult to perform one of his chief functions, i. e., to serve as the eyes and ears of this Nation in Italy, unless the rule just promulgated by the Fascist government is very liberally interpreted.

Playing With Fire

William L. Hutcheson, president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, has officially approved a strike which is delaying work on a naval station housing project in the suburbs of Miami. Asked if this walkout does not run counter to the "no strike" policy recently indorsed by the A. F. of L. building trades unions, Mr. Hutcheson said it had been understood that "local conditions would be recognized." The "local condition" in this case is the refusal of the carpenters to work with nonunion men. They also declined to delay their walkout until a Defense Commission mediator arrived.

Of course the union, which claims a monopoly on this defense work, requires initiation fees from carpenters thus forced to join it. In some places the levy has amounted to as much as $300. Now Mr. Hutcheson has magnanimously decreed that $50 shall be the maximum sum demanded from carpenters employed on defense projects. Evidently he thinks that his organization is dealing most generously with nonunion job seekers by making this concession. But to the penniless even $50 is a heavy exaction.

Initiation fees are reasonable in their place, but as this system is working out it is utterly indefensible. President Green of the A. F. of L. has been assuring the public that his organization will cooperate 100 per cent with the Government to speed the defense program. He has good cause to feel not only embarrassed but alarmed by the attitude of Mr. Hutcheson, one of his chief lieutenants and a vice president of the A. F. of L. For the American people will not long tolerate a system which permits union labor to hold up emergency defense work in order to enforce its demands for a closed shop. Nor will they long tolerate the exaction of arbitrarily assessed fees by labor unions as a condition precedent to work on defense projects. Mr. Hutcheson is playing with fire when he encourages resort to strikes as a means of compelling every defense worker to pay union dues. If everybody has to join a union in order to secure work of this sort, union fees will have to be regulated by the Government and the right of any union to delay defense projects will have to be sharply curtailed.

Yours, With Flowers

Here we are, dearest reader, all in the morn betime awaiting on your doormat beside the morning milk, to be your Valentine. Possibly you'd prefer to have us put all this ardent affection we have for you into verse—say, a pretty little triolet. Well, as the fellow said when he was summoned for jury duty, no harm trying.

With the love of The Washington Post
(Published every day in the year)
We offer always the best and most—
Plus the love of The Washington Post—
Editorials, poems, a host
Of great columnists. Think of it, dear!
Plus the love of The Washington Post!
(Published every day in the year).

Of course, that leaves a great deal unsaid—no mention, for instance, of the five big news services, or the twenty-four pages of comics and the complete novel every Sunday. Nothing about Shirley Povich or Mary Haworth or the Federal Diary. But, after all, you can cover only just so much ground in a triolet. Maybe, at that, it would have been better to have attempted a sonnet or perhaps a rondel, but it's too late now.

Anyhow, as long as you get the general idea, which is that we're simply crazy about having you for our very own subscriber, we're satisfied.

BUT I WAS YOUNG

I said, "Tis more than flesh can stand."
I said, "I'll lay me down and die."
The dead leaves darkened all the land,
The sorry clouds assailed the sky.

I said, when winter chilled the bone,
When dreary dawns were sad to see,
"My heart's as heavy as a stone;
My love is like a winter tree."

I said, "With death I'll lay me down."
But spring came back with bloom and bird,
And I went whistling into town . . .
A pretty maid my whistling heard.

I said, when sorrow laid me low,
"My love is like an ended song."
But I was young. I lived to know
That spring returns, and I was wrong.

Possibilities Of Peace

The once-respected word "peace" has lately fallen into disgrace, and those of our good citizens who now timidly mention that word are exposed to some sort of suspicion of disloyalty or even of sinister motives.

I remember that Woodrow Wilson, in his prewar Administration, called for "peace without victory," and many thoughtful persons now believe that the complete victory obtained by England and France over Germany in the last war injected into the Versailles Treaty certain unreasonable elements that brought about its failure as a permanent settlement of world affairs, particularly as that treaty furnished Hitler with an issue by which he climbed steadily to power through the popular vote of the German people.

Contrariwise, the present Administration has adopted "no appeasement" as its slogan, which means that nothing short of a dictated peace on behalf of the British Empire will satisfy. This has the effect of shutting the door against any gestures looking toward a negotiated peace in settlement of the affairs of Europe. I feel that the door to peace should be kept open and that the national defense and the quest for peace should go hand in hand, and abreast. No other course seems to be consistent with what we like to boast of as our Christian civilization.

Tribute To Greatness

In paying tribute to Abraham Lincoln, we could very well reread his beautiful eulogy on George Washington and realize that a similar tribute could be given to Lincoln, inasmuch as he, too, was mighty in the cause of liberty and in moral reformation. Following is his tribute to the first President of our country:

"Today is the 110th anniversary of the birth of Washington. We are met to celebrate this day. Washington is the mightiest name on earth; long since mightiest in the cause of civil liberty; still mightiest in moral reformation. On that name no eulogy is expected. It cannot be. To add brightness to the sun or glory to the name of Washington is alike impossible. Let none attempt it. In solemn awe let us pronounce that name; and in its naked, deathless, splendor leave it shining on."

Letter From England

It has frequently been my great privilege to meet American visitors who were looking over our historic buildings and churches and it has been a great pleasure to see the intense interest they have evinced in these priceless treasures.

I feel sure, therefore, that the wicked and wanton destruction of so many lovely things in the City of London will grieve many inhabitants of the United States and will arouse the same bitter contempt and anger that we Londoners feel for a race like the Germans that delights in the destruction of ancient historic and beautiful things.

That fine old Middle Temple Hall where Queen Elizabeth saw Shakespeare act in one of his own plays was bombed, and the great oak screen carved by Flemish artists 500 years ago has been destroyed. Seven hundred years ago the Augustinian friars came to London and built a great church. Until a few weeks ago the nave of that fine old edifice delighted the visitor by its grandeur. Its length was greater than that of Exeter Cathedral and its width more than that of Ely. German bombs have so destroyed it that not a pillar or arch stands.

Our great Guildhall has gone—that great hall where countless banquets to the great ones of the earth have been given by successive Lord Mayors. The fine church of St. Lawrence Jewry—the most costly of Wren's great creations, with its wealth of Grinling Gibbons carving, its great Lord Mayor's pew and its vestry, perhaps the loveliest room in the city—has shared the fate of the Guildhall. The beautiful old medieval church of St. Giles Cripplegate, where Milton was buried and Cromwell married, with its churchyard high above the paths—for countless victims of the great plague lie buried there—is wrecked. Its lovely carillon will no longer fill the air with its joyous music. It escaped the great fire of 1666, but has perished beneath the fire bombs of the German aviator.

You all do know St. Clements Danes, with its delightful and richly decorated ceiling and gallery pew where Dr. Johnson worshiped. Its peal of bells are immortalized in the nursery rhyme:

"Oranges and lemons,
Bells of St. Clements"

The walls and steeple stand, but the interior is a terrible wreck.

In Fleet Street stands one of Wren's most beautiful creations—St. Bride's steeple—described as a "madrigal in stone," but the body of the church is burnt out. For 1,200 years All Hallow Barkins has been in being—it was rebuilt in the fifteenth century. The beauty of its interior was enhanced by the fine brasses, the lovely metal work and delightful carving. Like St. Giles, it escaped the great fire of 1666 to fall a victim now. The Church of the Grey Friars in Newgate Street—another Wren creation—had a long history. It took the place of the old medieval church where lie buried Queen Margaret, wife of Edward I; Queen Isabella, wife of Edward II, and their daughter, the Queen of Scotland. It is yet another victim.

But the terrible list of Hun damage to our choice and delightful churches is a long one. Many stand battered and mauled—a sad sight to us Londoners, as it would be to all American visitors could they see them.

Improved Personnel "The Master Key"

Under the title, "The Master Key," Walter Lippmann has given us an excellent resume of the numerous military prophecies that have turned out to be wrong in the past year. But he is not wholly correct in his suggestion that sea power is "the master key." Sea power does not explain the magnificent resistance of the Finns, the quick collapse of the Allied defenses in the west, the success of the blitzkrieg, the success of the Greek mountaineers, nor the land success of the British troops in Africa.

Briefly, the failure of these prophecies is due to the fact that not everyone can think fast enough to succeed in a fast-moving kind of war. Not only is the blitzkrieg itself too fast moving for many men, but the same is true of the critical action at the Maastricht Bridge, at Fort Eben-Emael, and in the wooded hills east of Sedan. The Germans have psychological tests for selecting officers whose minds work well under stress conditions. These handle the training of the men in such a way as to select their own kind for what they consider their best organizations—the men who can put the blitz in blitzkrieg.

(In Finland, in the mountains of Greece and in the rural parts of a new country, such as Australia and New Zealand, the nature of the life is such that the men who succeed are the ones who can think fast and effectively when they are excited. The normal life in Italy has the opposite tendency, while in Russia there has been an artificial selection, with a systematic weeding out, over a period of 20 years, of the very men they need most to fight a modern war.

For instance, Russia invented parachute troops, but could not use them successfully in the Finnish campaign. Germany, on the other hand, was very successful with them. The difference lies entirely in the men and the changes in tactics the improvement in personnel made possible. The Germans jump from low altitudes, make delayed openings, thereby getting down unshot, and when they land they go into action fast. Russians can't do that. They have to open high and come down slowly, and even then think they are doing well in maneuvers if they have "only 20 per cent casualties."

Sea power is important simply because the speed of action at sea has not changed since the last war. The kind of men who made good then can make good now. Likewise, there has been no change in the type of men required for the air service, and the Allies, and America, know as much as Germany does about selecting these men. It is only in land warfare that Germany has the advantage, and this is chiefly the result of building a new army in the past 20 years, adapted to modern war and unhampered by men who made good in the trenches, but who can't think fast enough for a blitzkrieg.

This same thing happened 1,500 years ago, after the barbarians got saddles. For saddled cavalry could knock the Roman legions down, much as the blitzkrieg broke the French lines. The barbarian tribes had a combined population of hardly a million. The Roman Empire had a population of many millions. But they conquered it and divided it, and set themselves up as a military aristocracy that kept its privileges through a thousand years. They could not have done this if their style of fighting had been something anybody could learn—if peasants could have stolen horses and armor and used them as well as the knights.

But sea-fed Constantinople remained Roman and civilized through all of these thousand years. And in this also history seems likely to repeat itself.

It is also interesting to note in the present war that hardly any of the weapons Germany is using so effectively have been developed in Nazi Germany. Only such relatively simple things as magnetic mines and accompanying guns are new. Everything else is either the same as in the last war or has been improved to its present state in England and America, and merely copied by the Germans. This is an inherent weakness in their new order and comes from the fact that the men who are best at using them do not understand each other very well. In any social order that does not protect the rights of minorities, one kind or the other is bound to be in the doghouse, and its efficiency seriously hampered.

The Post Impressionist

Where There's A Will

If you come down to facts and figures, you will have to admit that youth has its own peculiar economic problems. After all, nothing in the world is really free. One sends box tops and soap wrappers back to the factory and in return receives all sorts of wonderful gifts—model airplanes, rings, badges, decoding devices, and pictures declared to be suitable for framing. The only catch is that a dime, and sometimes even a quarter, is usually required presumably to cover mailing charges. And when one's allowance is 10 cents a week—well, it takes quite a bit of figuring.

JUST NOW, young Donald has his heart set on a pair of aviator's goggles, which are being offered upon proof (by the indisputable evidence of two box tops) that he has consumed at least two packages of a certain cereal. The goggles are large and impressive, trimmed with nickel and edged with fur, and undoubtedly worth much more than the quarter which will buy them. Of late, Donnie has taken to mirror-gazing, and I am certain that vanity is not the cause: He is seeing, not a blue-eyed, shock-headed 7-year-old, but the intrepid master of the air, clipping terse commands to his underlings as he adjusts his goggles and climbs into his swift two seater.

Tomorrow morning we shall finish the second box of cereal, and the top will join its fellow in the envelope, already addressed and stamped. Fifteen cents is also in the envelope, and although Saturday's allowance is almost a week away Donnie wears an air of confidence. Perhaps I should give him the final dime tomorrow, but I hesitate to impair the spirit of independence we are trying to build up. He has some plan afoot, and we are curious; but perhaps it is wiser not to interfere.

THERE WAS THE CASE of the pup tent, for instance. Last summer one of the little boys in our block had one given to him on his birthday, and, from that time on, his position in the neighborhood was assured. The boys flocked to his back yard to play soldier and explorer, and even the girls, usually above showing interest in masculine affairs, hovered about enviously. A pup tent, it seemed, was the juvenile equivalent of a write-up in Who's Who and a place in the Social Register.

Donnie and Mary began pooling their funds immediately, and by midsummer only 35 cents was lacking for the purchase price of an identical tent. Self-abnegation became a habit. If offered ice cream, they declared that they would rather have the nickel, if we pleased. It was hard on us, for what parents want to sip cool sodas while their children stand by looking hot and hungry?

It was with relief, therefore, that I found that they were planning a lemonade sale to secure the tent. I promised to furnish lemons, paper cups and straws, and even offered to make cookies as an added attraction. The owner of the original tent was gratifyingly cooperative, and tendered his assistance in return for free lemonade.

BY MID-MORNING on the day of the sale, the back yard was seething with activity. Shouts punctuated the steady banging of the hammer as two orange crates were nailed together to make a passable counter. Someone brought a can of orchid enamel (the quick drying kind, but not quick enough). A sign, painted in wavering black letters, proclaimed:

Thirsty Drinks—5 cents
Cookies Free

The sale was scheduled to start at 3 in the afternoon—a shrewd stroke of timing. There was no sense in trying to compete with the ice cream wagon which passed daily at 4. It was a minor tragedy that, for once, the wagon came by early.

From the living room windows I watched the two disconsolate little figures standing behind their counter, waiting for customers who did not appear. Their drooping shoulders lifted as a group of children approached. Gloom fell once more when it was discovered that they had all spent their money for ice cream. Suddenly Mary sprang to life. "Let's give them a glass!"

DONNIE CAUGHT on at once. "You'll have to advertise for us—loud," he warned as he filled the cups. The barkers scattered and walked up and down the street calling, "Lemonade! Good Lemonade! A nickel a glass!" A crowd gathered.

"Want me to advertise for you?" "Want me?" "And me?" Soon the air was filled with childish voices singing the praises of the very fine lemonade. However, only 10 cents was taken in during the entire afternoon, and when the buyers found that they could have had their drinks free, they wanted their money back. The tent seemed far away indeed.

It was almost immediatedly afterward, however, that Donnie developed the distressing habit of sucking his thumb—appalling for a child his age. We spoke to him sharply, but when our heads were turned, his hand went back to his mouth. On the evening of the third day, he announced in a relieved tone, "I think I've got it loose enough now. My tooth, I mean." And to our horror, it was. It was extracted with a string and put under his pillow to be transformed in some miraculous fashion into a shining new quarter.

THAT WAS months ago, and at last Donnie has grown a replacement. All of which brings me back to my problem. Shall I give him the dime, or shall I not?

On The Record

Hitler's Lost War—IV

NOW LET US conclude this argument: That Hitler has lost the war. Not that Germany has lost it; so far we cannot go. The greatest land power on the continent of Europe, armed as no power has ever been in history, contends with the world's greatest sea power for an outcome that is still questionable.

THOMPSON

But the cancer corroding Germany's strategy is Hitlerism itself.

It is being daily proven that Hitlerism is not a philosophy with which a great empire can be founded. It flouts every principle of empire founding. Hitler cannot win the war because he cannot make a peace. He cannot make a peace because he cannot limit and define his aims. His original aims—the conquest of France as a prelude to the conquest of Russia—and the founding of a Reich from the Urals to the Channel went on the scrap heap with the Russian-German pact and the British resistance.

For that program Hitler had a strategy. Make England an ally or keep her out of the war. Defeat France and then rally a Nazified France against Bolshevism.

For that program Hitler had both a revolutionary strategy—the war against communism—and a military strategy.

For his present situation he has neither a military nor a revolutionary strategy. He cannot stop now short of attempting to conquer the whole world. He cannot stop now at all. For he is forced to contest the world for the oceans as well as the land.

IT IS A principle of politics as old as history and recognized by every political philosopher from Machiavelli to Hitler himself that there are only two ways to create and hold an empire—by force, or by mutual interest. An empire created purely by force, without any consideration for mutual interest, can only be held by force.

Highly developed and civilized nations or states can only be held down by force, if their institutions are obliterated, their intelligentsia exterminated, their heavy industry taken over or demobilized and their societies turned into "backward peoples."

In order to hold Europe, for the long pull, Hitler must do all of this. He must treat the whole of Europe as he has treated Poland. He must turn the whole of Europe into a colony.

But if he turns the whole of Europe into a colony, he has inherited the worst liability imaginable. For it is useless as a colony. He will have made a war to create a desert. He will have created an empire of starvation at his very gates. Every victory will be Pyrrhic.

HITLER cannot hold Europe by mutual interest, because his basic philosophy excludes the idea of mutual interest. A continental Europe in which Germany, the most numerous nation, is prima inter pares, supreme among equals, could be a constructive Germanic idea. But the Nazi philosophy excludes the idea of racial or national equality. The result is that Hitler is, by definition, the enemy of every European nation—including his own.

HE CANNOT spread national socialism by the sword. The very idea is a contradiction in terms. It is gargantuanly idiotic.

National revolutions can be spread by the sword only when the sword is used to free nations, not to enslave them! French swords enlisted to aid the American Revolution, because it was in the interests of France at that time to defeat George III. France and America had a common cause. The French harried and diverted Britain through us. We welcomed the aid and, our revolution being successful, the French withdrew.

Outside intervention will only be welcomed by a nation in its own fight for freedom against another outside oppressor or, in case of civil strife within a nation, outside intervention may be welcomed by one side or the other.

But even in the latter case, the intervening nation must withdraw when the struggle is decided. In the last years Italy intervened in Spain on the side of Franco and has won his lasting gratitude. But Italy, having helped secure the victory for Franco, withdrew from Spain. Germany also intervened, but the whole support for Franco was a fake from the beginning. Hitler wanted bases in Spain; he wanted economic control in Spain. He got them, and he is now as much the enemy of Spain as he is of every other European country. And Franco knows it, if he knows anything at all. One cannot possibly be grateful to an ally who remains as a master!

Hitler tries to stir up civil strife inside nations for the purpose of intervening, and staying. The whole world has caught onto this by now.

THIS WAR has also demonstrated that the Communist revolution cannot be spread by the sword. Stalin learned that in Finland. Communism made headway in Asia when it arrayed itself on the side of nations seeking to rid themselves of a foreign yoke—in China, for instance, and in India. But it failed utterly, as a revolution, in Finland. Not even the Finnish Communists rallied to Stalin's banner. For even the Finnish Communists wanted Finnish communism, not Russian communism.

Yet communism had a much more logical theory. It was antinational, to start with. The moment it became nationalist it failed. But national socialism is based on the very principle of nationalism, and the moment it becomes international it fails.

So Hitler has not even been able to use Austrian Nazis in Austria! He immediately had to replace them with Nazis from the Reich. Seyss-Inquart, an Austrian Nazi, today rules Holland. Josef Buerkel, a Reich Nazi, from the Saar, rules Austria.

HITLER has tried to combine national socialism with the military imperialism of Wilhelm II. He can't. Nobody could. They don't go together. They cancel each other. Otto Strasser, Gregor Strasser and Capt. Roehm all knew this. They were genuine national socialists, or national bolshevists. He killed them. The reason for the purge was the internal struggle between the Nazi Party and the German army. Hitler elected to keep both worlds by purging both the party and the army. But he could not eradicate an essential conflict by shooting some three hundred or more persons full of holes.

He is still on the horns of the old dilemma. If he wants a "New Order" in Europe, or any order at all, he has either got to crush Europe and establish an exclusive German monopoly, maintained forever by occupation and eating away the very substance of Germany herself, or he has got to purge his whole party out of existence and shoot himself, that a Germany may arise capable of living as an equal among equals in European civilization.

This he is not likely to do, so others must do it for Europe and for Germany.

ALL THIS is what Hermann Rauschning meant when he called naziism "the revolution of nihilism." Combining in itself absolutely contradictory elements, it is incapable of anything except destruction.

It can wage war, but it cannot create any kind of peace.

It cannot create a United States of Europe because it cannot recreate freedom and equality, without which any European federation is impossible. It has only bayonets to sit down on, and Talleyrand remarked that that was the one thing no one could do with bayonets.

So it won't sit down. Hitler will go on and on because that is all he can do. He cannot draw a single boundary and say: Here I stop. Because if he does, all the resentment of Europe will concentrate beyond that boundary. He is trying to spread a secular religion which is a Germanic racial religion, to which he cannot convert a single non-German soul.

And he knows it. So does Europe. There are no pro-Nazis left in Europe outside Germany except a few ambitious individuals who can use the German sword to elevate themselves to a power they otherwise could never have. But no one yet has been able to found an empire on traitors. The North could not even do it in the South in the days of carpetbaggers.

The last Nazi carpetbaggers who still do not see reality are in this country, their minds wearing long gray beards, however much they may be vaporing about the wave of the future. If Hitlerism is the wave of the future, then the wave of the future is chaos. And to win chaos is not to win either a war or a revolution.

Questions In A Crisis

I am willing to defend the American system, but must it include the preservation of the drugstore lunch?

I don't mind going "all-out" to keep the American system intact, but must this include cafe society, Hollywood morals and radio comics who bring their own applause?

I am for saving the land of the free, but does this take in the fake auction room proprietors, the microphone addicts, the spotlight worshipers, the fellow who blocks subway entrances, and the newspaper columnists who know all the answers and have no patience with Americans who can't use a typewriter?

I want to see everything done to keep this country from all harm, but must I take in road hogs, larcenous politicians, masters of ceremonies who get their material from a drainpipe, and night club entertainers whose own mothers must be ashamed of the way they turned out?

I think it a duty to fight for America, but I wonder if I ought to include the man who thought up the idea of radios in taxicabs, and the hotel proprietors who charge twice as much for a phone call as it costs from a booth.

I subscribe to the Save America crusade, but is there any way to forget the legislators who make possible the divorce-while-you-wait, the man who slices the chicken for sandwiches so thin, and the select cafe entertainer who preserves his reputation for smut by never telling a story that wouldn't make a skunk wince?

I am all for preserving the American Way of Life, but must I regard as an essential part of it the originator of the sizzling platter, the man who thought up the Zombie cocktail, and the radio advertisers who try to convince the simple public that a lollipop is the staff of life?

I am all for the grand old red, white and blue but can't it be unrolled so that the publicity hounds, the salacious magazine publishers, the racketeers, the smart Alecks and the candid camera fiends can be shaken out of its sheltering folds?

I am for my country when it's right and my country when it's wrong, but am I wrong in holding that too much concern for the boys who think that all America needs is more personal photography is not right?

I am willing to lay down my life for my country, but am I petty in feeling qualms about doing it for bigger daily doubles, hotter orchestras and the word "Nuts" scrawled across the Constitution, the code of good manners, the book of ethics, the Bill of Rights, the traditions of American life and the "Slow Down. School Zone" signs?

Huh?

I'm just asking.

The Hitch

For a month now a Minneapolis factory has been feeding its workers vitamins. The workers say it has kept them feeling very well and quite peppy. But there will be trouble soon. We can imagine a worker feeling so happy and contented, after a sufficient number of vitamin pills, that he finally revolts, throws a pill to the factory floor and delivers this ultimatum to the employer: "You can't make me feel as contented as all this with so little trouble!"

England is having a boom in second-hand cars. The ultimate in minor worries over there must be whether there is a scratch on a fender or not.

A substitute for cork has been found. Is it better than the metal cap?

The Postwar World

By Ernest K. Lindley

The Lend-Lease Bill And Future Peace

ONE POINT made by Wendell Willkie deserves greater attention. If the British win, with our aid, we can exert great influence on the terms of the peace.

Willkie opened up this subject by asserting, in his prepared statement for the Foreign Relations Committee, that "if Britain prevails, the enslaved democracies of Europe will revive." Senators Gillette and Reynolds questioned him rather skeptically, especially about the nations absorbed by Russia. Willkie would not discuss those nations specifically. But he declared emphatically that if Britain wins we can determine whether or not the suppressed democracies revive.

LINDLEY

Willkie said: "I do not believe England can prevail without effective aid from America. If America gives that effective aid, then America will have the power to determine whether the captured democracies of Europe survive. And, in my judgment, the American public sentiment will require that they survive."

THE SAME REASONING was implicit in President Roosevelt's message to Congress on January 6. There he set forth the "four essential freedoms" on which the world should be founded—freedom of speech, freedom to worship as one pleases, freedom from economic want, and freedom from fear of aggression. The President asserted that this was "no vision of a distant millenium" but was "a definite basis for a kind of world attainable in our own time and generation."

Mrs. Roosevelt criticized in her column the members of Congress who did not applaud this passage, identifying them as Republicans. This statement by the President was disquieting to many—not only isolationists and not only Republicans. None would have dissented or hung back if the President had said that his four freedoms were desirable for the whole world. But he seemed to be assigning to us the prodigious task of establishing and maintaining such an order all over the globe.

Certainly the President did not intend to propose that the United States should by armed force overthrow every national regime which does not protect these essential human freedoms. His meaning, as it was interpreted by those who have discussed the question with him, was that if the British prevail and the Nazi system is destroyed, the main pattern of the world will be one in which those freedoms can and will prevail.

IF THE AXIS is crushed by the power of the democratic states, the Nazi-Fascist-Communist concept will be discredited. In time the lesser dictators will fall, too.

Willkie implied that if the Nazis go down, Stalin's regime also would be thrown back. Probably he would not make a definite prophecy as to this. But Willkie certainly rejects the thesis that if the British prevail the beneficiary on the European continent will be communism.

The President and Willkie both believe that the British Commonwealth, backed by us, and by the aspirations of the conquered peoples of Western Europe, can set for the whole world a democratic pattern. Both believe that we can do this without going to war ourselves, if we give the British prompt and effective aid. And both make it plain that the United States intends to play a positive and strong role in laying the main structure of the postwar world.

In World War I, one of the arguments for our entering, urged upon President Wilson by Col. House and others, was that only by becoming a belligerent could we get a seat at the peace table. Wilson interested himself not only in the general terms of peace, but in the details of political boundaries on the continent of Europe.

Roosevelt has evinced no interest in details. Even if we were invited, it is doubtful whether it would be to our interest to go too far into details. Roosevelt's interest, and the true interest of the country, is in the general character of the postwar world.

EVEN AS A REAL neutral during the war we could influence the peace settlement—if the British won. Our economic strength is immense, and our military strength is rapidly increasing.

But the British almost certainly cannot win without aid from us. And both the President and Willkie see that as we give effective aid our control over British policy increases. We are already the economic arsenal of democracy, and rapidly are becoming the military and naval arsenal as well.

As a nonbelligerent partner of the British Commonwealth, our influence over British policy, both now and in the postwar period, if the British win, will be far greater than if we had remained neutral and sold munitions only on a commercial basis.

The lend-lease bill strengthens materially the diplomatic hand of the President—and therefore of the United States. If this diplomatic power is skillfully employed, as it can be by a President of Roosevelt's experience and vision, it will go far toward assuring that, if the British win, the terms of peace will not be drawn with narrow reference to British interests, but will conform to the larger interests of the United States.

Fair Enough

"Senegalese Soldier"

THIS LITTLE colored kid was a one-man league of nations. He had on French pants, a Foreign Legion blouse and an old American campaign hat, and he was just all odds and ends, and, moreover, he was in a very practical and dangerous sense of the term, a deserter from the French army. He had just got tired of the French army and, in a very informal way, had resigned to accept a better connection.

As he told the story, he had never intended to join the French army, anyway. What really happened was that the French army Anschlussed him.

Back in Norfolk one day he went down to a ship to see a friend who had found a good job as messboy on a cargo boat, and the friend talked him into going for a boat ride to Europe, which seemed a good idea at the time. But when the ship docked in France and he went ashore to see the sights, some Frenchmen grabbed him and pushed him into a soldier's suit, and the next thing he knew he was a Senegalese soldier.

It took him a long time to learn enough language to ask his way around, and the manners and social customs of his comrades offended him terribly, but there was nothing he could do about it, and then one day he was up in line facing the Germans around Verdun.

THERE ARE many standardized stories of the American colored boy who fell in with the Senegalese or fell out with them, but this boy was real and he told his own story. He had been in several actions and never had been hit, but one winter day several of his toes froze, so they sent him back down, and soon, to his alarm, he was all well again and about to be sent back.

It was just then that the Americans moved into the region to start training and organizing, and this kid resigned from the French army. He attached himself to an American major as servant, and the major gave him some shoes and underwear and a place to sleep and plenty to eat, and he was very happy, except that occasionally, when he was at all careless in his cleaning and sweeping the major would say, "Well, I can see that you don't care about this man's army, so maybe I had better send you back to your outfit."

That would straighten him up.

He said soldiering was completely out of his line, anyway, and, although he hadn't ever been much afraid in the trenches, one thing did just turn him inside out. That was the way those Senegalese would use the bayonet. He didn't mind shooting at those German boys and a man could get used to shells, but to run up to a man and stick him with a bayonet was something he simply couldn't do and could hardly bear to see it done.

"I'm a houseboy," he said. "Answer doorbells, mow the lawn, wait table, anything like that. I was a houseboy back in Norfolk until I went for that steamboat ride. I never did aim to stick anybody with a bayonet."

I RETAINED a mental movie, with sound, in color, of the soft voice saying that he was a houseboy, his ragbag uniform, his fear of displeasing the major, who might send him back to the French army, where some officer might not be feeling too hot that day, and might have him court-martialed and shot for desertion. The major himself probably would have been guilty of something for aiding, abetting and harboring, but, then, apparently, he had no intention of turning the kid back to the French and was just going to gentle him along and possibly enlist him in the American Army although at this time he was just a guest, so to speak.

The major is a heap of general now with three stars on his flag the same being Lieut. Gen. Hugh Drum, and it was a mistake to ask him what had become of the little deserter.

Many a story is spoiled by checking with those who are concerned, and that is what happened to this one. Because Gen. Drum said that to the best of his recollection, which is very sharp, he had never even heard of the little colored houseboy from Norfolk.

Men Without Arms

By Barnet Nover

The Problem Of Invading Europe

NO PASSAGE in Winston Churchill's magnificent radio address of February 9 attracted more attention in this country than his statement that: "We do not need the gallant armies which are forming throughout the American Union. We do not need them this year, nor the next year, nor any year that I can foresee." This thought he repeated in his peroration. "Give us the tools," he said, "and we will finish the job."

NOVER

Churchill happens to be a political realist of the first water. He knows that the all-but-universal American desire to help Britain is sicklied o'er with the fear that such aid may inevitably compel this Nation to send another A. E. F. to Europe. He must have realized, when he was preparing his speech, that a flat assertion from him that Great Britain does not need and will not need American troops to win the war would tend very considerably to reduce these fears and thus increase American readiness to speed the material assistance his country sorely needs.

But is Churchill's sanguine prediction justified? Can Britain win without large-scale military reinforcements from the United States?

THERE ARE THOSE who insist that Britain cannot win unless and until she smashes the German armies and that this cannot be done so long as she has only her limited force of between two and three million men to pit against a superbly trained and heavily mechanized German force several times that number. That is the viewpoint of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. It is the viewpoint of former Gov. Philip La Follette. It is the viewpoint of many others, military experts and laymen alike.

How much validity is there to that contention?

It is certainly as true now as it ever was that a nation cannot be regarded as defeated until its armed forces have been crushed to the point where they are no longer able or willing to continue the fight. In other words, Germany cannot be conquered unless and until the German Wehrmacht ceases to count as an active force. But there are various ways in which this may come about and defeat in the field is only one of them.

AN ARMY convinced that it can no longer win is an army fit for the scrap heap, no matter how great its size, how well trained or how adequately armed.

Applying this fact to the present situation this means that Great Britain's first task is to beat off any and all attacks that Hitler may launch against her even as the aerial assaults of August and September and October and November were beaten off. Yet this negative action cannot in itself produce a victory for the British, even though, from a long-range point of view, it may set the stage for such a victory by destroying the myth of Nazi invincibility, reducing German confidence in their armed forces and the confidence of these armed forces in themselves. And if, following the failure of a German all-out attack, the British are in a position, through American aid and otherwise, to carry the air war increasingly home to the Third Reich the disintegration of German morale would be accelerated. As this column has pointed out in the past, defeat for Hitler can in the first instance take the form simply of an absence of victory and the steadily diminishing possibility of victory.

BUT SUPPOSE we assume that German morale is weakened, but not destroyed, by the failure to bring Great Britain to her knees in short order. Suppose the German army continues loyal to the regime despite the setback or a succession of setbacks, what then? How, then, can Britain win in view of the fact that her forces are so outnumbered by those of the Reich?

One point to bear in mind is that the failure of a German all-out attack on Great Britain would not only have a weakening effect on the morale of Germans, but would also tend to strengthen the resistance to the Nazis of Europe's conquered peoples. Indeed, the very failure of Hitler to attack Britain in the months after the fall of France, and the brilliant victories won by the Greeks in the Balkans and the British in Africa have resulted in a decided increase in that spirit of resistance in Norway, Holland, France and elsewhere. To prevent the captive countries from rising in rebellion Germany would sooner or later have to increase her garrison and to that extent reduce forces she might conceivably have to throw into the field. Not even Germany has unlimited manpower.

FROM THE BRITISH point of view the technical problem she would have to face in invading the continent is much simpler than the problem which Germany would face in invading Great Britain. Germany has no seapower and across the Channel she faces not only Britain's naval might, but a nation whose coastline bristles with elaborate defenses and men capable of manning them. It would be impossible for Germany, without weakening her garrisons at vital points in the interior, to duplicate on Atlantic coastline of the continent what the British have done along the southern and eastern coast of England. When and if Great Britain reaches the point where she can take the offensive, the invasion of the continent not at one point but at a dozen or more points simultaneously might be feasible. And it would be feasible could the British be certain of a command of the air over the coast. They would then be in a position to break up German efforts to send reinforcements to invasion points.

Assuming that Great Britain can and will hold out indefinitely, not the least important asset she would ultimately have in the struggle against Germany would be the presense on European soil of the nucleus of a great expeditionary force. There are in the captive countries far more men trained in arms than the United States could train, let alone dispatch overseas, in years. But these Norwegians, Belgians, Netherlanders, Frenchmen are men without arms. Their arms have been taken away from them by the conquerors. Their rallying points have also been destroyed. An undefeated Britain would sooner or later be in a position to provide these individuals with a new rallying cry. Britain's need in that case would not be men, but weapons, not an overseas force, but a continuous and steadily increasing flow of overseas supplies.

In pleading for tools with which he believes victory can be won, Churchill was undoubtedly thinking of the immediate emergency which faces his nation. But he may also have had in mind the long-range possibility of placing weapons in the hands of Hitler's numerous enemies in Europe. Reinforcements for Britain's still phantom expeditionary force are already on the spot.

Ickes Points Out Defense May Need New Oil Pipelines

Secretary Ickes said yesterday that national defense authorities had raised the question whether present facilities were sufficient for an emergency supply of oil from the midcontinent fields to the Atlantic seaboard.

He said it might become necessary to install an oil pipeline from Louisiana to Norfolk, Va., built by private oil operators.

The Secretary called attention to a Bureau of Mines report that 1940 oil production totaled 1,351,000,000 barrels or 7 per cent more than in 1939.

While saying the increase did not now constitute a threat to underground reserves, Ickes added that it did indicate an ever increasing exploitation of oil reserves which one day might become serious. He charged that California and Illinois operators, particularly, were running "hog wild."

House Votes Funds For 2 Departments

The House yesterday voted a $1,146,394,496 appropriation for the Treasury and Postoffice Departments in the fiscal year beginning July 1, and sent the bill to the Senate.

It carried $62,193,150 for increased Coast Guard activities resulting from defense and neutrality patrol work. The fund would be used for new vessels, planes and equipment.

The Postoffice Department would get $842,064,311 and the Treasury, $304,330,185.

Goal Half Raised, Symphony Drive Extended

Its $107,600 goal half raised, volunteers pressing the campaign to assure the eleventh annual season of the National Symphony Orchestra yesterday decided to extend the drive for funds one week, through February 20.

"I cannot overemphasize the seriousness of the situation," Walter Bruce Howe, campaign chairman, asserted at a report luncheon in the Carlton Hotel. "After ten years of continuous growth, it appears that there is no alternative but to abandon the National Symphony if the full amount necessary to maintain it cannot be raised promptly.

"Only two things will save the orchestra now: Thousands more contributions, from nickels and dimes up, and immediate contributions. The time is too short to put off help; tomorrow we may have no orchestra."

Only 50.64 per cent of the goal, $54,590.13, was reported at yesterday's meeting. This amount represents 2,410 pledges, in contrast to the 9,884 pledges received last year.

Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor, declared, "The world is looking to America to keep the faith, not only to keep the faith of liberty and of freedom and the democratic way of life, but of the results of liberty, and freedom, and the democratic way of life—the highest results, the highest spiritual results."

"The world is looking to America to keep the faith of music and of the song, the faith which is, or should be, common to all nations and all peoples and creeds. Nearly alone among the great nations of this world, America is still able to sing without travail . . . and that is a blessing of which we should hold ourselves worthy."

Charles O'Connell, classical recordings director for RCA-Victor, who will be guest conductor with the National Symphony at Constitution Hall Sunday, said that critics have praised recordings by the Washington orchestra as being in a class with those of the Boston, National Broadcasting Co. and Philadelphia Orchestras.

Among other speakers at the luncheon were Brig. Gen. John N. Greeley, Admiral Emory Scott Land, C. G. Abbot, secretary of Smithsonian Institution; Augustus E. Giegengack, Public Printer, and Ray C. B. Brown, music editor of The Post.

WINNING OR LOSING

the fight in which the nation is engaged may depend on the answers to these questions:

- How much help—in terms of pounds, tons, parts, materials, ships, planes—must we give Britain?
- How can we get maximum production in minimum time?
- Who is causing the bottlenecks?
- Are manufacturers putting immediate profits before vitally necessary plant expansion?
- What mistakes did England and France make that we are repeating?
- What kind of a democracy will we ask the clerk—the miner—the storekeeper—the sharecropper—to defend?
- How can prices be controlled and inflation prevented?
- Can we afford to jettison social gains and civil liberties in our defense effort?
- How can we ACHIEVE UNITY?

J. S. Sherley Dies; Served 8 Terms in House

Former Representative J. Swagar Sherley, 69, Kentucky Democrat who was a close adviser of President Wilson during the World War and an attorney here since his retirement from Congress in 1919, died last night in Louisville, Ky., according to Associated Press

MR. SHERLEY

Mr. Sherley, a member of the House for eight consecutive terms, beginning in 1903, succumbed several days after an operation for a glandular ailment. He was known as the "watchdog of the Treasury" during the World War because of his post as chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and was a leading figure in legislating the draft bill.

In 1935, Mr. Sherley represented the United States in negotiations with Canada over damages involving the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. of British Columbia, whereby the United States was awarded $350,000. His knowledge of government finance and budgeting brought him close to President Roosevelt in 1932 and 1933.

He served as director of the division of finance for the United States Railroad Administration in 1919 and 1920. Then he resigned, to practice law here. A native of Louisville, Mr. Sherley earned his law degree at the University of Virginia. He made his home here at 2600 Upton Street Northwest.

Surviving are his wife, Mignon Critten Sherley; five children, Mrs. Olive Young, of Chestnut Hill, Pa.; Mrs. Mignon Acker, Swager, jr., Thomas and Marjorie, of Washington, and two sisters, Eva, of Honolulu, and Mrs. Fulton Mandeville, of Louisvillle.

$20 Gold Pieces Party Favors, Court Is Told

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 13.—A party at which champagne flowed freely and the guests received $20 gold pieces as souvenirs was described today at the trial of Wallace Groves of charges of defrauding the General Investment Co. of $750,000.

Monaie Lindley, former actress and divorced wife of Groves, chairman of the board of the Phoenix Securities Corporation, said the party which she described was held in Montreal in 1935 in celebration of the organization of the Er-War Corporation.

The Government contends that Groves indirectly controlled this corporation and used it in the alleged fraudulent transactions.

On trial with Groves are his brother, George, and four corporate defendants.

Miss Lindley said that Ernest Warriner, former president of the General Investment Corporation, a fugitive in the present action, attended the Montreal party.

Under questioning, she testified that Wallace Groves called Warriner "a cat's paw."

She explained later under cross-examination, "That's the way he alluded to him when he was not around."

The Government contends that Groves controlled the Er-War Corporation through Warriner.

Miss Lindley said she had heard her former husband and Warriner mention the name of Philip De Ronde, a fugitive who preceded Wallace Groves as executive head of Phoenix Securities. Federal agents have had reports De Ronde was in South America and others that he had joined the French Foreign Legion.

The witness said that an agreement had been entered into before she got her Reno divorce in 1939 under which she was paid "a single lump sum."

Miss Lindley conceded that she was dissatisfied with the amount paid her and said that she wanted "a better arrangement for the sake of our child," Wallace Lindley Groves.

Mrs. Graham Will Be Buried In Ohio Tomorrow

Funeral services will be held in Akron, Ohio, tomorrow for Mrs. Ray Austin Graham, jr., only daughter of Mrs. Harvey S. Firestone and the late tire manufacturer. She died Wednesday at Doctors Hospital here.

She died of thrombosis after an illness of only a few days. She and her husband, who is connected with the National Defense Commission, made their home in McLean, Va.

Mrs. Graham, the former Elizabeth Idabelle Firestone, 26, is survived by her husband and a son, Ray A. Graham 3d, who was born last June. Other survivors who were with her at the time of her death are her mother and five brothers, Harvey S. Firestone, jr., Russell A. Firestone, Leonard K. Firestone, Raymond C. Firestone and Roger S. Firestone.

After services at the Firestone family home, Harbell Manor, interment will be in the family burial plot in Columbiana (Ohio) Cemetery.

Mrs. Johnson's Rites To Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Josephine Johnson, 90, who retired ten years ago from Federal employment, will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow at Chambers funeral home, 1400 Chapin Street Northwest.

After 39 years' service, Mrs. Johnson retired as forewoman over the charwomen's force at the old City Postoffice. She died Wednesday at her home, 909 L Street Northwest. Burial will be in Prospect Hill Cemetery. She is survived by a son, William F. Johnson.

Ladaie Finally Loses After Winning Air Race With Death

By the Associated Press

Monterey, Calif., Feb. 13.—The aging heart of Laddie could stand no more today, and the dog whose grief touched a Nation sighed and died.

The one-man airedale, left on a Chanute, Kans., farm, when the Army called his master, Private Everett Scott, lost interest in life and refused to eat. He was reunited with his master four days ago after a 2,000-mile airplane race with death.

He died at the Army veterinary hospital, in the cushioned box he had left but briefly for a few wobbly steps. Capt. R. O. Scott, assistant to the chief veterinarian at nearby Fort Ord, was with him.

Outside was Winkey, a huge St. Bernard, gnawing a bone. Transfusions of Winkey's blood had kept Laddie alive the last few days. In fact, it appeared for a time that aid from Winkey and others of the 75 canine mascots at the fort might save Laddie's life.

Scott was on duty at Fort Ord when his friend died. He was called to headquarters.

"Laddie died," an officer told him. Scott was silent for a moment.

"I'm sorry to hear it," he said slowly. "It's pretty tough to lose an old and faithful friend." He was given the rest of the day off.

Company G of the Seventeenth Infantry, to which Scott is attached, will hold a simple funeral for the old dog.

A failing heart, old-age and anemia were given as causes of laddie's death.

A.M.A. Letters Offered As Proof of Conspiracy

Government Calls 25 Employes and Former Association Aides to Identify Mass of Material

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

The United States Government, accusing the American Medical Association of monopolistic practices, set in motion yesterday a march of A. M. A. employes to the witness stand in District Court.

Having subpenaed hundreds of the association's letters and documents, the prosecution has brought to Washington the workers who wrote or otherwise handled them, for the purpose of identifying the maze of material.

Demonstrating, according to the Government, that the A. M. A. bitterly resisted the prepayment group practice system of medical care, nearly 100 of the letters, telegrams, memoranda, etc., were admitted in evidence yesterday after being identified.

With the Government footing the transportation, hotel and food bills, 25 of the A. M. A. salaried employes—a few of them are former workers—reached the Capital yesterday, crowding the witness rooms as they awaited their calls.

Two Placed on Stand

Only two went to the stand: Mrs. Hattie A. Nichoff, secretary to Dr. Olin West, secretary and general manager of the A. M. A., and one of the defendants, and John Laux, who for four years was assistant to Dr. Roscoe G. Leland, director of the association's council on medical economics and also a defendant.

The remaining 23 will be called to the stand as the documents which they handled are offered in evidence by John Henry Lewin or Gant W. Kelleher, special assistants to the Attorney General in charge of the prosecution.

Lewin and Kelleher said there are "hundreds" of letters and miscellaneous documents to be presented as exhibits. The latter estimated that it will take ten days at the rate of speed which prevailed yesterday.

William E. Leahy and Seth W. Richardson, of the six-man defense counsel, contested several of the letters offered yesterday but, with a few exceptions, they were accepted by Justice James M. Proctor.

None Read to Jury

None of the material was read to the jury, however. Only after presentation of the whole array of documents has been completed, the prosecution explained, will any of the material be read in court.

In general the letters are interpreted by the Government as indicating the A. M. A.'s desire to obstruct not only Group Health Association but similar medical care schemes in other parts of the country.

Most of the Government's 25 "identification witnesses" came here from Chicago, headquarters of the American Medical Association. Some are from St. Louis, Kansas City and other cities.

Laux, who left the organization in July, 1939, is now director of the Michigan Medical Service Plan, a prepayment enterprise not unlike GHA which is supported by the State's medical society.

Only significant document presented directly to the jury yesterday was a copy of a resolution adopted by the District Medical Association upholding the main minority report of the Committee on Cost of Medical Care in 1932.

As Dr. Michael M. Davis, of New York, testified earlier in the day, the majority report recommended development of prepayment, group practice medical plans, particularly for the benefit of low and moderate-income families who thus would be enabled to budget for treatment of illness.

Prepayment Idea Assailed

There were several minority reports by committee members, Dr. Davis testified, and assisting in drafting the main one were Dr. West and Dr. A. C. Christie, of Washington, who is also a defendant. This opinion, subsequently indorsed by the District Medical Society, assailed the idea of prepayment—a flat subscription on a monthly basis—and group practice.

Dr. Davis—a Ph. D., not an M. D.—told the jury he was a member of the committee on Cost of Medical Care, which made a year's intensive study of 9,000 families, embracing 38,000 individuals, in various parts of the country.

The investigation showed, he declared, that the indigent and near-indigent, who can least afford to pay for treatment, suffer the most illness.

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford University and later to become Secretary of the Interior, was chairman of the national committee, appointed in 1927 at the behest of President Coolidge. Its 43 members included 25 doctors of medicine, said Dr. Davis, 14 of them in private practice.

Of the 35 members signing the majority report, advocating the type of medical service exemplified by GHA, 17 were M. D.'s, said Dr. Davis. Nine of these 17 were in private practice, he added.

Bills in Congress Would Protect Troops From 'Sin'

Copyright by New York Times

Bills to protect soldiers, sailors, and Coast Guardsmen from liquor and women were introduced yesterday in both the Senate and the House.

Senator Sheppard, father of the prohibition amendment in the Senate, offered a bill to prohibit selling of liquors and beers to members of the Army and Navy, violators to be punished by fines ranging from $100 to $1,000 and imprisonment from 30 days to 12 months. His bills also would authorize the Secretary of War and the Navy to prohibit prostitution near Army camps.

In the House, Representative Schafer (Republican), of Michigan, offered a somewhat similar bill, including Coast Guardsmen in those to whom it would be illegal to sell any beverage containing more than 3.2 per cent of alcohol by volume. Violators under this measure could be fined up to $2,000 and imprisoned for a maximum of two years.

Fortas to Fill Post During Cohen's Absence

Copyright by New York Times

Secretary Ickes yesterday confirmed reports that Benjamin V. Cohen would go to London on leave of absence with John G. Winant, newly appointed Ambassador to Great Britain, and remain with him "for two or three months or as long as Winant needs him."

During the absence of Cohen, his duties as counselor of the Defense Power Policy Committee, of which Ickes is chairman, will be carried on by Abe Fortas, counselor of the Bituminous Coal Commission, the Secretary said. Under this arrangement, he told his press conference, Cohen will be only temporarily "lost" to his department.

Give Hubby An Edible Valentine

Family Dinner May Provide Food, Not Fancy But With Festive Air

By Martha Ellyn
The Post Food Editor

VALENTINE expressions are many and varied, but perhaps the edible ones are more appreciated than any. Women, having more sentiment in their hearts may be inclined to lean toward the "look" kind, but men, the realists they are, certainly enjoy the "eat" kind.

Martha Ellyn

In fact, the whole family can enjoy a family dinner and then there will be a Valentine for everyone. Here is a family dinner menu that can be served in such a way that it will be festive enough for the occasion but not in the fancy class.

Valentine Dinner Menu

Cranberry Juice
Ham Loaf — Browned Potatoes
Green Beans With Mushrooms
Valentine Salad
Hot Rolls — Butter
Valentine Ice Cream Molds
Peanut Butter Drop Cookies
Coffee — Milk

With the cranberry juice in the refrigerator chilling, the Valentine Vitamin Salad in the refrigerator, too, the ice cream molds ordered from the corner druggist, then the preparation of the rest of the meal is very simple. The recipes for the Ham Loaf and Valentine Vitamin Salad and Peanut Butter Drop Cakes follow:

Ham Loaf

Have the butcher grind together twice, 1 pound raw cured ham and ½ pound fresh pork. To the ground meat add 2 cups rice flakes, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 egg, ¾ cup milk and a dash of pepper. Form into a loaf, then place in a greased roaster and sprinkle with flour. Sear in a very hot oven, 500 degrees, until brown. Pour ½ cup water around loaf, cover and continue cooking in a moderate oven at 375 degrees for 1 hour. After searing, peeled Irish potatoes may be placed around the loaf. The fat in which the meat was seared will brown and the potatoes will be delicious.

Valentine Vitamin Salad—Dissolve 1 package strawberry gelatin in 1 cup hot water and add cold water to cool. Add ¼ teaspoon salt to the hot gelatine. When it is cool, shredded carrot with ½ cup finely sliced celery and 2 bananas cut in cubes. Sprinkle lemon over bananas. When cool and the mixture begins to thicken, add the vegetables. Pour in decorative molds and serve with mayonnaise on crisp leaves of lettuce, garnished with watercress. Serves 6.

Peanut butter drop cookies are especially flavorsome when raisins, dates or figs are used as ingredients. Anyone of them may be used or a combination of the three. The recipe for making the cookies is:

Peanut Butter Drop Cookies—Sift together 1 cup sifted cake flour and 2 teaspoons baking powder. Combine, creaming thoroughly, ½ cup peanut butter, ¼ cup butter and ½ cup sugar. Add 2 eggs, beating until after fluffy after each addition. Add, mixing well, 1 cup raisins, dates, figs or 1 cup of the three combined. Add sifted ingredients, alternately with ¾ cup milk. Drop from a lightly greased cookie sheet by teaspoons. Bake in center of moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 10 minutes or until delicately browned.

Hearts—Not Sentimental but Practical

Delightful to look at and delicious to eat is the fruit juice cocktail and open-faced heart-shaped sandwiches shown above. These may be served outside to a dinner party or to guests after a game of bridge. An appealing drink may be made of canned unsweetened Hawaiian pineapple juice, orange and lemon juice and gingerale. The little open-faced sandwiches may be spread with cream cheese combined with anchovy paste, pimiento, chopped olives or any number of other zestful bits.

Peanut butter may be mixed with such foods as jelly, dates, figs or honey

Prune Juice Made Palatable

Here, at last, is the perfect, painless way to induce prune juice into the interiors of your young ones. Not only is it painless . . . it's gorgeous, and youngsters of all ages (including your husband) will adore it. Just listen to this combination . . . orange-flavored gelatin, prune juice, lemon juice and maraschino! And you can make it almost as fast as they can eat it.

Fish Cookery

"To cook fish with the least odor and loss of flavor, use high heat first and then reduce it. Whether you boil, fry or bake it, this rule holds true. The high temperature sears the surface and retains the juices and the flavor.

Some 'Don'ts' For the Users Of Electricity

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

Considering the familiarity we all feel with electricity, most of us are pretty ignorant about its use. We know little about it for our own good . . . in fact plugging in and flipping the switch is about the extent of our information or interest. That's dangerous ignorance.

But don't misunderstand us . . . we're not recommending that you become an amateur tinkerer with your electrical appliances. The experts regard the homegrown electrician as a grave menace to safety. But intelligence in the use of electrical appliances is something else again.

The first rule is to regard your electrician with respect, to let him inspect your wiring and appliances at reasonable intervals and to call him for repairs. Don't try make-shift repair jobs or homelabor arrangements—remembering that defective wiring and appliances are responsible for nearly $30,000,000 in known fire loss each year and for a large percentage of the unknown-cause, fire damage which runs to $90,000,000 a year. Get good appliances and keep them in good shape. Don't plug toasters and irons into the kitchen light fixture and don't have any appliances near a water faucet or a steam radiator. Beware of having three and four-way plugs in one outlet and of using spliced-out cords or cords strung around over moldings or under rugs. Don't use portable heaters or hair dryers in the bathroom and be cautious about electric razors near water.

All things considered, you'll find no economy in skimping on electrical service. Often, in fact, you'll find an immediate saving on your light bill by straightening out the make-shifts in your wiring. For stringing cords around haphazardly means waste of current.

Chocolate Mix Speeds Cooking

If you want to banish the fuss-and-muss of tedious preparation of foods, try the new chocolate-flavored mix. All you need is a package of this new mix and a little boiling water and you have a perfect frosting for a cake: the addition of water, a bit of butter and creamy fudge can be yours; and many nourishing milk drinks, pies and frozen desserts can be made almost as with magic.

Here is a recipe for making Frozen Marlow with this ever-ready mix:

Frozen Marlow—First turn the refrigerator to the coldest point. Measure 1¼ cups chocolate-flavored mix into a small saucepan. Add 1 cup milk and stir over low heat about five minutes until mixture is smooth and thick. While mixture is still hot, add ten marshmallows and stir until melted. Cool until lukewarm and add ½ teaspoon vanilla. Fold mixture into 1 cup of cream whipped (not too stiff). Pour into refrigerator tray and freeze three to four hours or until set. Serves eight.

Elimination of Odor

A little vinegar added to the dishwater in which you are washing plates from which fish has been served, or to the pans in which it was cooked, will prevent fish odors from clinging to them.

Flu Requires Care, Even in Mild Cases

THE CURRENT influenza that is traveling across the country is much milder than the type from which we suffered in 1918, says Dr. James A. Tobey, widely known health authority. When it crosses to Europe, however, it may become severe, due to the lowered physical resistance of the people through war strain and lack of nourishing food.

To avoid influenza of any type, the first essential is to keep away from those who have it, for it is highly contagious. The next step, and one that's equally important, is to keep up your vitality. The surest way to do this, says Dr. Tobey, is to eat three nourishing meals every day, avoid exposure and guard against fatigue.

First Symptoms

Although influenza begins like a common cold, the cause it follows isn't the same. The symptoms by which you recognize it are: fever, a dry cough, sneezing, headache, pains in the back and sides, and prostration.

When influenza starts, go to bed at once and stay there throughout the illness. Keep warm and drink plenty of hot liquids—milk, mailed milk, lemonade or tea. An acute attack is over in three or four days, but the feeling of weakness may remain for some time.

Be Careful Afterward

This is the real danger period, because unless care is taken, pneumonia may follow. It's the time to take it easy—to stay home from the office and not try to work around the house. Begin to build up strength, instead, by resting and by the right diet. At this stage, says Dr. Tobey, the patient should drink plenty of pasteurized or certified milk, eat liberally of bread and butter, milk toast, soft-cooked eggs and fruit juices.

In the epidemic of 1918-1919 it wasn't the influenza that caused the fatalities, but the pneumonia that followed in persons whose vitality was low or who didn't take proper care of themselves when the worst of the disease seemed to be over.

To Keep Sandwiches

It saves bother and confusion to make sandwiches before they are needed. But how to keep them fresh is another factor. You can keep sandwiches to their original freshness by placing them in the humidrawer of your refrigerator or the crisping pan. It is not necessary to wrap them. If more sandwiches are made than could be consumed, toast them for lunch, or if meat sandwiches toast them and serve with creamed dried beef or creamed eggs on them for a luncheon dish.

Measuring Guides To Assist Cook

Recipe directions vary greatly and many times it is necessary to use an equivalent measurement. Often the cook needs a few measuring guides to help. Here are a number of standard measures, all approved by the United States Department of Standards and Weights:

1 teaspoon=1 tablespoon.
4 tablespoons=¼ cup.
16 tablespoons=1 cup.
2 cups=1 pint.
1 ounce chocolate=¼ cup cocoa.
1 pound walnuts in shell=½ pound shelled.
60 drops=1 teaspoon.
2 cups granulated sugar=1 pound.
2¼ cups brown sugar=1 pound.
4 medium size eggs=1 pound.
2 cups solid butter=1 pound.
2 tablespoons butter, sugar or salt=1 ounce.
1 peck potatoes=15 pounds.
4 cups grated cheese=1 pound.

MEAT AND THE TOLL OF THE YEARS

Years naturally take their toll, but as one great nutritionist says, proper dietary habits "add not only years to one's life, but life to one's years."

In their search for youthfulness and beauty, many women have overlooked the fact that without good health both are unattainable. Too often they have been guided by food fads rather than food facts.

Many women are now turning toward a better balanced daily diet, one in which meat has an important place because of the benefits it offers, such as:

Complete high quality proteins—If you are reducing, meat will permit you to lose weight without the danger of "protein starvation." Let your physician prescribe a safe reducing diet. He knows the position meat should occupy in it.

The B Vitamins of Meat—Vitamins can make the difference between a woman who "keeps up" and one who lets down. Meat is now recognized as a good, natural source of these important B vitamins: thiamine (vitamin B_1), riboflavin (vitamin B_2) and the anti-pellagra vitamin.

This is why so many women are taking a new look at their diets with meat in mind.

Note to professional and employed women—Facts prove that the skimpy breakfast, the quick, inadequate lunch and the often incomplete dinner can make for quick fatigue and hasten a downhill course. In many such cases your physician may tell you that a well assorted diet with the more regular enjoyment of meat is indicated.

New Dress Enlivened — Old Dress Revived

Just like a schoolmarm's uniform, the crisp pique collar (above) adds a dignified touch for more solemn occasions. This is an especially good type collar if the face and neck are thin as it helps to fill them out

Eyelet cotton lace revers merge at a point here to form a V-shape—the newest of all necklines. In contrast to the other collars shown, notice how much more long and slender the face and neck appear when the line is focused lower

Quick Change May Be Made By Neckwear

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor.

EVERY WOMAN can be a quick change artist this spring. From business girl to deb, from housewife to socialite, women know the trick of using a different piece of neckwear to change a basic dress.

This season, with emphasis on prettiness, exquisite lingerie touches make an ideal setting for feminine flattery. Large yokes, sailor collars and revers of fine embroidered organdies, linen, pique and batiste add dainty flilips for spring.

The recent movie, "Kitty Foyle," did much to make women conscious of the "white collar" mode. Collars from the eighteenth century ruff to those that lie down politely on the bosom are in vogue. Even with a rounded neckline, lingerie touches, such as embroidery and eyelet banding are used. The V-shape style, especially, is carried over into spring because it gives an airy, breezy touch.

Sailor collars, along with nautical themes, have assumed new importance for daytime, afternoon and dinner dresses. These are made in a variety of materials and interpretations. For daytime, navy and crisp pique versions embroidered in bright red scrolls. For afternoon frocks there are fine embroidered batistes and linens edged with val lace. And for dinner you might prefer the cream of all sailor collars in mousseline de soie with finely fluted Chantilly lace and exquisite embroidery trims. These even appear on dressy afternoon dresses.

Sleeky cut dresses for spring in black and navy come, many times, with these white touches as a part of the dress. They are made to perform without further remodeling or trimming. After one time or three trimmings, they can be removed and a good basic dress lives on, ready for some-thing brand new in collars and perhaps cuffs.

The ruffles and rustles of spring are a part of this exquisitely draped black sheer crepe Eisenberg dress. The hand-embroidered imported lace collar forms the very new V-neckline. An about-face view would reveal a bloused back bodice—very full and simpecably tailored

James Cagney Gives Figure Tips

Hollywood, Calif.—James Cagney was sitting on the floor of his dressing room with legs stretched out. Suddenly he began to hitch himself across the room, still in that position.

"Best exercise in the world for keeping a waistline trim."

In fact, he guarantees that 15 minutes of "walking on your hips" will reduce the waistline by 2 inches. Think what a streamline you could be in one week!

The actor, whose body is fit and as hard as some of the roles he plays, believes that those contemplating a theatrical career should pay as much attention to learning control of the body as to their dramatic training.

"Your body is a tool. If you're going to be a player you have to know how to use it, to keep it supple and coordinated. You can't let it go for a minute."

This, we think, applies equally to the lady who stays at home, the school girl, the girl in business or the society deb.

Jimmy also recommends exercising in heavy clothing for your own little private Turkish bath. The ladies, he explains, will find this conducive to a lovely complexion, since to perspire freely washes the pores. On follows these calisthenics with a luke warm bath and a cool shower.

Deep breathing and stretching exercises, practiced morning, noon and night, are also on the Cagney regimen on every day of every week in the year.

Another type collar that is becoming to a slender face or one with natural features is shown above. It's the perfect solution for a rejuvenation of dull, dark winter wardrobes. The light touch carries the dress into spring

Composure Aid in Chasing Face Wrinkles

By Ida Jean Kain

WOMEN are aging faster than they once did. The average girl of 18 already has begun to form the facial habits which will make her look older than necessary in her 20s.

Our authority for this appalling news blames it on the times. We are living in such a hectic age that our emotions are playing havoc with our faces.

It's perfectly all right to register good, healthy disgust or anger, to smile, or to laugh uproariously, our expert says—the harm comes from letting these expressions linger. "When we walk down the street we see women who are scowling to themselves, squinting, smiling fixedly, or just harrying with their faces. The prolonged contraction of the muscles involved makes lines," he declares.

A "line" in the face is nothing more than a flat row of cells created by the folding of the skin by the muscles underneath. The more you work that particular muscle the deeper the line.

Sleep in Afternoon

What women need to learn first, the authority observes is composure. These destructive facial habits can be broken if we learn to value composure. That's enough to keep us from working our facial expressions so hard.

One of the best wrinkle chasers is the afternoon beauty nap. If you can make a practice of lying down for half an hour every afternoon and can master the art of relaxing completely during that time, you give your facial muscles a much-needed rest. Not only does this 30 minutes for 40 winks help to alleviate tension, but the prone position eases the suspension of the facial muscles.

Cold cream should, of course, be a big item in this routine. Before retiring, cream your face thoroughly. Pile the cream on so lavishly that the fingers can slip over the skin without the slightest danger of stretching it. And instead of rubbing the cream directly on the skin, try rubbing it on the fingers, then pressing the fingers into the skin. That arouses the circulation without stretching or pulling your skin.

You can get in some special licks toward erasing those parenthetical nose-to-mouth lines with this technique: Place the middle finger directly over the line and rock it back and forth, over on one side, then on the other. You can work deeply.

Leave the lubricant on while resting. It's also a good idea to place over the eyelids pads which have been soaked in some cooling astringent. This helps relax the delicate muscles in this area.

Fat-fighting as it may seem, posture is considered to have a direct bearing on the speed with which your facial muscles sag. When you continually stoop, with neck forward and face down, the pull of gravity is much greater. One of the best beauty habits you can form is that of carrying the head proudly, head lifted perkily. Incidentally, this helps you to hang on to your throatline.

"make good" that is overcast by the anxious fear that you will not (or never have never can) "go over" with them.

The purpose of these speculations is to guide you in "putting the finger" on the tool-source of your distress. For you alone hold the master key which will unlock the mystery of your lack of poise in the presence of "certain persons." My advice to you is to explore your own feelings, fears, attitudes, motives and memories of past experiences, in order to determine why you react nervously to some of your friends but not toward all.

If it develops that the individuals themselves are at fault (through being guilty of rude or condescending behavior) dismiss the problem with a shrug. Adapt to their idiosyncracies with good grace and good manners, and don't wear yourself out trying to please them. But if you must admit that you have been shrinking neurotically from an anticipated "cut" that is never delivered, the realization of that fact should, in itself, automatically invoke greater self-confidence: a self-confidence based on the discovery that you have been jumping at shadows—that timely imagination has been playing tricks on you.

However, if you come honestly to the conclusion that there is no emotional or psychological "painful past experience"—basis for your "nervousness" approach to your "dreaded" acquaintances, then proceed on the premise that your health needs overhauling: that you are either organically or

Woman Who Was Fairly Well Poised Until 6 Years Ago Finds Herself Becoming Increasingly Nervous At the Mere Prospect of Meeting 'Certain Friends'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My problem is how to overcome a feeling of extreme self-consciousness and nervousness around certain of my friends. Until about six years ago, I was a fairly well poised person,—but since then, this feeling has been steadily growing, until now it has me worried. Yet I am unable to understand it, or to find a way to overcome it.

This feeling seldom occurs on first meeting people, but it does crop up at the mere thought of meeting or entertaining certain friends. For instance, my husband will suggest going to call on certain friends and I will want to go with him, but the prospect of having to greet and converse with them upsets me. I am 32 years old and the wife of an attractive, intelligent man. I hope you can help me, because I know I am very much in need of help. Sincerely, E. J.

DEAR E. J.: Almost all of us have had the experience of "feeling uncomfortable" in the company of certain acquaintances,—either because (1) they "don't speak our language" or "aren't on our wire"; or (2) because they conduct themselves in a manner suggestive of the most detestable, inexcusable rudeness); or (3) because we think they have reason to hold an unflattering opinion of us.

I feel that you could, if you would, throw more light on the source of your difficulty than you have. It is possible that your mounting sense of social inadequacy in certain circles—which began to develop about six years ago—had its origin in an introduction, about that time, to a new social environment; or perhaps to a different "set" of persons: persons who may have had advantages of wealth or travel or education, plus a particular type of professional experience which gives them interests in common with your husband, which you feel disqualified to share.

This might account for your dread of "greeting and conversing with them." You may approach them with the conviction that "they're not interested in me; we never know what to say to each other, etc." And, also with the unhappy notion that, in contrast to them, you are making a poor showing in your husband's eyes.

Since you refer to your husband as "an attractive, intelligent man"—thus registering your concurrence of his declaration of your competence—it is reasonable to assume that he is aware, in his own way, of your professionality; and engaging the usual flurry of polite acceptance accorded the "successful" or "promising" man. You may have a feeling that certain persons who appreciate his charm and ability, don't appreciate you for his "ball-and-chain."

Or, again, it could be that these "certain persons" are snobbish; or is a trial, unconsciously remind you of the type of individuals (real or who disdained or patronized you in the past, during some less secure, less prosperous period—perhaps even so long ago as your childhood. Or, lastly, it is the further possibility that your lack of poise has an organic base: that it is symptomatic of secondary anemia, for instance; or of thyroid imbalance or of other glandular disorder—and that your vague sense of distress is sharply accentuated by association with "certain persons" of imperturbable ease and reserve, while hardly felt at all in the company of others whom you appraise as "your own kind."*

There is a chance, too, that you are afflicted with an "anxiety neurosis" — which is to say, a compulsion to worry; a fixed habit of vaguely "fearing the worst"; and that your acute seriousness at the prospect of visiting "certain persons" is an inverse reflection of your intense desire to "make a good impression" upon them. A desire to

Improve Your Singing Voice By Exercises

WHY don't more girls develop their voices? The girl who has one appears so charming—whether she just sings with a group around the piano or entertains with a solo. She appears so romantic, too, as many a young man will tell you.

Yet almost everyone has the makings of a singer. You have only to train your vocal equipment and that isn't hard.

The simple exercises that develop beauty of tone in your voice can be practiced while you work around the house.

One fault the beginner usually needs to correct is shallow breathing. To sing well learn to breathe from the diaphragm. Opening your mouth the width of two fingers, take as deep a breath as you possibly can, then sing BAH-BAY-BE-BO.

To make your voice richer and fuller you need to develop resonance. Take a deep breath, then purse your lips as if whistling. While you exhale, sing softly "oo" as in "boots." When you feel a sensation of resonance begin humming "mmm," slowly close lips.

And one exercise you are sure to enjoy is singing with your radio, trying to harmonize your voice with the radio singer.

From our 24-page instruction book, "Wake Up and Sing," learn the simple exercises that will help you improve breathing, resonance and range, develop beauty of tone. Explains the elements of music, includes words and music of four songs for practice. Has tips on a singing career. Book is 8½ by 12 inches.

Send 15 cents in coins for our instruction book, "Wake Up and Sing," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of instruction book.

Old English Custom

At the ebb of winter, its fun to think of a custom once in practice in the old English gardens. Here hothouse fruits and flowers could be grown outdoors because flues from a furnace were run into a great brick garden wall, thus keeping the wall all winter at even temperature to protect against frost and cold. Hence we were the days when the cost of heat was nothing to wrinkle a brow over.

New Type of Cape
Hollywood, Calif. — Howard Shoup reports that he is now designing lots of capes because he's tired of seeing women with their coats tossed nonchalantly over their shoulders, the armless sleeves flapping forlornly in the wind. And to do a cape completely different Howard conceived the idea of one attached to a vestee. He used Persian lamb. Brenda Marshall will wear it in "Footsteps in the Dark."

Chilean Envoy Fetes Seven Visiting Newsmen

By Carolyn Bell

Broken Spanish phrases were flying thick and fast at the Chilean Embassy yesterday afternoon where those who are taking the language—and who isn't?—attempted to converse with the seven Chilean newspapermen visiting here. Rushed through a whirlwind schedule, the journalists, who will work on American newspapers, arrived an hour late for the reception given in their honor by the newly arrived Ambassador and Senora de Michels.

It was the first party the Michels have given since their arrival here—and it was quite a gala affair. Lions of the afternoon were naturally the young Chileans who were eagerly discussing their new jobs. Joaquin Muirhead, an affable chap with a ready smile, when asked what he was going to write, laughed and said, "I don't know, but they'll tell me tomorrow, I guess." "O.K.," was his quick answer when queried on his impressions of Washington. Mr. Muirhead will write for The Washington Post.

The Ambassador and Senora de Michels received just inside the drawing room, where the guests mingled, chatted and sipped highballs. Senora de Michels was smartly turned out in a heavy white crepe dinner frock with rows of gold sequins encircling the bodice. Pretty Christina Michels, their daughter, wore a casual frock of pale marine blue with a soft color beaded with pearls.

The Counselor of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Gazitua were generally assisting the hosts. Senora de Gazitua wore a black frock with rhinestone buttons and a wide-brimmed sailor. Also seeing that everyone was well supplied with food and drink were the First Secretary and Senora de Rodriguez. Chatting with Miss Anne Beach was Don Alejandro Bertrand, Secretary of the Embassy. Miss Beach, a pretty blonde, wore a silver-cloth gown.

Robert Pachin Fetes Writers at Luncheon

Manuel Vega, one of the Chilean writers, who will work on the Star, chatted with a group of his cohorts including Francisco le Danteo, who is going to Philadelphia; Rafael Vladivieso, who will go to Detroit; Guillermo Valenzuela, to Los Angeles; Louis Ignacio Silva, who will work in Boston, and Charles Eastman, who will get his training in New York. Earlier in the afternoon they had been feted at a luncheon given by Robert H. Patchin.

About half way through the party the doors of the dining room, adjoining the salon, were thrown wide and guests wandered in to try the sandwiches, canapes and cakes. Tall vases of red snapdragons were used at either end of the table. Senora de Gauchalla, wife of the Minister of Bolivia, wore a short silver fox jacket and bright velvet turban. Looking as pretty as a picture was Senorita Maria Theresa Escalante, who chatted vivaciously with Miss Maria Theresa Norris, who wore a flower hat of bright yellow and red popies atop her blond curls.

Culbertsons To Go to Cuba

Maynard Williams, of the National Geographic Society, was in deep conversation with Herbert Elliston. Mr. and Mrs. John Begg were there. She wore a short chinchilla jacket over her black ensemble. Mrs. William Culbertson was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Jane Culbertson. Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson will leave shortly for Cuba, and Jane is toying with the idea of going to Florida. Still others there were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke, the latter wearing a lush silver fox coat; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mrs. Phillip Bonsall in a pale green wool ensemble, Andres Pastoriza, jr., Senorita Elena Castro, William Lander, Lothrop Stoddard, well-know lecturer; Dr. and Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, Michael McDermott, Mr. and Mrs. Barnet Nover, George Lilly and Mr. and Mrs. William T. Stone.

Miss Downs, Mr. Stephenson To Wed Today

The marriage of Miss Nancy Irwin Downs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Findley Downs, of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, and Lowry Chew Stephenson, also of Philadelphia, will take place at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Church of St. Martin in the Fields, Philadelphia. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Charles Clifford Windsor, of Washington, and the late Lieut. Col. Lowry Boyd Stephenson.

The Rev. Leicester C. Lewis will officiate. The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will wear a gown of white paper taffeta made with a close-fitting bodice and low scalloped neckline filled in with tulle. Her tulle veil is held in place by clusters of lilies of the valley and she will carry a round bouquet of gardenias and valley lilies tied with a tulle bow and streamers caught with the latter flowers.

Bride to Have Six Attendants

Mrs. William Rice Moseley, of Baltimore, will be matron of honor for her sister, and another sister, Miss Marjory L. Downs, will be maid of honor. They will be dressed in shell-pink faille, with skirts worn over full crinoline petticoats, and will wear on their heads two American Beauty Roses with shell-pink veils. Their bouquets will be of the roses.

The bridesmaids will be the Misses Mary Knowles, Leila Canby, H. Carter Hammett and Mary Langdon Bullitt, all of Philadelphia. They will be dressed in silvery blue faille with matching veils and will carry red roses.

David Stephenson To Be Best Man

David Chew Stephenson, of Washington, will be best man for his brother, and the ushers will be E. Howard York 3d, William L. Disston, John E. Newlin, jr., Conway Rulon-Miller and John C. Bell, jr., all of Philadelphia, and Francis Jones, of Bermuda.

A reception at the Downs home will follow. The bride's mother will wear Alice blue crepe, a dubonnet hat and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Windsor has chosen for the occasion a black crepe gown trimmed with Somali leopard skin and a large black hat. Her corsage will be of yellow orchids.

Miss Evans Will Attend Choate Ball

Miss Mariana Evans, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Evans, will go to Choate School in Connecticut next weekend to attend a holiday dance.

Miss Evans is a freshman at Simmons College in Boston, and for the past few summers has been riding counselor at a camp in Vermont. Last week she presided at one of the panel discussions at a meeting in Boston of the New England Camping Association.

Manuel Trucco And His Bride On Capital Visit

Manuel Trucco, one of the most popular bachelors of the Diplomatic Corps when his father was Chilean Ambasssador here, returned to Washington yesterday with a bride. She is a charming young South American girl, who was married to Mr. Trucco at a ceremony several weeks ago in Santiago, Chile.

The Truccos are visiting his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knowlton. They will be here until Sunday evening, when they will return to New York, where Mr. Trucco has a job with a nitrate company.

He and his bride landed in New York on Monday from South America. Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Knowlton had a few of their friends in to say "hello" to the couple over a cocktail.

The hostess wore a street length lavender dress and had pinned two purple orchids to the top of her dark hair. Senora de Trucco had the some headdress. Her frock was made with a black skirt, printed blouse of black and white and wide red leather belt. This is her first visit to the United States.

Among the guests was Ricardo Siri, of the Argentine Embassy. He will leave very soon for his new post in London and says he is looking forward to it. Mr. Siri will take a boat for Lisbon and fly there to London.

Others present included Mrs. Helen Walker, who had come in from her classes in social service work; Miss Marie Vom Rath, chatting with Miss Betty Beale, whose smart black hat trimmed with leopard matched her bag; Eleanor Meem, Senor and Senora de Echegaray, of the Spanish Embassy; Jock Merriam, Mrs. Allan Moulton and Samuel Biddle.

Also there were Dr. and Mrs. Henry Beall Gwynn. They are building a house near the Foxhall Road section and hope to move in late in the spring.

Finnish League To Give Luncheon

A menu following the limited diet now eaten by the Finnish people, owing to the shortage of food, will feature a luncheon to be held on Friday, February 28. This is Finland's Kalevala Day, and the affair is being given by the American League for Finnish War Orphans.

Herbert B. Elliston, associate editor of The Washington Post and author of "Finland Fights," will be the guest speaker at the luncheon, proceeds of which will go to Finland. Since its inauguration last summer, the League for Finnish War Orphans has supervised the raising and transfer of funds for the care of Finnish boys and girls orphaned by the Russo-Finnish war. Mrs. Robert Low Bacon is national chairman, and Mrs. Emil Hurja heads the District of Columbia unit of the league.

Herricks Return From Dog Show

The proud possessors of a blue ribbon, Mr. and Mrs. John O. Herrick have returned from New York, where they attended the Westminster Dog Show at Madison Square Garden on Tuesday. Their prize Scottish deerhound, Lady Diana Vernon, walked away with the prize for the "best breed." The Herricks often exhibit dogs from their Twelfth Night Kennels.

Mrs. Jouett Shouse attended the show to exhibit her boxer pup—which also won a prize. Mrs. John Winant, wife of the newly appointed Ambassador to Great Britain, exhibited her West Highland terriers and Scottish terriers.

George Abell Host to 30 At Dinner Party

George Abell entertained 30 guests last night in his apartment on Twentieth Street in the second of a series of dinners. Several other persons came in to enjoy the party later. Mr. Abell will be host at a similar affair next Thursday.

Among those attending last night's fete were several members of the Diplomatic Corps, including the Minister of Finland and Mme. Procope, the Netherlands Minister Counselor and Baroness van Boetzelaer, the Netherlands Counselor and Countess Van Rechteren Limpburg, the Swedish Military Attache and Mme. Wessel, and Dr. and Mme. H. H. Boon, of the Netherlands Legation.

Other guests were the Special Assistant to the Secretary of War, Julius Amberg, and Mrs. Amberg; Mr. and Mrs. Aldace Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. Ives Lowe, Miss Evelyn Gordon, Mrs. Randolph Miner, Col. William Shipp, Miss Dudley Harmon, George Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Baron and Baroness E. Stackelberg, Andrew Wylie and Waldemar Chadbourne, of New York, who is en route to Florida and Cuba.

Mrs. A. L. Vreeland, Mrs. Fred Bradley Will Give Tea

Mrs. Albert L. Vreeland, wife of Representative Vreeland, of New Jersey, and Mrs. Fred Bradley, wife of Representative Bradley, of Michigan, will entertain at tea on Tuesday at the Congressional Club from 3 to 5 o'clock.

Miss Marion Wilkerson, harpist, will entertain.

Among those who will assist at the tea table are Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Mrs. W. Warren Barbour, Mrs. Prentiss M. Brown, Mrs. Robert W. Kean, Mrs. Donald H. McLean, Mrs. Robert F. Rich, Mrs. Roy O. Woodruff and Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel.

Bashores to Give Cocktail Party

Dr. and Mrs. William C. Bashore will entertain at a cocktail party today prior to the Valentine dance being held at the Bethesda Women's Club.

Their guests will include Mr. and Mrs. E. Emerson Snyder, Capt. and Mrs. Donald C. Singe, Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. Gardiner, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Keiser, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson C. Elgin, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Biddle, Dr. and Mrs. Albert R. James, Dr. and Mrs. W. McCarl and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Mehring.

Grace Epley Engaged To Lawrence Smith

Mrs. Bertha O. Epley, of Omaha, Nebr., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Grace E. Epley, of Washington, D. C., to Lawrence R. Smith, of Picture Rocks, Pa. The wedding will take place at St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Omaha, early in June.

The bride-elect is a member of Beta Sigma Phi sorority and is past president of Sigma Phi Mu sorority. Mr. Smith is the son of Jacob Smith, of Picture Rocks, and is now detailed to the Naval Air Station in Norfolk.

White House Entertains For Royalty

The visitors from Luxembourg—Grand Duchess Charlotte, Prince Consort Felix and Hereditary Grand Duke Jeane—were guests of honor at two White House fetes yesterday. Mrs. Roosevelt was hostess at a musicale in the afternoon and there was a dinner again in the evening.

Artists at the musicale were Miss Viola Morris, soprano; Miss Victoria Anderson, contralto, and the Chamber Music Guild String Quartet, whose members are Frank Gittelson and Alexander Levin, violin; Benjamin Sosner, viola, and Marcel Anchor, violoncello. Milne Charnley was accompanist.

The royal trio were honor guests at a luncheon given yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies. As Ambassador to Belgium, Mr. Davies also was accredited to the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg.

The other guests at the luncheon were the Belgian Ambassador, Count Robert van der Straten-Ponthoz; the Minister from the Netherlands and Mme. Loudon, the Luxembourg Minister and Mme. Le Gallais, Mrs. Stanley Reed, Senator and Mrs. Warren Austin, Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings, Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, Gen. and Mrs. Edwin Watson, Justice Richard S. Whaley, James Clement Dunn, Stanley Woodward, Lieut. Col. Horace Smith, Miss Mabel Boardman, Mrs. Close Rand, daughter of Mrs. Davies; Miss Elaine Darlington, Mrs. Aldace Walker and Lieut. Konsbruck and Mme. Bech, who accompanied the royal couple here from Canada.

Mrs. Davies will be out of town over the weekend, but will return in time to entertain at several dinners next week.

Berles Fete Cuban Envoy

The newly arrived Ambassador from Cuba, Dr. Aurelio Fernandez Concheso, was honor guest at a dinner given last night by the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. A. A. Berle. Senora de Concheso is a victim of influenza and was unable to attend.

Others in the company were the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera, Senora de Rodriguez, wife of the Counselor of the Cuban Embassy; the Assistant Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Oscar Chapman, J. Edgar Hoover, Miss Mary Winslow, Mr. and Mrs. Milo Perkins and Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Walmsley.

Mr. and Mrs. Berle will entertain tomorrow afternoon at a cocktail party for newspapermen who cover the State Department. They were to have held two on successive Saturdays, but the one last week was canceled owing to the death of R. Walton Moore. The function tomorrow will combine the two parties.

Mrs. F. M. Gould To Entertain The Machados

Dr. and Mrs. Decio de Paulo Machado will be guests of honor at a supper to be given Sunday night by Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould at her residence on Massachusetts Avenue.

Arriving in this country a few weeks ago from Brazil, Dr. and Mrs. Machado have been widely entertained during their visit in New York. They expect to be in Washington for a brief stay before returning to New York.

Press Women's Tea To Honor Willkies

Mr. and Mrs. Wendell L. Willkie will fly down from New York Sunday to be honor guests at a special tea to be given by the Women's National Press Club that afternoon. The party will take place in the Willard room, Willard Hotel, at 5 o'clock.

Members of the club are to be limited to one guest each.

Mrs. J. Fred Essary, president of the club, will leave Washington tonight for Pittsburgh, where she will speak before a meeting of the Pennsylvania Press Women tomorrow night. She will be back in town Sunday morning.

Lonsdale to Speak At Style Show For War Refugees

Frederick Lonsdale, eminent British playwright, has accepted the invitation of the committee headed by Mrs. George Barnett which will sponsor the showing of a collection of Creed costumes on Wednesday, February 19, in Anderson House. The event is planned as a benefit for relief of French refugees in England. Proceeds will be shared with Refugees in England, Inc., of which Countess of Abingdon is the chairman in the United States.

Mr. Lonsdale, known as a wit and writer of sophisticated comery, has consented to speak to the audience on this occasion.

Adding zest to the event is the fact that Mr. Charles Creed, of London, will present a tailored suit to the holder of the lucky number on her ticket stub.

A group of young ladies acting as ushers also will sell silk scarfs from England. They are Miss Marion Shouse, chairman; Mrs. Clifton Phillips, Miss Dolly Corbin, Miss Eleanor Flood, Miss Eleanor Meem, Mrs. Igor Cassini, Mrs. Henry Gwynn, jr.

With Miss Alice L. D. Dodge as chairman, the committee of young women who will wear the Creed costumes includes Mrs. Anthony Rumbold, Mrs. Donald Downs, Mrs. Dexter Lowery, Mrs. Allan Moulton, Miss Peggy Townsend, Miss Margaret Lansdowne, Miss Nancy Strong, Miss Patricia Uline Hill, Miss Emily Davis and Miss Elene Essary.

Princess Boncampagni is chairman of the hostess committee; Miss Alma Ruggles is chairman of refreshments for the fete, and Mrs. George Becker is chairman of tickets.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

THE NATIONAL DEFENSE program is continuing to make temporary widows out of Washington women. One head of a family who has just received his orders is Eugene Carusi. He has been told by the Navy to report March 1 in Seattle for duty aboard a ship. Mrs. Carusi and the children will remain behind in Washington during Mr Carusi's absence. The latter is a brother of Mme. Emmanuel Lombard, wife of the former French Military Attache. Mme. Lombard has just signed a contract with a newspaper syndicate and expects to begin writing a Washington column in about a month.

DUDLEY HARMON

BOUND for Texas, soon to join the cavalry, is Amory Lawrence. He will lease the house he built in Georgetown several years ago "for the duration." Mr. Lawrence is a frequent performer in hunt country race meetings and so is one recruit, anyway, who will be pretty familiar with his new line of duty. Mr. Lawrence's departure will be officially mourned at a party which Robinson McIlvaine and Page Huidekoper will give on Tuesday afternoon. The affair will take place in the house on Thirtieth Street, which the McIlvaines and Miss Huidekoper recently leased for the winter. The amusing, typewritten invitation says the old house has been restored, but "retains practically none of its original atmosphere." The bid also informs friends that the party will celebrate two other events: The forthcoming marriage of Nancy Leiter and Thomas Clagett and Mrs. McIlvaine's birthday.

MRS. Walter Lippmann's name will appear on the cover of a thin little volume which will soon be placed on the bookstands. The wife of the columnist came across in her readings a work by Benjamin Constant, the French writer and a great friend of Mme. de Stael. It was written about Napoleon, but so apropos is it today that Mrs. Lippmann has edited it under the title "Prophecy From the Past."

THE WIFE of Great Britain's Indian Trade Commissioner in New York stood out among the other guests at a tea given the other afternoon by the wife of a British Embassy official. The Indian woman wore her native costume, a sari, or dress fashioned out of one long piece of material ending with a veil over her head. It was of soft gray material with a band of embroidery at the hem. Her husband is an equally striking figure, with a turban topping off his costume.

NOTES: Herbert Pell, newly named Minister to Hungary, is in Washington. He has been stationed in Lisbon as our Envoy to Portugal . . . Also here, on temporary duty with the Division of American Republics, is John White. He was recently named Minister to Haiti and is married to a sister of J. Pierrepont Moffat. . . . Mrs. William T. Mann has joined the exodus to Florida. She will spend a week in Miami Beach. . . . The Jugoslav Minister and Mme. Fotitch will entertain at dinner on Monday . . . Mrs. Hennen Jennings will give a similar party March 4.

John E. Willsons To Live in D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. John Emory Willson, who were married February 5, will make their home in Washington, where the bridegroom is assistant cashier of the Morris Plan Bank. Mrs. Willson is the former Miss Mildred Lawrence, daughter of Mrs. M. Hamilton Lawrence, of Fort Worth, Tex. Mr. Willson's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Barrett P. Willson, of Rockville.

The couple were wed in the Methodist Church at Rockville, with a reception following at the Willson home. The Rev. Frank Tyler, assisted by J. W. Rosenberger, officiated.

The bride wore a rose-colored tweed suit with hat and accessories to match and a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Wilma Lawrence, of Fort Worth, was her sister's only attendant. Charles Markland, of Rockville, was best man.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Leslie J. Reardon, of New York; Mrs. Harvey Brown and Miss Marguerite Brown, of Baltimore, and Miss Wilma Lawrence, of Fort Worth.

Lesbia Lowry To Wed Diplomat

All the way from China comes news that Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kingsley Lowry, of Tientsin and Peiping, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Lesbia, to Robert Martin Taylor, American Vice Consul at Tientsin. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Martin Julian Taylor and the late Charlotte Newman Taylor, of Seattle, Wash.

Miss Lowry is a sister of Mrs. Allan Scott Wolfe, of Washington. She has spent many years in China, and left there to continue her education in Lausanne, at the University of Grenoble, in France and at the Sorbonne in Paris. She received her degree from the Sorbonne just before the outbreak of war.

No date has been set for the wedding. If conditions in the Far East permit, the couple will be married in September, when Mr. Taylor is due here for leave.

Uruguayan Pianist Gives Concert Here

The Pan American Union Building—bright with flags of all the Americas—was the scene of an afternoon concert yesterday at 5 o'clock. Guests had been invited by Uruguayan Minister Jose Richling to hear the famous Uruguayan pianist, Hugo Balzo. Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director of the union, was on hand to assist the Minister in greeting the guests.

A large contingent from the Diplomatic Corps attended, and among them were the Ambassador of Venezuela and Senora de Escalante, the Ambassador of Spain, Don Juan Francisco Cardenas; the Ambassador of Cuba Aurelio Fernandez Conchesco, the Minister of Lithuania and Mme. Zadeikis, the Minister of Latvia and Mme. Bilmanis, the Minister of Bulgaria and Mme. Naoumoff, the Minister of Bolivia and Senora de Guachalla, the Minister of Finland and Mme. Procope, the Minister of Costa Rica and Senora de Fernandez, and the Minister of Thai and Mme. Seni Pramoj.

Attorney General Among Those Present

The Attorney General and Mrs. Robert Jackson represented the Cabinet, and among the Congressional people attending were Senator Tom Connally, Senator Theodore Francis Green, Senator and Mrs. Dennis Chavez, Senator and Mrs. Elbert D. Thomas, Senator and Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg and Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom.

Interested guests were the Coordinator for Latin-American cultural relations, Nelson A. Rockefeller, and Mrs. Rockefeller. The Federal Security Administrator and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt were there, as were Gen. and Mrs. Amos A. Fries, Gen. Allen W. Gullion, Gen. Thomas Holcomb, Gen. and Mrs. Dion William, Admiral and Mrs. Harold Stark, Admiral and Mrs. Edward R. Stitt, Admiral and Mrs. B. H. Dorsey and Admiral and Mrs. Emory Land.

Diplomatic Corps Well Represented

The Military Attache of the Cuban Embassy and Senora de Munilla were there, as were the Secretary of the Venezuelan Embassy and Senora de Lecuna, the Secretary of the Dominican Legation and Senora de Battle, the Assistant Seretary of the Navy and Mrs. Wilson Compton, Federal Communications Commissioner and Mrs. Paul A. Walker, Federal Trade Commissioner and Mrs. Robert E. Freer, the Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Robert H. Hinckley, the Assistant Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Charles V. McLaughlin and the Third Assistant Postmaster General and Mrs. Ramsey S. Black.

200 Attend Reception Honoring the Wallaces

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

More than 200 members of the Congressional Club and their guests last night attended the reception given at the clubhouse on New Hampshire Avenue, honoring Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace—the first such occasion the club has had for eight years.

Mrs. John Taber, of New York, president of the club, headed the receiving line with the guests of honor. Her gown was white and she wore a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Wallace wore aquamarine satin, with a black velvet jacket, trimmed in gold sequins. Next in line was Mrs. Morris Sheppard, wife of Senator Sheppard, of Texas, first vice president of the club, who wore beige chiffon, trimmed with gold. Other officers receiving included Mrs. Herron Pearson, of Tennessee, wearing a gown of light blue, embroidered in beads and sequins; Mrs. Charles Plumley, of Vermont, in black net; Mrs. Charles R. Clason, of Massachusetts, in blue and silver lame; Mrs. Harry Coffee, of Nebraska, in a gown made with a henna chiffon blouse and a skirt with an embroidered design in white, and Mrs. John J. Sparkman, of Alabama, who wore a wine colored dress, trimmed with sequins. Mrs. Homer D. Angell, of Oregon, who was ill, was the only officer unable to be present.

Club's Gayest Event of Season

The occasion was the gayest the club has had this season. Most of the members were accompanied by their husbands and many had other guests as well. Music was provided by the Marine Band Orchestra and there was dancing after the reception.

Tea tables in the two rooms adjoining the ballroom were decorated with pink and white carnations. Secretary of Labor Perkins and wives of several other Cabinet members alternated in pouring. Miss Perkins wore a gown of violet velvet with a velvet orchid trimming the V-shaped neck. Mrs. Frank Knox, wife of the Secretary of Navy, who poured earlier in the evening, was in a gown of black velvet and wore a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, wife of the Attorney General, who served in another room, was wearing moss green velvet; Mrs. Claude R. Wickard, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, had on a gown of blue with sequin trimming on the shoulders; Mrs. Jesse Jones, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, a French blue crepe, made with a close-fitting jacket, and Mrs. Frank C. Walker, wife of the Postmaster General, wore black lace.

Others who poured were club members including Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, wearing black lace; Mrs. Karl LeCompte, of Iowa, in a gold lame gown with which she wore a necklace and earrings of turquoise; Mrs. Fred Gilchrist, of Iowa, in a black crepe with a flower design in colors, and Mrs. Allen J. Ellender, of Louisiana.

Women Members Of House Attend

Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts, and Representative Margaret Chase Smith, of Maine, both members of the club, were among those who attended the reception. Representative Rogers wore red velvet and Representative Smith, black velvet. Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, of the Social Security Board, was among the many there as were Mrs. Parker West, a guest of Mrs. Brewster; Representative and Mrs. William W. Whittington, Mrs. Whittington in a gown of white with rhinestones; Representative and Mrs. Harry Engelbright, Representative and Mrs. Roy O. Woodruff, Representative and Mrs. Jesse Wolcott, Representative and Mrs. Orville Zimmerman, Representative and Mrs. William H. Larrabee, Representative and Mrs. James M. Fitzpatrick and their daughter, Representative and Mrs. J. Buell Snyder, Representative and Mrs. Richard Duncan, Representative and Mrs. Brent Spence, Representative and Mrs. Clarence Imhoff and Representative and Mrs. Jacob E. Davis, of Ohio.

Mayflower Society Reception Tuesday

The annual February reception of the Society of the Mayflower Descendants in the District of Columbia will be held at the Arts Club Tuesday afternoon from 5 to 7. The governor of the society, former Representative Maurice H. Thatcher, of Kentucky, and Mrs. Thatcher, will receive the members and guests, assisted by other officers of the society and Senator and Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine; Representative and Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, of New York; Representative and Mrs. Foster Stearns, of New Hampshire, and Representative George Holden Tinkham, of Massachusetts. Senator Brewster and Representatives Stearns and Tinkham are members of like organizations in their States. Representative Wadsworth is a member of the District of Columbia Society.

Members of the society will bring guests.

At the club at 4:30, preceding the reception there will be a meeting of the society's board of assistants.

Mrs. Tillett Lauds Women Democrats

Fidelity, ingenuity and good humor have been the three qualities responsible in a large degree for woman's important contribution to the success of the Democratic Party, Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, assistant chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said last night.

Speaking at a dinner given in her honor by the Women's National Democratic Club, she congratulated the women of her party on their work in the campaign and urged that they continue their enthusiasm, not only looking toward 1944 but also in doing clear thinking and taking prompt action in support of the Administration's foreign policy, hemisphere defense and domestic policy.

The intellectual grasp of issues on the part of women has been captured by the women's division in literature for the whole party, she said.

P. E. O. Chapter Hears Mrs. Fair

Mrs. Amalie Fair, in charge of the Community Service program of the District Works Project Administration, spoke last night at the meeting of Chapter M of the P. E. O., taking the place of Mrs. Florence Kerr, director of this program for the national WPA, who was called unexpectedly to Columbus, Ohio, to attend a conference. The meeting was at the apartment of Miss Betty Vandersluis and Miss Hilda Canady, 2124 I Street.

Communities anxious to take part in defense activities have found a large variety of work useful to defense for the community service workers to perform, said Mrs. Fair. Pointing out that there may be greater need for these services in the immediate future, she asserted the WPA stood ready to do any amount of defense work required.

Describing the program, including school lunch, housekeeping aide, education, recreation, public health and library services, she declared that "whatever helps to provide health, security and progress to our communities will help the whole Nation in its defense preparations."

Frances Johnston To Tell Garden Club About Old Houses

Frances Benjamin Johnston, honorary member of the Georgetown Garden Club, will give an illustrated lecture on "The Tales Old Houses Tell," at a meeting of the club to be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Arts Club. The illustrations will be pictures of old houses in nine Southern States and in Georgetown.

Miss Johnston founded the Pictorial Archives of the fine arts department of the Library of Congress and has received seven grants for her work from the Carnegie Corporation. She now is completing a book on "North Carolina Architecture" which soon will be published.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

THE 1941 FIGURE may be streamlined, but it can't hold its breath long enough to fit into the wasp waists of the gay 90's.

Members of the Art Department of the Takoma Park Women's Club found this out when they were planning the program they presented at their meeting yesterday at Takoma Park Library.

"When Mother Wore a Pork Pie Hat" was the name of it. Mrs. F. Edward Widdifield, department chairman, and Mrs. Frederick Pratt and Mrs. D. C. Gordon searched their own attics and had contributions from these of other members for the "properties" for the skit. Cutting their production to fit the dresses which they themselves could not get into, they appeared in the opening scene with their arms full of the interesting old clothes, announcing that they had just discovered them in cleaning out their attics. Then, instead of wearing them, they held them up and pointed out special features—lace peplums, ruffles and leg o' mutton sleeves.

Handsome old pieces of Victorian furniture provided the setting for the skit and Mrs. Gordon, in the role of an antique dealer, discussed them. This part of the program took the place of the paper on period furniture which is given once each season at an art department meeting.

AID TO BRITAIN—The Soroptimist Club, through the efforts of Mrs. Betty Jones and Mrs. Edna Hoffman, recently sent 100 warm garments to Britain, it was announced at this week's meeting.

Mrs. Jena Bennett, president of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs and a member of the local club, has announced a meeting of the national presidents of Soroptimist, Zonta, Quota and Altrusa, to be held at the Mayflower Hotel February 23.

Bottleneck in the Trash Room

Morris W. McGhee, 50, of 487 H Street Northwest, was charged with being drunk and ordered to post $10 collateral yesterday after residents at 701 Fourth Street Northwest complained that he slept in the apartment house trash room.

McGhee, said the neighbors, created a bottleneck when residents wanted to empty their wastebaskets.

We Didn't Know He Was Sick

A colored man from the rural section of Prince Georges was offering his defense for not registering in the draft before "the boys down at the store."

He said he had heard "Uncle Sam was dead."

The storekeeper, a staunch Republican, opined: "I knew the old man was in a bad way, but I didn't know he was dead."

Defense Agencies Now Total 71

The list of national defense agencies continues to grow, the official list now numbers 71 departments and bureaus.

Several other agencies are trying to get themselves on it. Latest additions are the National Power Policy Committee, Health and Medical Committee of the Federal Security Agency, Customs Bureau, Commodity Exchange Administration, Office of Production Management and the Office of the Defense Housing Coordinator. It is significant, however, that despite the increased number of agencies on the national defense list, the hiring of employes from the replacement list appears to have bogged down. To date, 7,684 persons have been approved for the replacement list and only about 1,800 have been placed in jobs in national defense agencies. The replacement list was created to give preference in defense jobs to employes involuntarily separated.

Albert J. Browning, deputy director of Defense Purchases, was explaining to the Senate Appropriations Committee that eight pairs of shoes had to be on hand and on order the first year each new soldier was in the Army. During the second year, he said, only four pairs were needed. "What I fail to understand," cracked Senator Carter Glass, "is how George Washington and his men whipped the British without any shoes."

Mrs. Max Stern, backed ably by Senator Wagner, has been appointed executive secretary for NLRB at $7,500 a year. Her husband draws a similar salary at the Social Security Board where he is chief of the information division . . . Civil Service Commission received a "tip" that some of its employes were teaching at schools where applicants for merit exams were coached. It has ordered all employes to give full details on work they have performed outside the commission since January 1, 1940. Nothing to substantiate the report has been turned up.

Census Dismissals

Census Bureau will give dismissal notices today to 232 temporary employes. Incidentally, a prominent colored churchman who charged that Census was discriminating against its colored employes has retracted the accusation after a personal inquiry . . . NFFE will stage its annual "Kiddie Party" Saturday night at the Washington Hotel. Gertrude McNally and W. E. Hoffheims will award prizes to those best costumed . . . UFWA will launch a campaign today for Congressional approval of its bill which would give Federal employes automatic annual pay raises of $100.

The War Department received a letter yesterday from a Southerner who wants to sell 500 carloads of sawdust for "national defense purposes" . . . Twelve Government employe drama clubs have entered the one-act play tournament. The Census group is being directed by Ruby Allen. The cast is composed of Louise Farnsworth, John J. Maloney, Vincent Malley and Leroy Gandy . . . The annual dance of the Fraternal Order of Rats will be held tomorrow night at the Bureau of Engraving auditorium.

An exam for Navy civilian police will be announced by the Civil Service Commission. The jobs will pay $3,200. Upward of 3,000 men will be needed. The Navy is replacing marines at Navy yards with civilians . . . Twenty-four persons passed the recent Civil Service test for assistant curator . . . Field employes of the National Resources Planning Board receive a higher average salary than Washington employes—$2,751 compared to $2,533.

Col. Charles Lindbergh has been labeled the "lone ostrich" by OPM employes . . . James Neville is president of FHA's credit union which has 405 members . . . Spencer Thompson, assistant personnel director at Treasury, has been appointed assistant to the public debt commissioner . . . Gertrude McNally has been re-elected corresponding secretary of the Women's Union of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing for the upteenth time. Others elected were Ollie Greer, president; Nicie Ferrell, vice president; Ann Sundholm, recording secretary; Gertrude Schellhorn, secretary-treasurer; Minnie Stevens, guardian, and Lee Williams, guide.

Send your entries in the recreational contest to the Federal Employe Council, in care of WJSV. The two winners will be sent to St. Petersburg for a week's vacation, all expenses paid. The contest is limited to Federal employes.

Citizens Row At Crosstown Bus Hearing

One Faction Urges Private Firm Be Asked to Provide Proposed Service

A proposal that a "private organization" be invited to provide Washington with a crosstown bus line if the Capital Transit Co. won't was recommended to the Public Utilities Commission yesterday as embattled citizens continued their fight for a bus system linking Northwest and Northeast Washington. The hearing will continue at 1:30 p. m. today.

Climaxing a heated argument between the two factions—the Federation of Businessmen's Associations, which favors the Klingle Road Park Road route, and the steering committee of the Citizens Association, which favors the Military Road route—Thomas Regan, of the Conduit Road Citizens Association, jumped to his feet while testifying and demanded to know of the company whether it would permit a private organization to "give us this bus we demand."

S. R. Bowen, chief counsel for the company, which is opposed to a crosstown bus line at this time, asked Regan if he would put his money in such a venture.

Commission Chairman Riley E. Elgen, asked the hearing to "stick to the point in question," which is the feasibility of establishing a crosstown bus line. Proposals are to connect Westmoreland Circle and Bladensburg Road Northeast.

Differ Over Route

The steering committee, which claims to represent 29 citizens' associations, is headed by Chairman Nathan M. Lubar. This group is in favor of the Military Road crossing of Rock Creek Park. Louis I. Obergh, representing the Federation of Businessmen's Associations, is arguing in behalf of the Klingle Road-Park Road route. The transit company, which has not had a chance to testify as yet, is presently content to see the two factions argue.

When Godfrey L. Munter, president of the Chevy Chase Citizens Association, testified his group was unanimous in favor of the Military Road route, Bowen asked him how many members of the citizens' association (which has a 2,000 membership) were present when this action was taken. The fiery association president yelled back:

"Ten times as many as attended your stockholders meetings."

"I attend both meetings," he added.

Favored Military Road

Munter said the entire Chevy Chase area was canvassed on its preference in the matter through its association newspaper "and there were no disapprovals registered on the Military Road route."

Harry S. Wender, first vice president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, told the commission the federation had voted in favor of a crosstown route but did not voice its opinion on the routes involved.

Personally, Wender testified, "I would recommend a bus line over both routes."

Bowen cautioned the citizens' associations against "burdening the company with unproductive bus line extensions." Wender replied that the company could, if the crosstown bus line were established and proved to be "unproductive," ask the commission for permission to abandon the line.

Milo H. Brinkley, representing the Georgetown Citizens Association, spoke in favor of the Military Road crossing but recommended service to the residents along Nebraska Avenue and Conduit Road Northwest.

13th Street "Race Course"

James A. Purcell, chariman of the public utilities committee of the Arkansas Avenue Community Association, said his association favored the Military Road route. He complained the transit company has made "a race course out of Thirteenth Street in our neighborhood and you will hear more of this later." He pointed out there is now "too much traffic along Park Road and the District highway director has already testified the Klingle Road Bridge was not suitable for a bus route."

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst testified on Tuesday, first day of the hearing, that the Klingle Road Bridge could only stand a load of 12,000 pounds.

Bruce E. Anderson, of the Citizens Association of Takoma, D. C., approved of the Military Road proposal.

First proponent to take the stand in favor of the Klingle Road crossing was Bernard Elman, secretary of the Cleveland Park Business Men's Association. He said this route would service Government offices along U Street Northwest by providing feeder bus systems to the Fourteenth and Eleventh Street car lines. The association secretary also asked "who appointed Mr. Lubar a committee of one to demand the Military Road route."

Elman precipitated a heated argument when he said he had been told by A. J. Driscoll, president of the Midcity Citizens Association, of which Lubar is a member, that the association knew of no action permitting Lubar to "present the case." Various citizen representatives jumped to their feet defending Lubar. The commission called a halt to this and summoned the next witness.

James Gammon, representing the Rhode Island Citizens Association, made the first plea by a citizens association for the Klingle Road route but added if this route were not acceptable by the commission "then the Military Road route will be all right, too."

Boys Club Drive Launched As 'American Way Foundation'

3. CAMPAIGN CHAIRMAN Charles B. Dulcan (right) discusses the forthcoming drive for funds with Inspector Arthur E. Miller and Mrs. Miller

The annual campaign for $100,000 to finance the Metropolitan Police Boys Clubs was launched last night by a mass meeting of 1,000 workers in a drive described by Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt as an effort to make Washington something more than a "collection of houses."

The dollars contributed by Washingtonians to the clubs, McNutt said, in addressing the gathering in the Willard Hotel, "will help make constructive leisure-time activities possible" for 16,500 boys who are members of the organization.

"The leisure-time activities a community affords its boys and girls is the measure of the community," he asserted. "Without facilities and programs for the constructive use of leisure time the community is merely a collection of houses."

American Way

"But democracy needs not merely leisure. Democracy requires opportunity. The boys of our community must live as boys and their right to live as boys must not be conditioned by the wages or income of their parents.

"Let us get this clear. It is no charity which the community is asked to perform. It is an assumption of responsibility, a responsibility to provide for every boy and girl that equality of opportunity which is the foundation stone of the American way."

McNutt was the star performer of the campaign inaugural. His speech, cheered by the workers, was broadcast by two radio networks.

An 11-year-old member of the organization, started by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, eight years ago, opened the meeting. He was Jack Smithson, a member of the Fifth Precinct Club. He led the gathering in a recitation of "The Lord's Prayer."

"Bound to Succeed"

Shortly after Morris Cafritz, president of the clubs, declared the campaign is "bound to succeed" under the chairmanship of Charles B. Dulcan, sr., Miss Elizabeth Howry, president of the organization's women's auxiliary, made the drive's first contribution—a check for $1,000 from the auxiliary.

Maj. Brown pictured the aim of the clubs as a move to end among boys the "cheese-it-the-cops complex." He pointed out that the city's juvenile crime rate has dropped from 352 when the first club was organized in 1933 to 56 in 1939.

James E. Colliflower, former president of the organization, and last night's master of ceremonies, and Fred A. Smith, chairman of the advanced gifts committee, joined other speakers in praise of Brown, Smith called the major "the greatest police chief in the United States, a real man doing a real job for the boys of the District."

First Lady's Letter Read

Dulcan read a letter from the White House expressing Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's wishes for the campaign's success. Dulcan tore up his prepared speech, explaining that it would have duplicated McNutt's.

Mrs. John A. Dougherty picked up a phrase from Wendell L. Willkie's Lincoln Day speech:

"Have you got it in you?"

L. Gordon Leech, campaign director, explained the mechanics of the drive.

The Fifth Precinct Harmonica Band—Edward Lincoln, 16; Edward Sullivan, 17; Anthony Santangelo, 15; Charles Bowzee, 17, and John Heelen, 18—shared the musical program with the Hecht Co. chorus, directed by John G. Klein.

Willett Tells Of Expansion By the Chest

Defense Program Poses Problem, He Says; Sen. Burton Praises Agency

Expansion of Community Chest services in a dozen directions in 1941—because of increased support from citizens—was announced by Herbert L. Willett, jr., director, at the Chest's thirteenth annual meeting last night.

With "thousands of persons" coming to Washington because of the defense program—some without jobs and some with insufficient funds until their first pay day—a worker and more relief funds have been added to the Travelers Aid Society, Willett said.

In addition "a fund of $5,000 was earmarked for unpredictable needs that may develop from defense activities in 1941," he added.

Senator Harold H. Burton (Republican), of Ohio, hailed the movement as a mighty factor in civic betterment, naming among its values the offsetting of Fifth Column tendencies which feed upon discontent, and its development of "a community's heart to match its sinews."

Folger Accepts

J. Clifford Folger has accepted the general chairmanship of the next Chest campaign, it was announced by Coleman Jennings, Chest president. Folger served as chairman of advance gifts in the last campaign.

Several hundred agency staff members, campaign leaders and contributors gathered in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium for the meeting, at which a board of 240 Chest trustees was elected.

Willett in his annual report pointed out new expansions in services "made possible by the increase of over $72,000 from the campaign and from increased collections." They include:

An increase from 665 to 798 children, to be given foster-home care by the Children's Protective Association.

Increase of 9 per cent in number of foster home placements by Catholic Charities.

Staff Increased

Addition of a neighborhood worker to Barney Neighborhood House for better supervision of young people in their leisure time.

Addition of worker to Georgetown Children's House to encourage young people's use of recreation activities.

Addition of two nurses to the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society, making possible 3,800 additional visits to ill persons in 1941.

Casework services added to Children's Country Home and Christ Child Society Farm.

two half-time workers added to Northwest Settlement House.

An additional $500 to Bureau of Rehabilitation, which assists released prisoners to regain a foothold of self-support.

Denial Fund Established

An increase of 75 in the number of needy families which Family Service Association "will be able to bring back to self-support in 1941."

Establishment of a new dental fund to cover cost of materials in dental clinics of hospitals for persons certified by Health Security Administration.

A $15,000 fund for building repairs (in comparison with only $6,000 last year), plus $2,500 to replace equipment.

Willett pointed out that the 216,000 givers in the recent campaign represented a record-breaking number, 20,000 more than in any previous year; and that $50,000 more was raised than in the year before.

Willett pointed out in connection with the additional service of the Travelers Aid Society that it was "an effort to help prevent actual suffering."

John A. Reilly, treasurer, reported $1,863,435.26 in income for the Chest in the last year.

A parade of talent from various Chest agencies completed the program. Andrew Shreve, 15, a member of the Boys' Club, served as master of ceremonies. Other entertainers included Gertrude Green and Loretta Crawford, tiny dancers from Southeast House; Vernon Johnson, a blind boy pianist, Department for the Blind, Family Service Association; Mary Sullivan, vocalist, St. Rose's Technical School; Sidney Shulman, pianist, Barney Neighborhood House; Ruth Hickman, Audrey Ball and Audrey Price, tap dancers, Southwest Community House; Lillian Rocha, monologist, Christ Child Settlement House.

Grocer Foils Holdup, Then Fires at Fleeing Bandit

FIRED AT BANDIT—Coleman Shear, storekeeper, fired at intruder who smashed his window

Coleman Shear, 47, proprietor of a grocery at 1521 Fifth Street Northwest, is an easygoing fellow.

But last night Shear was behind the meat counter when a masked bandit stepped into the store and, with a hand in his pocket, as if he were carrying a gun, demanded money.

Shear merely sidestepped a direct answer by ducking into the back and locking himself in with his wife, Susie, 36, and their two daughters.

Unable to open the cash register, and unable to force the backroom door, the bandit hurled a meat cleaver through the back-door window, the missile barely missing Susie's head.

That got Shear mad.

He grabbed a gun and fired twice. The bandit fled. And police think he was wounded, since only one of the bullets could be found.

Throughout this melodramatic action, Henry Moton, of 1517 Fifth Street Northwest, was talking to a friend in the phone booth. The shooting was the first hint he had of the attempted holdup.

Laurel Man Dies, Hit by Car In College Park

D. C. traffic deaths this year.... 15
Deaths this date last year..... 6
District total last year..... 79

A Laurel (Md.), man yesterday succumbed in Casualty Hospital to traffic injuries, as a coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death in another fatality, Washington's fifteenth of the year.

Earling Bryant Marshall, 40, of Laurel, who was struck by an automobile when crossing the Washington-Baltimore Boulevard at College Park at midnight Wednesday, died early yesterday.

The driver of the automobile, Carl A. Mueller, of Edmonston, is being held under $500 bond by Prince Georges County police on a manslaughter charge.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury following an inquest into the traffic death Tuesday of John W. Fritter, 75, of 4750 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest.

Driver of the car, Thomas J. Fadoal, 30, of Arlington, Va., was exonerated after witnesses testified that Fritter was not crossing in a crosswalk, and that he walked through a street car loading zone into the path of Fadoal's car.

Mrs. Edith Owen Rice, 50, wife of Sam Rice, former centerfielder for the Washington Senators, escaped with a broken finger in a three-car collision on the Colesville Pike at Ednor, Md., yesterday.

Mrs. Rice was admitted to the Montgomery County General Hospital at Ashton.

Private J. J. Coughlan, of the Second Precinct, was injured when the scout car in which he was riding collided with a light sedan in front of 58 M Street Northwest.

Driver of the other car, which struck a telephone pole, according to police, was the Rev. Rubin W. Hall, colored, 35, of 2011 Third Street Northwest. At Freedmen's Hospital Mr. Hall was treated for head lacerations, while the policeman was treated at Sibley Hospital for an arm injury.

Injured when his bicycle collided with a car on Maryland Avenue near Bladensburg Road was John Carroll, 16, of 1619 B Street Northeast. Taken to Casualty Hospital Carroll was treated for a possible fractured skull. The automobile, according to police, was driven by Esther B. Bonstein, 25, of 710 Hamlin Street Northeast.

'Out-of-Bounds' Proposal Irks Service Group

Proposals of Police Superintendent Ernest W. Brown for the prohibiting of enlisted service men from a Washington "out of bounds" yesterday was termed a slur both on the Army and the District of Columbia by officials of the Military Order of the World War.

Capt. Edward A. Duff, chaplain of the order, retired chief chaplain of the Navy who returned the body of America's Unknown Soldier to this country, denounced the police chief's suggestion was a "tremendous slur to the whole enlisted personnel" in a meeting at the Mayflower.

Later Col. J. M. Heller, surgeon-general of the organization, added the proposal was not only an insult to the service men but to the city itself. Capt. Duff's remarks were referred to a policy committee for action.

Lieut. Col. John Dahlquist, of the Army general staff, the principal speaker, outlined the method of induction of recruits and their allocation to the various branches.

D. C. Transit System Hit By Citizens

Congress Heights Proposes Either Public Ownership Or Rival Utility

The Congress Heights Citizens Association last night voted in favor of either municipal ownership of Washington's transit system or the setting up of a utility in competition with the Capital Transit Co.

The citizens cast their votes after a number of them had roundly scored the traction company on a half-dozen grounds.

Among these charges were the following: The Capital Traction Co. doesn't cooperate properly with Washington communities by arranging routes and schedules suitable to their needs; fares are too high; the transit company is unreceptive to the wishes of citizens as expressed in Public Utility Commission and other hearings.

Members voted to send their requests to both houses of Congress.

"We have started the ball rolling and we are going to get all the other associations behind us," Mrs. Edna Dulin, secretary, reported.

American University Park

The American University Park Citizens Association last night went on record in opposition to proposals for a municipal assembly for the District.

The assembly would merely duplicate the work of the Federation of Citizens Association, members asserted.

The unit also voted to appropriate 10 per cent of its income from fees for the "preservation of the high residential character of the community." The money would go to defray the expense of hiring lawyers to fight zoning changes.

The association also favored traffic department regulations requiring photographs on operators' permits.

The Washingtonians

The Washingtonians voted last night that only a "bona fide" District resident, versed in local law and customs, should be appointed to the District Court vacancy created by retirement of Justice Peyton Gordon.

The unit also indorsed the request of Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Washington police superintendent, for four scout car-ambulances, as an added traffic safeguard here.

Members also went on record in favor of reappointment of Judge George Aukam, whose term expired some time ago, to Municipal Court. The Sumners and Capper resolutions in Congress for national representation and suffrage for the District likewise were indorsed.

'Son of Monte Cristo' Swashbuckles at Capitol

Louis Hayward and Joan Bennett Costarred In Lusty Balkan Romance of the Year 1865; Benny Meroff's 'Funzafire' Riot on Stage

"THE SON OF MONTE CRISTO." Edward Small's picturization for United Artists of a screen play by George Bruce, costarring Joan Bennett and Louis Hayward, with George Sanders, Florence Bates, Lionel Royce, Montagu Love, Ian Mac Wolfe, Clayton Moore, Ralph Byrd, Georges Renavent, Michael Visaroff, Rand Brooks, Theodor von Eltz, James Seay, Henry Brandon, Jack Mulhall, Edward Keane and Lawrence Grant. Directed by Rowland V. Lee. At Loew's Capitol Theater.

IT IS A TURBULENT BUSINESS that swashes its highly polished buckles all over the place—to coin an apt, second-hand descriptive—that occupies the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater this week. In the extravagance of its adventure and the ardency of its romance, it rejuvenates somnolent memories of Anthony Hope's preoccupation with the burning problems of "The Prisoner of Zenda" and George Barr McCutcheon's fascinated interest in flamboyant events in Graustark.

BELL

"The Son of Monte Cristo" concerns itself with dirty doings in a mythical Balkan kingdom in the year 1865. Its heroic central figure is the valorous offspring of the fabulous avenger who spent 20 years tunneling his way out of the granite dungeons of the Chateau D'If. The kid is a worthy child of his truculent old man. He whips out the most lethal blade on the continent, at great or small provocation—"My father was the finest swordsman in France"—delights in succoring beautiful ladies in distress, especially if he has fallen in love with them; abhors the venomous intrigues of evil statecraft and perceives fair game in the arrogant fellow who would cheat the Grand Duchess Zona of her heart and her throne.

The rectification of all the Balkan ills is a comparatively simple task for him, once he has mastered the workings of all those secret panels, subterranean passages, catacombs, iron-barred cells, the goal and the gibbet. Gurko Lannen, the peasant, hoist to power by the petard of his own cussedness, never has a chance.

To anyone who can transport himself to the imaginative realms of fantastic romance, that ignores all the rules of logic, plausibility and believable drama, "The Son of Monte Cristo" will exert a pretty powerful tug. It has magnitude, a considerable dash of magnificance and the virtue of painstaking production and performance. Louis Hayward, cast in the title role, is no tyro in the embodiment of the pyrotechnic qualities of fiery youth—as witness, for a single example, "The Man in the Iron Mask." He plays his present role with vast vigor, great charm and highly explosive melodramatic effect. Joan Bennett, as the Grand Duchess Zona, of course, is a thing of infinite beauty, even if not too much warmth or conviction. Next to Mr. Hayward's, the most arresting acting job of any member of the cast is contributed by George Sanders, as Lannen, the suave scoundrel, who personifies the fatal frailties of villainy. Mr. Sanders will be starred one of these days—or deserves to be—in a role that will profit by his great ability as an actor. Among the supporting players, Florence Bates, Lionel Royce, Montagu Love, Ian Mac Wolfe, Theodor von Eltz and Jack Mulhall come in for primary notice.

If "The Son of Monte Cristo" seems tempestuous on the screen, Benny Meroff's "Funzafire" revue, on the stage and all over the house, takes on all the cyclonic velocity of a typhoon. This miniature "Hellzapoppin" is a whizbag of wild motion, theater-wide unconventionality and whole-hearted horror. What I mean is that no one dares be complacently smug during its hour or so of running time, because at any minute some voluptuous blonde or comic caricature may leap out of his inside coat pocket at him, and then where will he be? He will be right in the midst of the most insane, most unbridled and most undignified interval of hilarious high-jinks in which he ever has been trapped. There is no keeping up with the lunacy of this latest of the Meroff ebullitions. Who does what, this column never will know. All it knows is that somewhere during the goings-on the customers will be diverted, embarassed or rolled in the aisles, as the case may be, by Terry Howard and Jack Taliey, Ken and Roy Paige, Al Devito & Co., Louise Shannon, one of the better of the tap dancers; Joe Blondell, the Four Sailorettes, Al Spiro, Billy Morosco, and the Eight Daughters of Satan. The king-stinger of all this, of course, is Benny Meroff and His Band.

The Fox Movietone News, bearing down on the fall of Bardia, which is in Africa, and Wendell Willkie's visit to England, and Sam Jack Kaufman's shattering arrangement of Von Suppe's "Poet and Peasant" overture are the major auxiliaries of a bill that detonates like dynamite.

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Feb. 13. Gene Markey and Harry Cohn seem to be going places. Gene has a story for Fred Astaire, and hopes to team him with Jack Oakie and Paulette Goddard. But Wesley Ruggles is certainly having his struggle, trying to find a star for one of the finest parts of the year, in "The Doctor's Husband." He's tried unsuccessfully to get Helen Hayes, asked Katharine Cornell to write her own ticket, and would love to borrow Norma Shearer. These independent producers aren't getting much cooperation from the big ones.

HOPPER

Remember how for years we laughed about stars' swimming pools? Now the Government's paying them to build 'em according to specifications, so, if emergency arises, they can be used as antiaircraft bases. I hear there are now more swimming pools in Beverly Hills than bathtubs. But the catch is, the owners have to pay for the water. A friend tells me her pool alone costs $250 a month, just for the upkeep. Yes, even bathing comes higher in our town.

Bill Powell dressed himself up as a woman, as he does in "Love Crazy," and made a test, using his own dialogue, which is so funny it's used to rest executives on an off-day. No, I can't tell—it won't bear printing.

Ingrid Bergman is a new kind of picture personality. When the most prominent national magazine wanted a picture layout of her, she rebelled only because, as she said, she had done nothing to warrant that kind of build-up. Such modesty is so rare it's worth commenting on.

Sir Victor Sassoon, here for a short stay from China, is having himself a whirl, and at the same time, trying to buy more bombers and ambulances for England. He doesn't think we'll get into a war with Japan. We're fast becoming so strong that they won't dare tackle us. And when asked by one of our stars why he never married, he said, "I promised at least 50 women I wouldn't, and can't bring myself to disappoint that many."

When Judy Garland went on the air in a sketch which she'd written herself, she thought nothing of it. Now an independent studio wants to buy it and enlarge it into a picture. Sure, Judy sang "Over the Rainbow" at the Greek Benefit Saturday. I still think it's the best song she ever did.

You don't look upon movie producers as philanthropists, but the way Warners have built Rita Hayworth into a star for Harry Cohn is something to shout about.

The girls who swooned over swashbucklin' Errol Flynn will have a chance to die laughing at him as a comedian in "Footsteps in the Dark," so I'm told. He's always been funny to me.

Did you know that Cary Grant is the most generous British actor in Hollywood? He's already donated over $300,000 to the British War Relief. Roland Young, who's lived here lo, these many years, sends over $250 weekly.

Watch for the Wally Beery wedding some day soon. It will surprise many, but delight Carol Ann.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Feb. 13 (INS). Rosalind Russell, who hasn't lighted long enough at M.-G.-M. to make a movie there in over a year, checks in at her home lot for "Uniform." That's a surprise move, you will admit, since Hedy Lamarr was supposed to be teamed with Clark Gable. But Hedy has been really sick, first with the flu and then with several refractory wisdom teeth that took her into the hospital.

PARSONS

Roz's nomination for the role implies more than appears on the surface. Her contract with M.-G.-M. is about up and she has been loathe to resign because she has been either at Columbia or Universal since she made "The Women." She has made more pictures at Columbia than she has for her home studio. But "Uniform," with Gable as the male attraction and Clarence Brown megaphoning, will probably solve the contract problem. How well I remember the last time Gable and Roz were teamed. It was in "China Seas," with Jean Harlow as the lead and Roz as the lady he forgot when he met the alluring little Harlow. They all appeared on the Hollywood Hotel program in one of the first previews of its kind.

Not since Alice Faye has Rudy Vallee had a protegee who showed so much promise as Joan Merrill. Just as Alice and Rudy were smitten with each other in the beginning, I hear that Mr. Vallee's interest in the pretty Merrill girl is slightly on the romantic side, too. Be that as it may, Columbia has just handed Joan a contract and is featuring her in a picture with Rudy titled "Show Business"—which is good business, if you ask me. She has appeared on his radio shows and they tell me the gal was a sensation singing in New York. In addition to Joan and Rudy, "Show Business" will also have the box-office services of Glen Gray and his Casa Loma Band to help bring in the shekels.

From extra boy to writer sounds a little Horatio Algerish, but nevertheless, that's exactly what happened to James Langham. Up to a few days ago he was just a part of the movie atmosphere. Today he is a writer on the Paramount lot by order of Buddy de Sylva, the new production boss, and this is how it happened: Langham was telling a story to some of his pals in the commissary. Buddy overheard bits of it and was intrigued. He asked the extra to come to his office with the result that the story, "Sing a Song of Homicide," not only won Langham an immediate check but future remittances as well, for it will be a series.

One more familiar face at Paramount Studios is missing. A. M. Botsford, who has been with Paramount 19 years, tendered his resignation today to go with William Le Baron, with whom he has been associated as executive producer. I have know Botsford since the days I was on the Morning Telegraph and he was advertising director for Para. I couldn't help thinking the other day when I was at para and walked down the corridor, how many of the old friends are no longer there—Adolph Zukor, Jesse Lasky, Louis Lighton, Harold Hurley, Al Kaufman, Henry Herzbrun, who went back to his law practice, and scores of others who used to call friendly greetings, are no longer members of the Para personnel.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Bettye Avery, who announced her engagement to Governor Lehman's nephew, finding Bently Ryan, young attorney, good company. They drove me home the other eve; look out Honolulu! Mickey Rooney leaves Friday (lucky guy) for the tropical isles; Carmen and John Considine entertaining Father Flanagan, of Boys Town fame, at Ciro's. It was Carmen's first public appearance since the birth of young Timmy and she looked exceptionally well; the Sergei Rachmaninoffs hosting a party also at Ciro's almost 100 per cent Russian—Gregory Ratoff, Akim Tamiroff and Mischa Auer.

Carole Landis and Ed Norris have discovered each other; Priscilla Lane and David Lewis in a big discussion at the Wilshire Bowl; Joan Crawford will spend her vacation in Mexico City—not New York as everyone expected; Bette Davis is the latest to enroll as a Spanish student; Orville Dull, popular on the M.-G.-M. lot, has been made a full fledged producer; the Norman Taurogs have booked passage for Honolulu and will leave as soon as "Men of Boys Town" is completed.

John Garfield's wife found a brand new station wagon waiting for her when she returned from the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital; Jean Parker, who marries Douglas Dawson Friday, has taken a house at Toluca Lake.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Metropolitan

Virginians must feel a warming glow when they see how neatly the radiant beauty of their State has been caught by Technicolor for "Virginia," reopening this morning at the Metropolitan after a week at the Earle.

Most of the picture was filmed last summer in Charlottesville and its luxuriant surrounding country. Fred MacMurray and Madeleine Carroll have the pivotal roles in a story of modern setting which pits antebellum beliefs against the ignorance of former customs personified by an impoverished young actress from New York.

Miss Carroll plays this arrival from Manhattan. She falls in love with the sturdy young neighbor who used to give her a bath when she was a baby, for while she may seem like a stranger, she's really back to look over the old homestead and, if possible, sell it. She knew him then and is amazed to find herself falling in love with the chap, though he is a married man. One of those wealthy, handsome young New Yorkers, a part-time Virginian, offers to take trouble off her hands, a marriage proposal for which Madeleine dresses her finest.

Family servants, old customes, heirlooms, Helen Broderick, with a Southern accent, are other potent factors in the film. Pert Carolyn Lee, that wee actress who wound up in a local hospital instead of at the President's birthday parties, has a happy role, and there is a stalwart newcomer in the person of blond Stirling Hayden. While still not at complete ease before the camera, this good-looking giant very likely will become a personality much in demand.

Leonard Lyons:

New York, Feb. 13.

KYLE CRICHTON, as one of the editors of Collier's, edited the magazine articles written by Luther Davis and John Cleveland, Davis and Cleveland, as authors of the revue, "Crazy With the Heat," edited the sketches contributed by Kyle Crichton . . . The Book-of-the-Month Club recommended M. Lincoln Schuster's new book about the world's greatest letters, which Simon & Schuster published. And so when they asked Schuster to what he attributes the book's success, he confessed: "To the fact that I picked a good publisher." Geoffrey Hellman, who writes Profiles for the New Yorker and Life, was in Washington preparing a Profile on President Roosevelt for Life . . . Life published Hellman's Profile of William Saroyan . . . Saroyan had been under the impression that the manuscript would be shown to him, before publication, for inaccuracies. It wasn't shown to him . . . And so he immediately dispatched a 5,000-word telegram enumerating those passages which he felt were inaccurate. He sent those 5,000 words collect . . . Fortunately for Life's bank account, Saroyan also was guilty of inaccuracy. He sent the wire to Time Magazine.

LYONS

POLITICS: Fulton Oursler, the editor of Liberty Magazine, is a member of the Players, and frequently visits the theatrical great at the club founded by Edwin Booth . . . Oursler campaigned for Willkie and was anxious to speak on the same platform with Clare Boothe. "For only one reason," he confessed. "I wanted to be able to go back to the Players and tell the boys at the bar: 'Y'know, fellows—when I played with Boothe . . .'"

Tommy Harmon, Michigan's All-America back, whose school honored him by retiring his famed Number 98 from all football uniforms, arrived at Lindy's, accompanied by Eddie Cantor . . . The football player checked his hat and coat with the cloakroom attendant, who gave him the first check available. It was 98.

SOCIAL NOTES: Paul Warburg went to a party where a beautiful lady, with a new, blonde coiffure, greeted him affectionately . . . "Er . . . hel-lo," Warburg hesitantly acknowledged . . . The lady drew back, startled, and said, disappointedly: "You don't remember me" . . . "But I do," Warburg protested. "Er . . . I've been to your house many times, and you've visited ours" . . . "That's right," she agreed, "but you don't remember me" . . . "But I—I do," Warburg assured. "Why, we've . . . er . . . we've known each other for many, many years" . . . "Well," sighed the lady, "I never thought the day would come when it would be necessary for me to ask such a question. But," she shrugged. "It's come, and I must ask it. What's my name?" . . . "All right, I give up," Warburg confessed. "Tell me—what's your name?" . . . And so she told him—slowly, distinctly, letting each vowel and syllable strike clearly. She told him: "N-o-r-m-a S-h-e-a-r-e-r."

BIRTHDAY DEPARTMENT: Dame May Whitty, the distinguished actress, celebrated her seventy-fifth birthday a short time ago. Her equally distinguished daughter, Margaret Webster, scoured the town for a suitable gift to present to her mother on the day of attaining such a venerable age . . . After hours of search, Miss Webster finally found what she considered the ideal gift, the one her 75-year-old mother wanted—an electric cocktail shaker.

SPORTS DEPARTMENT: Kalmar and Ruby, the oldest team of song writers in the industry, have decided to sever their relationship, after these many years . . . Until they form new associations, each will devote his time to his favorite hobby—Kalmar to amateur magic and Ruby to playing baseball . . . Ruby has played baseball in almost every country in the world. He has been to Panama twice, each time for one day—and each time he spent the day playing baseball there. The only place in which he could find no ball game was Alaska—because whatever natives he found willing to play were unable to do so for lack of equipment. Such a tragedy, however, never will befall Ruby again. For wherever he goes—be it the Virgin Islands, Milwaukee or Patagonia—Ruby always takes with him five gloves, two bats and two baseballs, "just in case," as he explains it, "a situation should arise."

LOCAL NEWS: Erik Mann flew to England to interview some people there, and then lecture about them throughout America . . . The Hays office has notified Walt Disney that no characters in his cartoons may get drunk, except accidentally . . . Buddy de Sylva wanted to prove that anything can be secured in Hollywood, and offered to wager that within three hours he could hire five dark men each with a broken nose—but nobody would take the bet. "Then I'll bet," de Sylva offered, "that I'll get five dark men with broken noses—and that each nose will be twisted to the right." His bet wasn't called.

Grand Duchess Attends First Lady's Press Parley

Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxembourg yesterday saw how democracy works at a press conference of an American President's wife. On hand when Mrs. Roosevelt received a corps of newspaper women at the White House, the Grand Duchess heard a reporter ask the First Lady what she meant when she referred to something that happened during "the last war," when America is not in war at the present.

Mrs. Roosevelt was discussing the current need for more adequate housing and hospitalization in Washington when she mentioned that during the influenza epidemic in "the last war" patients were sometimes put out of hospitals before they had recovered. Special measures should be taken to see that such a condition does not prevail again, the First Lady said.

"What do you mean by referring to 'the last war,' as if this country were already in another war?" Mrs. Roosevelt was asked by a newspaper woman who has recently returned from the West Coast.

Mrs. Roosevelt replied that she was referring to "the last war in Europe," and she added that it is obvious this country is not on a war basis now, excepting regard to the speeding up of a production on war materials.

Continuing her explanation, she said that some of us believe that if we allow Great Briain to go under, we will be in a war in a few years—even though we are not at the present.

Grand Duchess Charlotte earlier had stood with Mrs. Roosevelt at the door of the second-floor White House sitting room to shake hands with members of the conference as they came in. Before the press women ascended the broad stairway, they had been politely but firmly requested by a White House guard to "walk up the steps in single file, and not too quickly." "Some time ago, when the Dutch duchess was here," he went on, "the press women came at her so quickly they frightened her."

Every care was taken by the newspaperwomen yesterday to see that the current royal visitor was not "frightened." But she seemed somewhat ill at ease anyway as she sat through the conference and watched the performance intently. Her tailored sapphire crepe frock was accented with a long strong of pearls and dangling ear-rings to match. The press women made a few notes on her attire and then turned their attention to Mrs. Roosevelt.

Waller Made General

By the Associated Press

President Roosevelt yesterday nominated Brig. Gen. Samuel G. Waller, of the Virginia National Guard, as a brigadier general in the National Guard of the United States.

Harriman Proposes Return to NRA Principle To Find Method of Preventing Price Spirals

William Averill Harriman, dollar-a-year chief of the materials branch in the Office of Production Management, last night proposed that the United States go back to the days of NRA to find a method of preventing price spirals in the current emergency.

In a speech at the thirty-fifth annual dinnner of the Traffic Club of Washington in the Mayflower Hotel, Harriman said that industry, in trying to prevent price increases, ought to be able "to do certain things without fear of being prosecuted" under the antitrust laws.

"There is no doubt in my mind," he said, "that we ought to go back to one of the things under NRA when industry, at the request of the Government, was allowed to cooperate. That would be the surest way to protect the country against spiraling prices and aid the common good in this emergency."

Harriman, son of the famous railroad magnate and himself chairman of the board of the Union Pacific, devoted most of his talk to the "back-seat drivers" who have been criticizing the defense program. He said that he himself had been one until he got so busy in the OPM.

Brilliant Move

"I was surprised when the OPM was placed in the hands of two men," he said. "I doubted the wisdom of it. But I am here to testify tonight that it was one of the most brilliant things ever done by an American President.

"Those two men—William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman—have different backgrounds. One represents management and the other labor.

"You have read in the gossip columns that there were battles in the old Defense Commission. There was truth in that gossip. But the day that Knudsen and Hillman took charge that battling ceased. They are working together, and their spirit is spreading all over the country."

Harriman told the 600 banquet guests, mostly railroad men, that he was strongly in favor of decentralizing industry. Some effort should be made, he said, to utilize the labor that exists between the Mississippi and the Sierras instead of going too far in attracting labor to industrial centers that already exist. If this were done, he said, there would be much less "dislocation" when the post-emergency period arrives.

Back-Seat Drivers

Harriman took issue with the "back-seat drivers" who are urging that the railroads buy 300,000 freight cars to speed up deliveries. That number of cars, he said, would cost a billion dollars—"and that still seems to me to be a lot of money." Moreover, he said, 300,000 freight cars would consume 6,000,000 tons of steel, more than the amount being shipped to Great Britain annually.

The OPM executive said it was time for all Americans to make up their minds on the question of aiding Britain.

"Are we going to give aid to Britain? We hear qualifications. The popular slogan 'All aid short of war,' to which every one so glibly subscribes. I don't recall anyone testifying during the last weeks in Congress who has not been for aid to Britain, and yet these men divide themselves into two distinct categories—those who would like to aid Britain if we can do so without risk, and those who would aid Britain.

"I see no compromise. To me the most desperate thing that could happen to this country would be half-hearted, ineffective aid. If we are to aid Britain at all, we must do our best to make our aid effective . . . I have come to my decision. I am not willing to face a world dominated by Hitler."

Otis E. Shaw presided at the dinner. R. V. Fletcher served as toastmaster. Lynn Allison and El Gary sang.

Canada to Build Air Bases Along Route to Alaska

The problem of getting large numbers of fighter planes to Alaska quickly in an emergency appeared on the way to a solution yesterday when the Canadian government announced that it would build a $9,000,000 chain of flying fields between the United States and her northern territory.

Although no agreement authorizing this country to use the proposed fields was announced, it was assumed widely that American planes would have the privilege if an invasion were threatened or attempted.

There was speculation in some quarters that the right to use Canadian airports immediately after their expected completion this summer might become the consideration for British use of some American Army and Navy equipment if Congress passes the present lease-lend bill.

Announcement that Canada would build the flying fields through Alberta and British Columbia along the route to Alaska was made at Ottawa by Air Minister C. G. Power. He did not give details.

Easy Pleasant Way TO LOSE FAT

How would you like to lose ten or more pounds in a month and at the same time feel better perhaps than you have for years?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too-prominent hips and at the same time feel more youthful and be more attractive?

How would you like to get your weight down to normal and at the same time develop that urge for activity that makes work a pleasure?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh; then get a bottle of Kruschen Salts which will last 4 weeks and is inexpensive—take one-half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning—cut out pastry and fatty meats—go light on white bread, potatoes, butter and cream. When you have finished this first bottle, weigh yourself again.

You can always get it at any druggist's. Try one bottle—if not supremely satisfied money back.

Emmerich Slated As OPM Secretary

Herbert Emmerich, administrative management expert and former Farm Credit Administration officer, has been definitely approved as secretary of the Office of Production Management, it was learned from an official source last night.

Emmerich has been an officer of the Public Administration Clearing House, in Chicago, for the last few years, and has been associated with the organization's leader, Louis E. Brownlow, expert on Government reorganization and administration.

Realty Board To Help Pay Social Worker

Half of the $1,750 sought to maintain a social worker for the landlord and tenant branch of Municipal Court has been guaranteed by the Washington Real Estate Board, it was announced yesterday.

Waverly Taylor, president of the board, said social service in the court had proved "beneficial to the tenant, the landlord and the public in general."

The Washington Housing Association last summer sponsored a month's trial of court social service, which was widely declared successful and attracted attention in other cities. The association placed Mrs. Florence Conlin, social worker, on regular duty at the court last December 2 and paid her salary, transportation expenses and supplied clerical help until February 2.

The $1,750 sought by the association will meet these expenses until July 1, when it is hoped funds will be provided by the District Board of Public Welfare.

Administering the fund will be a board of representatives of the housing association, the District, Washington and Women's Bar Associations, the real estate board, the Legal Aid Bureau, the Community Chest Family Service Agency and the Council of Social Agencies. Secretary of the board will be Mrs. Helen D. Hoffman, director of the housing association.

Arlington Flier's Funeral Held

Word was received here yesterday of the death of Lieut. Shelby Y. Palmer, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Y. Palmer, of 24 South Fenwick Street, Arlington, Va., who was killed in a plane crash recently off Culebra Island, Puerto Rico.

Besides his parents, Lieut. Palmer leaves his wife, Jane, of West Point, N. Y., and a brother, Buckner. Funeral services were held in Puerto Rico, with interment to be held at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

after a cold then what

DOCTORS stress remaining in bed until the body temperature is normal. Sound advice.

You know how weak you feel after a cold. Colds play havoc in weakening the body. The story is well told in the blood picture. It is important to build back body strength right away to carry the load of work, worries, and loss of sleep. A weakened body may be more susceptible to relapse or long drawn out recovery.

So reason-sensibly and take the choice of millions by immediately starting on a course of S.S.S. Tonic—taken three times a day immediately before meals. In the absence of a focal infection or organic disease, you should note improvement in the way you feel and look within the first 10 days. The confidence of millions over many years is the best testimonial of this product.

An experience with S.S.S Tonic will cause you to say to your friends, S.S.S. made me "feel and look like myself again."

Camping Association Urged To Aid in Social Reforms

CAMPING OUT, GIRLS?—Barbara and Dorothy Mitchell were among the visitors yesterday to the display of camping equipment in the Wardman Park Hotel set up in connection with the convention of the American Camping Association

The American Camping Association, opening its thirty-first anniversary convention here yesterday, was advised last night to adapt some of the realistic methods of the work camps, such as CCC, into its own programs.

"Place some of your camps near areas of social and economic tension," said Kenneth Holland, associate director, American Youth Commission. "Do not climb to the top of mountains simply to watch the beautiful sunsets; but go to the factories and the mills, to the slums in the urban and rural districts . . . to the places and the experiments that are vital to the future of the United States," he said.

He told association members to "enjoy a beautiful sunset, but let it inspire your campers to improve the social conditions in this country so all can experience and appreciate such wonders of nature."

American camps have "a great and unusual opportunity for constructive service" in offering their facilities to the thousands of war refugees in the United States, Dr. Alfred E. Stearns, headmaster emeritus of Philips Academy, told the convention yesterday afternoon.

Many of these children are entirely dependent upon their American sponsors and this financial element has been recognized "by the best of our private schools where the large majority of these boys and girls have been accepted and at charges no more, and in many cases far less, than the actual carrying charges. Our camps must be prepared to adopt this same plan, and most of them have signified their readiness to do so," Dr. Stearns said.

Whatever may occur before summer it is evident that suitable provision will have to be made in many cases for some 4,000 visiting boys and girls, he said.

"That opportunity may prove even greater than I have intimated for there are about 7,000 of these English children now in Canada and it may well be that our Canadian friends will turn to our camps in the United States for such help as they are willing to extend in meeting this special summer problem," he stated.

Preparation of children for the immediate years of crisis and for the roles they will have to take in the subsequent reconstruction was emphasized by Katherine F. Lenroot, chief, Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.

"To assure to the children of our Nation, by every possible means, safety, health, emotional security and opportunity for development of those characteristics of personality which a free society demands of its citizens is a major obligation of the American people in 1941 and 1942, as we are called upon also to provide the resources necessary to defend this Nation against aggression and cohtribute to the triumph of the free peoples of the world," she said.

Bar Group Weighs Ruling On Library Use

The board of directors of the District Bar Association will meet today to consider future policy in face of Attorney General Jackson's ruling that the association's library must be opened to colored and female attorneys, now excluded.

Under the ruling, the ban must be ended by April 1, so long as the association decides to retain its library in the District Courthouse. Moving would cost $4,000, and rental for new quarters would run into $10,000 a year, according to Milton W. King, association treasurer.

Thus, King pointed out, since the present Bar Association membership revenue of $16,000 annually just about covers expenses, the extra $10,000 might mean an increase of 60 per cent in dues. Reporting to the membership at the January meeting, King said that a search had already been made for new library quarters, but that due to the demand for office facilities in the District no adequate space had been found.

Recommendations of the board of directors will be made to the membership at a general meeting Monday night in the Mayflower.

Balzo Appears In Goodwill Recital Series

By Ray C. B. Brown.

The Minister of Uruguay presents Hugo Balzo in a piano recital Thursday afternoon in Hall of the Americas, Pan American Union. Program of compositions by Bach, Beethoven, Debussy, Allende, Lecuna, Tosar, Villa-Lobos, Fabini and Ginastera.

Guests of the Minister of Uruguay, assembled yesterday afternoon in the Pan American Union, enjoyed a piano recital by Hugo Balzo, who is visiting the United States as an official representative of his country in furtherance of neighborly relations. The recital was one of the pleasant results of the activities of the State Department in the cultural field, activities which are bringing about an interchange of artists with the Latin-American republics and a widening of acquaintance with the music of the respective countries. Senor Balzo, whose artistic reputation in European as well as South Amreican, was given a cordial reception and an attentive hearing.

BROWN

He began his program with the D major Toccato of Bach, which he played with dynamic resuorcefulness and clarity of expository style. His performance showed technical facility and a sure sense of structural design. His reading of Beethoven's "Appassionata" sonata was marked by emotional fervency and by a tonal power resembling that of Rosenthal. In ebussy's suite, "Children's Corner," he displayed his command of a light touch and his possession of poetic imagination.

The latter part of the recital was devoted to six Latin-American composers, and one wished that he had allowed more space to this interesting excursion. From the writers of his own country he chose one of the oldest, Eduardo Fabini, and one of the youngest, Hector Tosar. Fabini was represented by his nostalgic "Triste," and Tosar by "Danza Criolla," of exciting rhythmic pattern.

In the group of pieces were included two "Tomadas" by Humberto Allendeg of Chile; a "Criolla" by Juan Lecuma, of Venezuela; "Alma Brasileira" and "Polichinela," by Brazil's versatile and prolific Heitor Villa-Lobos, and three Argentine dances by Alberto Ginastera, whose home is in Buenos Aires.

Adm. Cone's Rites To Be Held Today At Fort Myer

Funeral services for Rear Admiral Hutchinson Ingham Cone, 69, retired, will take place at 3 p. m. today at Fort Myer Chapel, followed by burial in Arlington Cemetery.

During the Spanish-American War Admiral Cone, then a lieutenant commander, distinguished himself by taking a fleet of mosquito boats from Norfolk, Va., to Philadelphia, an act which resulted in his being promoted to Rear Admiral by President Theodore Roosevelt.

During the war with Spain and the World War he received the Distinguished Service Medal from the United States and military honors from Great Britain, France and Italy. In 1918 he was injured when the steamer Leinster was sunk in the Irish Sea by a German submarine.

Admiral Cone died Wednesday in Orlando, Fla. Mrs. Cone, who accompanied him there from California about two weks ago, was at his bedside.

Honorary pallbearers will be Admiral Harold R. Stark, Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, Rear Admiral E. A. Wilgy, Rear Admiral J. M. Reeves, Rear Admiral E. S. Land, Capt. R. W. McVeely, Capt. J. O. Gawne, Capt. G. C. Rhodes, Commander S. F. Pullinwider, Lieut. Comdr. Fritus L. Sandoz, Leigh C. Palmer, Albert V. Moore, Stephen Mann, Harry Gussenhein, Henry Heiman, J. Walter Barnett, Charles F. Wilson, Corcoran Thom, J. Spalding Flannery, Charles P. Light, Judge H. J. Covington and R. R. Adams.

"MUSIC HALL BOYS" RETURN. only one act has ever turned the sophisticated frequenters of the Shoreham Blue Room into a rhythmically applauding crew that drowned out the orchestra until nine or ten encores were forthcoming. We mean those sideburned, silk-hatted, rosy-nosed Music Hall Boys, otherwise known as the Three Gay Blades. So it's a great pleasure to tell you that the Music Hall Boys will return to the Shoreham on Monday. Come up and blister your palms! The elegant dancing of Castaine and Barry, the tomboy tricks of the Three Sophisticated Ladies have rated holdovers in next week's Blue Room diversion.

Paul Young's new spot has gotten away to a high-speed start. Literally hundreds were turned away on the opening night. Both the show and Al Spieldock's music are full of fireworks. Better try to get there this weekend. . . . Next major excitement at P. Young's will be the advent of funster Alan Gale on Tuesday, February 25.

TONIGHT'S BIG PARTY is the combined bow of Tommy Marvin's Band and the Valentine fete in Wardman's Metronome Room. The Marvin Band has made a big name for itself in the Midwest, breaking all attendance records at Detroit's Graystone Ballroom, is expected to take the East like—well, you remember Grant at Richmond. Tommy is a brilliant clarinetist, and improvises in the Artie Shaw manner. Notable, too, is his star trumpeter, "King" Cole. Listen for his rendition of "Boy Meets Horn." Songstress Marion Stanfield is the cream of the crop of 100 canaries who competed for the post.

MIRACULOUS BIRTHDAYS. Little Dick Lam, jr., son of Manager Dick Lam, of the Lotus, was born on the anniversary of the Lotus opening. But that isn't all. When his little sister, Elaine, came along, she was a birthday present for her mamma, Mrs. Jeanie Lam.

ROYAL GYPSYING. Gypsy Markoff, Troika's entirely lovely new singing accordionist, has done some very regal gypsying all over the world. She met the Duke and Duchess of Windsor in Biarritz, the Duke and Duchess of Kent on their Nassau honeymoon, played for King Carol of Rumania in Bucharest and for Egypt's King Farouk, Queen Farida and Queen-Mother Nazli in Cairo. In India she appeared before the Viceroy, and played in the palaces of virtually all the great maharajahs.

A real trouper is Margaret Costello, the new singer in Ciro's Famous Village. She started in show business as an old lady of 2, sang the first illustraied song ever presented in a Washington nickelodeon back in 1906, sang before President "Teddy" Roosevelt in the same year, and was in Keith's vaudeville for eight years. And she's still chipper and cute as an ingenue!

MAYFLOWER ANGLES. "Ha-Cha" Gardner, of Dick Koons' Band in the Mayflower Lounge, was featured in Ziegfeld shows with George Olsen's Band . . . Saxist Jules Martisak came to Washington last year with George Duffy's Band . . . "Buddy" Harmon was singing in the Lounge when it was called the Palm Court . . . Singing Violinist Johnny Shaw used to lead his band at the Madrillon. His hobby is salad mixing. Just give him a mess of vegetables and you'll be surprised . . . Pianist Mike Fera is a Pennsylvanian like Dick Koons, and is such a rabid baseball fan that he can hardly wait until the season opens.

MOST ASTOUNDING MELODIES. "Liebestraum" as sung in conga rhythm by the Hi Hat's Carmela Lazari. It's "liebe" accented Latinly . . . "The Whiffenpoof Song" being tossed around Restaurant "823" by Lee Everett. A whiffenpoof is a bird—a very strange bird . . . The wonderful rendition of the gypsy "Zigeunerweisen" being marimbaed by Al Bottoroff in the Neptune Room. It must be as hard to play as it is to spell.

MISSING CAR. If you see a lonely looking maroon convertible sedan, fevvensakes take it around to Mayfair's Paul Kain. His new bus was lifted off a parking lot days ago and he's been partial to torch songs ever since. It was insured, but you know how that is—when you drive a car off the floor, it's worth a couple hundred dollars less when you roll onto the pavement . . . Mayfair's "Admiral" Jimmy Byrd is fresh back from Frostburg, Md., where he visited former Mayfairite Lyle Smith.

"I don't get all this fuss about not getting ASCAP radio music," says Maestro Milt Herth, of the Rainbow Room. "Just tune in on London and you'll get all the ASCAP music ever written." Perfect solutions are usually as simple as that. Right now Milt is whirling the dials trying to get an Australian program called "The Laughing Jackass."

INDOOR SCENERY. The Cosmos Room was decorated lavishly with uniforms, glittering decorations and long white kid gloves after the Army-Navy reception at the White House . . . Most eye-catching mural in town is that wicked-looking little satyress at the Silver Fox. She even has hoofs . . . The pale rose lights of the Lounge Riviera annex will flatter your complexion . . . The Casino Royal is ideally arranged for floor shows. You can get a fine view from any table in the place . . . If you're interested in what can be accomplished by the dexterous use of paint and lighting, visit El Patio . . . Both the chairs and carpets are studded in the Anchor Room. It's also star-studded with Eileen George and Matt Windsor . . . That bi' moose head at River Bend was presented by Novelist Rex Beach to Norman Gilliland, son of Proprietor Bob Gilliland . . . Burt's golden smile as he greets all comers is one of the best decorations in Burt's Trans-Lux.

SIX BIG FLOOR SHOWS will be presented at Kavakos' Grill over the weekend. They go on at 10:30 and 12 on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, will be packed with smart out-of-town performers. Barbara Gray will emcee the parties.

SUBURBAN BEST BETS. Nightingale. Rodd Raffell's Orchestra has prepared quantities of bright new dance music and specialties for the weekend crowd. Be sure to hear "Shorty" Wilson do up "Margie" brown as a combo trombone-vocal solo.

Without Shirley Povich

(While Shirley Povich is on his vacation his column is being written by other members of The Post sports staff.)

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

To Whom It May Concern:

Miami, Fla., Feb. 13.—There is plenty of truth in the report that Miami has been without sunshine since the abdication of Miami Haight . . . Leo Walper, who summers on his East-West Highway driving range, is living at the Miami Biltmore and is private professional to National Amateur Champion Dick Chapman. They play and practice together daily and the boys say Walper is touting the New York socialite-crooner as the 1941 Open and repeat amateur champ . . . Speaking of driving ranges, there is one for every orange tree in the Miami area. Side inducements include archery, miniature golf and baseball practice. One proprietor has a dummy of Adolph Hitler some 100 yards from the tee and a crudely painted sign out front says "Come in and Hit Hitler." . . . The University of Miami is thinking of abandoning baseball because, of all reasons, no place to practice.

WHITTLESEY

Frank Allan, the former Georgetown Prep star and runner-up in the Chevy Chase Invitation tournament for three straight years, won the Bahamas Amateur Championship this week . . . Jai alai promoters are crediting national publicity in pictures, stories and special articles, plus Mrs. Roosevelt's visit and rave notices by gossip columnists, for a record attendance and mutuel handle this year, far beyond expectations . . . Dick Flynn, Washington's former sporting goods representative is prospering as an aeroplane salesman here in Miami. He will be succeeded by Stanley Kazmark in the golfing line around the District next season. Flynn pilots his own planes for delivery.

Galt Davis and his Rosslyn Women's Championship Bowling team were guests of Hialeah Park on their visit here . . . Helen Detweiler, Washington's lady pro, is giving exhibitions around Metropolitan Miami courses . . . Florida will be host to 28 professional baseball teams in spring training, including two here for the first time, the Giants in Miami and the Phillies at Miami Beach.

Bob Barnett and Al Houghton, the professionals at Chevy Chase and Beaver Dam, respectively, who are holding down the winter duties at Indian Creek here, lost to Tommy Armour and Charley Penna, 1 up, yesterday at Boca Raton and will play a return match at Indian Creek tomorrow . . . In addition to Houghton, Barnett has Al Jamison, the former Kenwood and Indian Spring pro, and Claggett Stevens, the Rockville native who holds down the summer berth at Richmond, Ind., on his staff here at the exclusive Indian Creek Club . . . Houghton boasted a 70 average over the wind-swept par 72 layout here for several weeks. He averages nearly 36 holes daily as playing pro, Barnett is busy with lessons on the tee and course most all day, while Stevens and Jamison play occasionally and take care of the pro shop duties . . . Jamison, who resigned at Bradley Hills before coming here with Barnett, is working on a pro job for the summer.

Tommy Armour, one of pro golf's all-time greats who is winter pro at the equally exclusive Boca Raton course some 20 miles north of here, claims his business is off nearly 80 per cent this year over last. . . . That is, play, sales and lessons. Armour, in a locker room discussion at Indian Creek, claimed only three of the current tournament playing pros could play golf with the old-timers, that is, from tee to green . . . The sand wedge is his explanation of the difference in scoring . . . The Duke of Windsor, who played at Indian Creek on his recent visit to Miami, considered it one of the best courses he had played and asked Barnett to wrap it up and send it to Nassau.

Do you know what underrated Washington amateur golfer played at Mid-Pines, near Pinehurst, last week, handed Canadian Open Champion Stanley Horne a lacing, hit what the host pro called was the longest ball ever walloped off the eighteenth tee, and drew a gallery every time out? . . . He was runner-up in a District Club championship . . . Gary Leon, a dancer at Jack Dempsey's here, hit the $1,383 daily double at the Miami Beach Dog Track and the next night the winning dogs were his guests at a ringside table at the club . . . Miami Shores, this city's newest golf club, looks like Rock Creek on a summer Sunday afternoon, at $2.00 a round.

A WPA-built outfit, it is said to be far superior to Miami Springs, where the $10,000 Miami Open was played to the disgust of the touring pros . . . Gene Sarazen hopes to land the Ryder Cup-Sarazen all-star team matches for Washington next year . . . The matches were played for the benefit of the Red Cross last year in Detroit and Sarazen wants them played this year at the home of Red Cross headquarters . . . Amateur sports get the old squeeze-out act on Miami sports pages. Horses, the four dog tracks, jai alai, and even the roller derby get all the play . . . All this from Miami, "The City of Eternal Sunshine?????????"

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Feb. 13.—The President's birthday has come and gone, and most of the politicians who bask in Mr. Big's reflected glory on that day have put aside their silk hats and their birthday ball badges. But the National Sports Council, which sprung from these annual celebrations of the President's birthday, continues to raise money with which to fight the spread of infantile paralysis.

CONSIDINE

It is an astonishingly far-flung campaign, not only geographically but insofar as the diversification of the sports themselves are concerned. Sports writers, radio sportscasters, coaches, promoters, thousands of different kinds and colors of athletes are taking part, and will continue to take part for a month or two to come. The money raised by sports, to be turned over to the little army of medical and scientific men who are fighting this terrible disease, will run well into six figures.

It is difficult to dramatize a domestic malady these days, what with war abroad and spectacular aerial and naval ruin. It isn't arresting to say that infantile paralysis is worse than ever in this country, that its cause is still shrouded in mystery and that the legs of dozens of children and adults will this year be turned into grisly pretzels because they lacked proper care, proper remedies or that the attending doctors had had no funds with which to study this bewildering disease.

It isn't dramatic, true, but it's blunt. And the good, blunt, big-hearted sports world is manfully doing its best to raise the needed cash.

The Santa Anita Race Track gave the total profits of its second day to the paralysis fund—about $25,000. No less welcome was a check for $2 from a country school in Oklahoma, which arrived the same day as the $25,000 check. The deuce was raised in an interesting way. A teacher who had heard about the sports council asked her class how many would pay a dime to see a basketball game, if the school had a basketball team or a gym in which to play basketball. Nineteen scholars held up their hands, so the teacher said "then let's suppose we have seen the game. Now will you please bring up your dimes?" They all did, she added a dime and sent the two dollars.

The Sports Council takes a realistic view toward promotions for the benefit of the drive. That is, it hopes the promoters make money, too, and many of them do. But there have been many cases this time where fund shows have been financial flops, yet the promoters or even the players would chip in and send a check. Here in New York the Ohrbach Athletic Association's team played Wake Forest for the fund before a $92 house. The expenses were $428, but the Ohrbachs sent in a check for $56.

Bay Meadows had a "day" for the fund and raised thousands. Hialeah will have one, too. One swimming event turned over $3.18 to the fund. New York and its top promoters remain aloof, as usual, but little Rock Hill, S. C., tomorrow will raise $1,000 on a boxing show. Ed Cochrane, the Chicago sports editor, has lined up three fund shows this month, in boxing, wrestling and basketball. And the annual colored Southern Conference Basketball Tournament, to be played at Tuskegee, will be for the benefit of the fund. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis turned over $161,000 to Tuskegee last year, to study the disease among colored persons and, to administer to the stricken. Paralysis work has always seemed to us to be a charity for whose benefit Joe Louis should be eager to fight.

The Ice Follies enriched the drive by thousands, by turning over one night's profits during its successful Boston run, and a kid basketball team in Ohio sent in $1.88. They had put on a game which attracted the magnificent "gate" of 55 cents. The kids made up the rest. Joe Falcaro, one of the world's greatest bowlers, voluntarily went on a 27-night exhibition tour. And so on . . . all adding up to activity which reaches from Boston to San Diego, Seattle to Miami. After all,

Kimbrough Is Called for Army Service

All-American Eligible for Commission

Pro Football Head Amazed; Star May Seek Delay; Leaves Texas for East

By the United Press

College Station, Tex., Feb. 13.—The Army and the New York Yankees are bidding for the services of all-America football player John Kimbrough, and it looks as if Uncle Sam holds the trump card.

The Yankees reputedly had a pot of $37,500 up for the Texas A. & M. fullback's football prowess, but the Army's ace was an order calling to service all the 476 graduates of the advanced R. O. T. C. course at A. & M.

Kimbrough is one of them. So is his brother Jack. And Bill Conatser and Marland Jeffrey and six other members of the great 1939 and 1940 Aggie elevens.

Only exceptions will be those in the June graduating class under 21 years of age, or those found unfit for duty because of physical defects. Kimbrough is 22, and men who make all-America teams two years running generally aren't physical derelicts.

Glimmer of Hope

The only glimmer of hope that the 210-pound fullback had of cashing in on the reported $37,500 that Yankee Owner Douglas Hertz offered for his name on a contract was a chance that he might be deferred from service.

Under the order, graduates could ask for a year's deferment and the Army might grant Kimbrough's request—if he makes one—so that he may earn money to help support his family.

In New York today Hertz, when told of the order affecting Kimbrough, was amazed and could not understand why Jarrin' John had not notified him.

"Anyway," Hertz said, "he'll be up here Sunday to talk it over."

Kimbrough planned to take a plane from Houston tonight for the East. Meanwhile he had nothing to say.

Subject to Call

Military students at A. & M. and at other land grant colleges at which advanced R. O. T. C. courses are offered are commissioned members of the organized reserves on graduation and are subject to call to duty during a national emergency.

Before he can receive his commission, Kimbrough must complete a six weeks' tour of camp duty from which he was excused last summer.

Doug Hertz Expects Deferment for Star

New York, Feb. 13 (INS).—Doug Hertz, New York Yankee football owner, said tonight that he expects that John Kimbrough, the Texas Aggie star Hertz hopes to sign up for next season, would receive deferment.

Commenting on news reports that Kimbrough had been called for Army service, Hertz said:

"I fully expect Kimbrough will be deferred because of dependents. He is one of a large family and since his brother, Jack, who also is graduating from Texas A. & M. will enter the Army, the family to a great extent will be dependent upon him."

Challedon Works Over Slow Track; May Start Feb. 22

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Feb. 13.—Challedon, the 1940 Handicap champion, worked five-eights of a mile in 1 minute 1 second, on a slow track between races at Santa Anita Park today. He showed no evidence of favoring the left forefoot, which he injured recently.

Trainer "Whitey" Whitehill said he hoped the horse, owned by W. L. Brann, Maryland sportsman, would give a good account of himself in the San Antonio Handicap, February 22.

This is a week before the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap in which Challedon, until his injury, had been the favorite.

'Aquapoppin' Show Given By Red Cross

Something new in the way of water shows made its debut before more than 1,000 spectators last night in the tepid blue waters of the Shoreham Hotel swimming pool.

The feature bore a new title, "Aquapoppin," and included everything from canoe-tilting to a preview of next season's bathing suits with a bevy of George Washington University beauties doing the modeling.

It was all sponsored by the D. C. Chapter of the American Red Cross in connection with its life saving and water safety program. Master of ceremonies was Robert H. Duncan, who tried to emphasize how easy it is not to drown, providing you can get by even with the elementary swim strokes.

Band on Hand

Opening with band selections by the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, the two-hour show continued through a complete program of life-saving and high class swimming and diving.

Eleven-year-old Edward Thomas, a product of the Southeast Boys Club, gave an exhibition 25-yard sprint that won applause.

Variety was the theme and there was even a dance presentation between the water acts by the Madeline Hodgson Dance Group. The bathing suit style show was arranged by Miss Anne Stief, of George Washington University.

District champions participated in the canoe demonstration. They were R. Aubrey Bogley, Jim Burch and Eleanor Abbott.

Fancy-Diving Exhibition

The clown diving by Jimmy Shinn and Henry Rink was followed by a fancy-diving exhibition by Bill Tarbett, District champion.

The swim show is free and will be continued tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30. Tickets may be obtained at the D. C. Chapter, American Red Cross, 1730 E Street Northwest.

Hockey Eagles Release Defenseman McTeer

Ice Club Meets Boston Olympics Tonight At Riverside Stadium; Germann Kept By Locals; Coach to Strengthen Team

The outright release of Defenseman John McTeer was announced by Coach Redvers Mackenzie yesterday as the Washington Eagles marked time prior to tonight's Eastern Hockey League game with the Boston Olympics at Riverside Stadium, 8:30 o'clock.

Mackenzie emphasized that the players was being released with the club's best wishes, and added that the Eagles would go the limit in order to help him get placed in the Eastern League.

"I still think McTeer has the capabilities of a good player," Mackenzie declared, and a change of scenery might help him.

Mackenzie also had released Mike Germann, but the veteran asked for another chance—a chance which was granted.

Both Germann and McTeer have been with the Eagles since the team was introduced here in November of 1939, and are popular with Washingtonians.

Others on Probation

Mackenzie declared that several other players also are remaining here on probation and must step up their tempo in order to hold their jobs.

"We're in for a great fight down the stretch of the Eastern League pennant race and we've got to get results, and immediate results," he cited. "In the event some of our other boys don't play up to the desired standard I'll have to let them go.

"I think we've a whale of a chance for the pennant, and I intend making the most of it. And I won't let my personal liking for any of the players influence me in getting together the best possible combination."

The release of McTeer reduces the Eagles' squad to 14 players. Mackenzie still has a possible deal brewing with the New York Rovers, however, and also intends bringing

Hoppe Nearly Clinches Cue Championship

By International News Service

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Willie Hoppe all but cinched his second title in a row by defeating Jay Bozeman, of Vallejo, Calif., tonight in the world championship three-cushion billiard tournament.

He won, 50 to 35, in 35 innings, for his fifteenth victory in 16 starts, and he needed only to win one more game, his last, to make his championship sure.

Also, after his triumph over Bozeman, he had the satisfaction of knowing that the worst he could do would be to end in a tie should he lose his last game and should Jake Schaefer, of Chicago, who followed him tonight, win from Allen Hall, of Chicago, and also win his final game. The two then would stand at 15 victories and 2 defeats each.

Bozeman, who had a mathematical chance of tying for first place, lost that by his defeat at the hands of Hoppe tonight. The defending champion displayed a rapid-fire attack from the beginning, reeling off clusters of six, five and four deuces and enough aces to have a 25-to-16 lead in the fourteenth inning. He was up 36 to 20 in the twenty-fourth, a lead which the red-headed Californian was never able to threaten.

2,800 Watch Duzek Down Green Hornet

With 2,800 customers, a record gathering for Turner's Arena, yelling for all they were worth, Ernie Dusek was declared the winner over the famed Green Hornet in last night's wrestling feature. The majority of the crowd switched allegiance to Dusek to strongly boo the ending of the match. The Green Hornet's left foot was caught between the ropes, and dangling outside the ring. Referee Casey Berger evidently was unaware of this as he gave the verdict to Dusek.

The end came after 30 minutes and following the third time the Hornet had thrown Dusek outside of the ring. Dusek came back with a body press that had his masked rival tight on the mat. The fans then turned on Dusek as he left the ring. The Hornet staged a sit-down strike and challenged everybody east oof the Suez.

In the girls' battle, Patsy Miller, of Idaho, used a body press to win over Gladys Gilliam, of Oklahoma, in what was stamped as the best fair sex bout of the season.

In other matches, Carl Gray and Jack Bloomfield drew; Eddie Newman defeated Tiger Tasker and Fred Grobmier held Lou Plummer to a draw.

Elks Skeet Club Has Turkey Shoot

The Elks Skeet Club is staging a turkey shoot on Sunday at O'Donnell's Griffith Farm, on the Marlboro Road. President Ralph Murdock and his associates will start action at 10:30 a. m. and the targets will be placed as long as there are shooters around the club range. In addition, W. E. Cox, representing the Remington Cartridge Co., will be there to give an exhibition in shooting and he is said to be a past master at trick shots. You can bring your gun if you so desire or club members will allow you to use one.

Gilham Sinks Points in Last 3 Seconds

Mountaineers Bow As Technical Try Follows Personal; Visitors' Rally Futile

By Bill Burnett

A technical foul, hot on the heels of a personal foul, resurrected a lost cause for George Washington University's Colonials last night at Riverside and they grabbed their fifteenth victory in 18 games, 39-38, over West Virginia.

Part of the crowd of 1,800 already had started home, confident that G. W. was "in" after leading most of the way, and the other part was ready to leave when the most stunning finish of a collegiate game here this year rooted them to their seats. This is the way it went:

After leading by as many as nine points, the Colonials hit a scoreless streak midway of the last period. A 33-24 edge gradually faded to 37-34 with 10 seconds to go.

Mountaineers Rally

Suddenly the Mountaineers struck full force. Little Roger Hicks jumped in the air, twisted, and dropped a perfect two-pointer into the net. G. W. took the ball out of bounds quickly, but the pass in was intercepted, tossed to Charley Hockenberry, who banked a "snowbird" off the backboard. West Virginia then led, 38-37.

Again G. W. passed from out of bounds, Bobby Gilham taking the ball to midcourt with three seconds to go. There he found Hockenberry blocking the path. Referee Dallas Shirley declared a hacking penalty on Hockenberry, and G. W. enjoyed the prospect of a tie score.

Before Gilham could shoot, however, the Mountaineer's Yorke Dollinger registered such a violent protest of the personal foul, accompanied with clench-fist gestures, that a technical foul was levied against him.

The whole issue was thus left to Gilham, and he didn't let G. W. fans down. Coolly he dropped both the technical and personal charity allowances to make the count 39-38, just as the timer's horn ended things.

Despite the closeness of the score and several well-executed plays, the first half wasn't the most exciting imaginable. The hosts had trouble in finding the rim until seven minutes had passed, and by that time their foes had taken a 6-0 lead. G. W.'s strategy of starting its tallest five players against the invaders' gliding zone defense had little effect.

Zunic Breaks Ice

Finally Matt Zunic, tousel-haired forward, broke the ice and the G-Streeters worked their way slowly up to lead by 17-13 at the half. Zunic was the big gun, scoring 8 of those 17 points.

Again an arid streak hit the George Washingtons as the second half started, allowing West Virginia to grab a quick 21-to-19 lead.

Major Racing Gave Maryland $1,318,066.96

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 13 (AP).—Maryland's four major horseracing tracks had a combined net revenue of $657,582.61 in 1940, the racing commission said in its twenty-first annual report to Gov. O'Conor today.

The 15 per cent tax on net revenue yielded the State $98,637.40—an increase of $40,995.75 over 1939. Pimlico accounted for much of the increase, paying a 1940 revenue tax of $15,482.10, whereas it made no profit in 1939 and thus paid no revenue tax.

From all sources, including the revenue tax, the $6,000 daily license and the 2 per cent tax on wagering, the State received a total of $1,318,066.96 from the major tracks.

Jockey Sensation Brings Another Winner Home at Hialeah Park

Government Table Tennis Tourney Tomorrow to Set Record

Ice Palace Is Scene of Big Event

25 Entries Added Yesterday; Lists Open Until Hour Before Starting Time

With 25 additional entries received yesterday, the Government Employes' Championship Table Tennis Tournament has actually passed the 150 mark to break all records for similar events in the District of Columbia. The tournament, sponsored by The Post and starting at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Ice Palace courts, has attracted practically all the top-notch table tennis players of both sexes in Government employ and now can claim rank as one of the largest indoor tournaments of the country. An additional 100 entrants are expected before the list is closed tomorrow at 2 p. m. and the draw is made.

Through the courtesy of local table tennis stars, The Post staged an exhibition in the Interior Department yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the I. D. R. A. of which Erle Weatherwax is president and Leo Bittner chairman of the table tennis committee. Two hundred enthusiastic Interior employes and friends viewed the three matches.

Miss Wilson Wins

Carolyn Wilson, Eastern women's champion and top-ranking star in the District of Columbia and California women's champion, won a hard-fought singles match from diminutive Jimmy Shea. In the second match Jimmy Limerick eked out a win over Bobby Bensinger and later lost to Stanley Fields, the District's No. 1 star.

With only 36 hours left in which to register for the huge tournament, Government paddle wielders must sign and mail or take the coupon on this page to the Chevy Chase Ice Palace courts without delay in order to enter the lists.

The rivalry between the various Government agencies is at white heat with the boys and girls from the FBIRA apparently determined to win the special cup for that department entering the most players, as five additional entries were received during the day. The War Department apparently is thinking of other things, as well as national defense, as six more entries came in, giving them a total of 20 against the FBIRA's 29.

Four Classes Listed

Tomorrow's tournament consists of four classes so that expert or beginner has an opportunity to garner one of the handsome trophies to be presented winners or the medals for the runners-up. The classes are:

Class A, for the expert table tenniser.

Class B, for the novice.

Class C, for "veterans"—(40 years of age or over).

Class D, for all women.

The draw will start at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon and all entrants are urged to get their entry coupons to the Ice Palace before that hour. Lou and Stanley Fields, Ice Palace table tennis managers, have worked out a new system for the draw but considerable time will ensue before actual play starts, so a 2 p. m. deadline has been set. Every effort will be made to expedite the play with the new system making it possible for players to closely approximate the time they will start.

New entrants yesterday that caused the total to soar to the 150 mark are:
Bob Leonard, FBIRA.
Charles Gunter, FBIRA.
Bill Clarke, FBIRA.
Mary Palmer, FBIRA.
Lillian Holm, FBIRA.
Theodore Guell, War.
I. N. Markfield, War.
Don Patterson, War.

G. W. Five Beats West Virginia

G. W.'s turn came next, Zunic, Lou Veltri and Charley Jones pulling the club up to a 26-to-21 advantage that appeared quite enough. When it had mounted to 33 to 24 a few minutes later, spectators started filing out. They couldn't know what was to develop.

Though Gilham sank the crucial points, the best all-around performance went to Zunic, the District high scorer. Going into the game he boasted 188 points, but before he left his total had mounted to 206, with 18 well-earned markers. Jim Ruch, forward, paced the losers with 12 points as they suffered their sixth setback in 14 games.

Labrot's Yacht Wins Nassau Sailing Race

By the United Press

Nassau, Bahamas, Feb. 13.—William Labrot's Stormy Weather, flying the burgee of the Annapolis (Md.) Yacht Club, won the 184-nautical-mile sailing race from Miami to Nassau today for her fifth consecutive triumph in the eight times the event had been held.

She cut across the finish line in Nassau Harbor at 1:23:36 a. m. Eastern standard time, today, third of the eight yachts to arrive but winner of the Duke of Windsor and Nassau Yacht Club trophies by reason of her time allowance of 2 hours 11 minutes 28 seconds over the scratch boat Escaped. Her corrected time was 35 hours 12 minutes 8 seconds.

The 72-foot Escapade, owned by Henry G. Fownes, of Stamford, Conn., arrived first—at 11:25:08 last night—and took second place. The largest vessel in the race, she had no time allowance as the scratch boat. Her running time was 35:25:08. The record is 19:36:30, set last year by Harry E. Noyes' Tioga.

Robert W. Johnson, New Brunswick, N. J., medical supplies manufacturer, who purchased Stormy Weather in 1936 after the trim 54-foot yawl already had won a transatlantic race to Norway and then won three Miami-Nassau races with her before selling her to Labrot, brought his Good News for third place, on corrected time. Good News finished second.

Record Entry Envisioned for Speed Skating

Entries from all sections of the country continue to pour in for the National Indoor Speed Skating championships, which will be held at Uline-Ice-Arena, February 22 and 23 and which places 27 coveted national titles on the line in the most important speed skating event of the year.

Dr. Christopher Mayer, president of the Southeastern Skating Association, which, with Uline-Ice-Arena, is sponsoring the event, sanctioned by the Amateur Skating Union of the United States, yesterday predicted a record entry list over the 155 entrants which participated in 1939. Entries, incidentally, will close with Winfree Johnson, Room 408 American Security Building, 730 Fifteenth Street Northwest, Saturday at noon.

All skaters must be registered with one of the recognized skating associations, of which Southeastern is a member, affiliated with the Amateur Skating Union. Registrations may also be made at the time of entering if a skater is an amateur.

Gold, silver and bronze medals will be presented to winners, runnerups and third-placers in addition to a special plaque and lap prize for the 5-mile senior race, one of the highlights of the meeting. Nine classes will be held, four for women and five for men. The events are, for men: Seniors, intermediate (under 18 years), junior (under 16 years), midget (under 12 years), and juveniles (under 14 years), and for women: Senior, intermediate, junior and midget, with the same classifications.

Tickets for the event will go on sale today at Uline-Ice-Arena box office. A special price for high school students is being worked out at present and will be announced in the next day or two.

Browns to Take Only Eight Rookies to Spring Training

St. Louis Club to Begin Drills With 33 Players, 7 Under Limit

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Feb. 13.—An easy way to tell whether a major league club believes it is set for a good season is the number of rookies it takes to spring training camp.

The Browns offer a case in point, since the team is honestly convinced this is the year it'll stop being an irritation and start being a sensation in the American League.

In 1940, the club took 17 recruits to San Antonio for spring training. Some of them just cluttered up the field.

This year, the Browns have stripped for action and only eight rookies will make the Texas trip late this month.

The team's roster, issued today, listed a total of 33 players—seven under the limit—including 16 pitchers, 2 catchers, 8 infielders and 7 outfielders.

Shifting their emphasis from rookies to veterans, the Browns have added Johnny Allen from Cleveland, Denny Galehouse and Fritz Ostermueller from Boston and George Caster from Philadelphia to their pitching staff.

Only three recruit hurlers will be on hand, all from the Browns' San Antonio farm. They are Maurice Newlin, who won 23 and lost eight last year; Bob Muncrief, with a 22-9 record, and Loy Hanning, who had ten victories and 13 defeats.

For infield help, the Browns are counting chiefly on Johnny Lucadello, switch-hitting second baseman from Toledo, where he batted .354. In the outfield they have Rob-

Bruins Set Record

New York, Feb. 13 (INS).—The burly Boston Bruins established a new National Hockey League record of 20 contests without a defeat by defeating the New York Rangers, 5 to 3, tonight before upward of 15,000 fans.

C. S. Cheston Reelected

New York, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—The hunts committee of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association today reelected C. S. Cheston, chairman; E. S. Potter, vice chairman, and F. H. Parks, secretary.

Bea Little Wins In Florida Golf

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 13 (INS).—Bea Little, tournament medalist and Kentucky State champion, continued her brilliant play and defeated Mrs. Jackie Fuller, of Orlando, 3 and 2, in the quarter-finals of the annual mid-Florida women's golf meet.

In the semifinals tomorrow, she will play Mary A. Wall, of Menominee, Mich., who today eliminated Iva Mae Pilcher, of Mexico, Mo., 4 and 2.

In the other matches, Laddie Irwin Whitehead of Upper Montclair, N. J., defeated Georgia Tainter, of Fargo, N. Dak., 3 and 2, and Mrs. Lucille R. Mann, of Omaha, Nebr., scored a 1-up victory over Mrs. Marion Phipps Lyon, of Orlando.

Tew, Sollers Top Petworth League Rolling

The Petworth League's high marks at Frank Furman's Georgia Avenue drives were recorded by Buddy Tew, Cochran's Restaurant, with game of 155 as Charley Sollers, Sollers Plumbing, took the set with a fine 422 total, pacing his team to highs of 627 and 1,815. Tony DeFino sparked a sweep over York Haberdashery for his City Awning boys with a near high 414 set and Lou Jenkins was the main reason why Wonder Bread treated York Restaurant in the same way.

BROOKLAND

High game honors in the Brookland Merchants play at Russ Diehl's drives were split between Mattison, Nick's Shoe Shop, and Ray Watson, University Delicatessen, with 155 each while Jenkins, Brookland Garage, rolled a nice 398 count for the big set. Nick's boys, thanks to the help of Mattison, garnered team high with pinfalls of 661 and 1,759. The game mark was a record high for the season. Both University Delicatessen and Brookland Garage won all three from Hite's Shell and Brookland Pharmacy, respectively. Brookland Garage is two games in the lead.

ICE PALACE

Catherine Hanlein, Cardinals, starred in the Connecticut Avenue Ladies' League, her highs for game and set of 117-338, respectively, leading the others. The Blue Jays took team honors after pinfalls of 487 and 1,381. Both Cardinals and Robins won all three games from the Blue Birds and DoDos, respectively. The Orioles led followed by the Cardinals.

NEW RECREATION

The Utility Girls' League found Elsie Bennett, Dynamos, had high game with 117, while 304 sticks took top set for Irene Robinson, Amperes, leading her team to high game of 484. The Megawatts won team set after a 1,343 pinfall, and took all three contests from the Slow Meters.

PENN RECREATION

Ressa, Burlington, was top game and set man in the Premier Cab League, his 135, 366 leading for the night and helping his team take all three from the Cruisers. Southeast won three straight from Eighth and East Capitol with the aid of Fowler's 127, 361.

ARCADIA

Miss Goode won top game in the Ladies' Bankers meet with a 129 count, but had to share her set of 305 with Miss Foulke, National Savings. Miss Goode's team, Second National, came in for all the team highs when they rolled 555 and 1,469.

Jeffra's Injured Hand Causes Postponement of Fight Here

Featherweight Battle With Archibald Called Off After Examination of Injury

Washington's second featherweight fight between Joey Archibald and Harry Jeffra, scheduled for next Tuesday at Turner's Arena for the world championship, was indefinitely postponed yesterday when Dr. M. M. McLean, of the Boxing Commission, announced Jeffra's hand was severely swollen and rendered the opinion it would be at least six weeks before a glove could be put on the injured member.

The announcement followed the receipt of a letter from Baltimore's Dr. Albertus Cotton, stating Jeffra was suffering a "contusion of the extensor tendon of the middle finger, right hand, and a sprain of the knuckle joint of the same finger, the result of an injury sustained in training."

Though expected to draw considerable interest here, the proposed Archibald-Jeffra tangle lost much of its luster when the former, winner of the first meeting by a booed decision, was knocked out several weeks ago. Promoter Joe Turner said no substitute bout would be staged, and that all supporting events had been cancelled.

By way of easing the blow of the postponed scrap, Promoter Turner and Matchmaker Gabe Menendez said they had been in contact with Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey who is associated with the British-American Ambulance Corps, and that an outdoor card May 19 at Griffith Stadium was being discussed. Kearns is wintering in Miami Beach, Fla. No principals for the program were revealed.

Three Scholastic Fives Battle for Playoff Berth Tonight

Western High Meets Eastern In Opener

Central and Tech Clash in Second Game of Twin Bill At McKinley Gym

Putting everything they can muster into a final and crucial effort, three public high school cage squads tonight scramble for the only two places left in the four-team interhigh championship tournament.

In a doubleheader at Tech gym starting at 7:30, Western, one of the contenders, battles with Eastern in the opener. The latter already has clinched a playoff berth. The finale brings together the other two hopefuls—Central and Tech.

Most everything hinges on the outcome of the Central-Tech affair. A victory for the latter will complete the tourney list—with Roosevelt, Eastern, Western and Tech—even though Western loses to Eastern in the opener. Central will be definitely out.

Eastern, Tech Choices

If the Vikings, whose play to date has varied between mediocre and bad, can upset McKinley's favored forces, however, a different aspect will be given the whole setup. A playoff between the clubs will be necessary, and if Western is beaten it must join the playoff.

On the strength of all previous performances, Eastern and Tech appear the winners tonight. The White Tide has tasted defeat only twice this season, and has swept over most of the toughest teams in the District. Tech has had lighter competition, but has nothing to regret except poor performances against Roosevelt and Eastern.

Western's upset chances are approximately twice as good as Central, largely in view of the fact it has been the only team able to beat Roosevelt in the series. With a fairly "hot" night the Raiders could easily down the low-scoring Tide, whereas Central doesn't appear to have the talent to stop the Manual Trainers even on a poor night for Tech.

Nine Other Games Listed

Supporting the interhigh twin bill, nine other games involving schoolboy teams in this vicinity take place today. In the afternoon Georgetown Prep and Woodward meet at Garrett Park, St. Albans moves out to Fairfax, St. John's is Roosevelt's guest, and Anacostia invades the Gonzaga gym.

Night activity is highlighted by the double-header at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High gym between the home team and Calvin Coolidge, and Richard Montgomery High of Rockville, and Shepherdstown (W. Va.), High. Other games send Washington-Lee to Thomas Jefferson's floor in Falls Church, Mount Rainier to Bladensburg, and G. W. High to Hopewell, Va.

New Orleans Pro-Amateur Opens Today

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, Feb. 13.—America's golf wizards ducked their heads into a strong Southerly wind today in pro-amateur competition, warming up for the start tomorrow of the $5,000 New Orleans Open.

Although the purse this year is only half of what it was the past two years, 168 golfers—a record for the meet—had registered tonight for the event.

Today's scores were surprisingly low, considering the wind. Some of the golfers explained that while the wind was against them on some of the holes, it was with them on others—and the amateurs showed a tendency toward bridies with the breeze at their backs.

Darkness settled before all the 120 teams, another tournament record, had finished. They started teeing off at 7:30 a. m., in clear weather, but the blow from the Gulf brought intermittent afternoon showers.

Clear, Colder Forecast

Rainless weather for the tournament proper seemed assured by tomorrow's forecast of "clear and colder," with fresh north to northwest winds. Finals are Sunday.

Harold (Jug) McSpaden, of Winchester, Pa., the most consistent player in the three-year history of the New Orleans Open, although he has never won it, sniffed the breeze delightedly and said he hoped heavy weather would continue.

"'Let 'er blow," he declared, "I come from Kansas City and I love a wind."

Two days ago McSpaden fired a 2 under par 70 in a strong blow. In previous tourneys here he has finished second, tied for second and tied for third.

Satisfaction with the tough atmospheric conditions also has been expressed by players from Texas, where, in the words of P. G. A. Champion Byron Nelson, a Fort Worth product, "the wind always blows."

Whole Devitt Team Goes Up—but Down

Four of Devitt Prep's cagers got together in this effort to get a rebound late in their battle with Woodrow Wilson yesterday, but the damage had already been done. Wilson clung to its lead and won, 25-20. Appel (14), of Wilson, here watches while Cullen (5), Pons (8), Delisi (3) and Clemments (number hidden) go into the air

C. U.'s Strang Meets Old Foe Tomorrow

Capt. Gerry Strang, Catholic University's veteran 165 pounder, who won his last two fights by forfeit, will have a busy time tomorrow night when Coach Eddie LaFond's fighting Cardinals put their string of 13 straight victories at stake meeting the undefeated and untied Southwestern Louisiana Institute at Brookland gymnasium.

Gerry's opponent will be the same hard hitting middleweight he met last year in the National Intercollegiate boxing tourney held on the West Coast. His name is Fred Logsden, powerfully muscled Louisianan whose record, like Strang's is clean of setbacks. Strang scored a close decision over the invading leather thrower in the semifinal round.

This season in five meets, the Southwestern Louisiana gladiator is undefeated, scoring four of the victories by knockouts. The last two bouts lasted one round each, flattening Louisiana University's entry in 1 minute and 8 seconds and last week winning by a K. O. over Florida's middleweight in 53 seconds.

Strang, no mean knockout artist himself, boasts a string of six knockout victories in 12 trips to the ring for the Cardinals.

"Sneeze" Ksycewski, Catholic University's heavyweight discovery, who last week scored a 45-second knockout over Rodman, of Maryland, will be put to a severe test when he enters the ring to meet Louisiana's entry, Lou Campbell. The big 215-pounder, who fought his way to the final round of the national intercollegiates last year, is undefeated in five meets this year, winning four by the K. O. route. A hard punching ring veteran, Campbell thows a hard solid right hand, while Ksycewski's most deadly weapon is carried in his left glove.

Double Knockout Inquiry Ordered

Detroit, Feb. 13 (AP).—State Boxing Commissioner John J. Hettche ordered an inquiry today into the extraordinary "double technical knockout" finish of last night's fight between welterweights Sammy Secreet, of Pittsburgh, and Pat Carroll, of Detroit.

Commissioner Hettche, setting a hearing for Tuesday, said he sought formal explanations from all officials involved in the action. The bout was stopped in the seventh round with both men bleeding badly from eye cuts.

Wilson High Defeats Devitt Prep, 25 to 20

Drawing away in the waning minutes of the game, Wilson High School basketball team scored a 25-to-20 victory over Devitt Prep yesterday on the Wilson court.

Going into the last period the pair were deadlocked at 17-17. Paced by Don Hillock, the winners pulled away for their victory.

Philip Delisi tallied four to Devitt's seven goals, also adding two free throws for scoring honors of 10 points. Hillock was high for Wilson with nine points.

Wilson led at the end of the first period, 8-5, and at halftime, 12-6. In the third quarter Devitt put on a spirited rally to tie the game.

Chair-Throwing Hockey Fan Was Jinx to Team

By the Associated Press

He threw a chair onto the rink to emphasize his disgust when Tulsa scored four goals in the first period. Warned, he held himself in check until the third period, then sent another chair sailing.

That's when he left—with police, and en route to jail.

"Anybody would be disgusted to see Tulsa, a last-place team, make four scores in one period," he declared in police court today as he was fined $10 for disorderly conduct.

Police said it was too bad Jackson couldn't stay for the end of the game. Minneapolis won, 6 to 4.

Oxon Hill Girls Win Over Greenbelt, 17-6

Oxon Hill High School girls defeated Greenbelt girls, 17 to 6, yesterday on the latter's floor.

Hunting Law Violators Would Help Britain

Augusta, Me., Feb. 13 (AP).—The 75 rifles and shotguns which the Maine fish and game department confiscates from law violators every year would be sent to England "to help the civilian population in their war combat," under a bill sponsored by Representative Albert C. Brewer, Republican.

Georgetown U. Hockey Team Faces Temple

Georgetown University's ambitious hockey team concluded strenuous preparations yesterday for its opening game tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Uline Ice Arena with Temple University by engaging Chet Adair's Washington Collegians in a lusty scrimmage.

Although outpointed by the more experienced Collegians, Coach Jim Roberts, Hoya mentor, expressed himself as satisfied with the progress made to date by his charges and predicted the team would improve as the season progressed as he named his starting lineup.

O'Neill at Goal

Hugh O'Neill has been nominated as goalie with George Perpich, a gridder, and Johnny Smith at right and left defense, respectively. Bill Deegan will handle the center spot while Bill Edelen and Frank Deegan, a brother of Bill, will take care of the right and left wing posts.

In meeting Temple, which will be heavily favored, the Hoyas will be facing a team which has played seven games thus far this year, winning three. Temple's four losses were sustained against Lehigh, Penn and Penn State (twice), all first class collegiate sextets.

Scheduled to start at 8 p. m., there will be no advance in the standard skating price of 55 cents. All spectators will be permitted to skate free after the game.

2 Races Scheduled

As a prelude to the National Indoor Speed Skating Championships, which will be held February 22 and 23, two special half-mile races for men and women, have been arranged as added attractions and will be run off between the hockey game periods. In the men's event, Tom McNamara, of Philadelphia; J. V. McBride, of New York; S. R. Thompson, of Chicago, and Carl Fontanini, of St. Paul, will vie, while in the women's class, Ann Vlasak, of St. Louis; Rhea Ehlers, of St. Paul, and Cecelia Cunningham, of Baltimore, will compete.

All are entered in the national championships and will skate under the auspices of the Southeastern Skating Association, which, with Uline Ice Arena, is sponsoring the event which will decide 27 national speed skating titles.

Maryland Teams Vie In Boxing, Basketball

All-University Night Scheduled Tomorrow at College Park; Ringmen To Meet Tarheels; Cagers Face Connecticut

"All-University Night" at the University of Maryland tomorrow night may not be everything Terp athletic groups might wish if the odds can be trusted.

In their basketball clash with Connecticut the College Park forces are a definite underdog, and in the North Carolina boxing bouts which immediately follow they rate even less chance. It will be the second week in a row the Maryland teams will be double underdogs.

Basketball starts at 7:30 and a colorful extracurricula program, lasting about an hour and 10 minutes, will be staged before the boxing goes on about 10 o'clock. There will be no admission to the Coliseum after 8:15 until the boxing begins, as it would interfere with the all-University night events.

Tarheels Appear Strong

North Carolina, which defeated Penn State last week and earlier in the year downed Virginia, appears to have the best boxing team in the Southern Conference, but will not be an overwhelming choice over the Terps. It appears likely to be one of those 5-3 affairs.

Bob Faris, 145-pounder; Red Saunders, 165, and Gates Kimball, heavyweight, are aces of the Tarheels. Faris and Saunders are conference champs, although the former won the title last year as a 155-pounder, dropping down this season. Gates is unbeaten in dual meets in his two years of boxing, but was held to a draw by Hebron, of Navy.

Maryland is hopeful of having George Pyles, its ace 165-pounder, on the job tomorrow, although it is doubtful. A rookie, Ted Stell, fought against Western Maryland in this class Wednesday night and lost a decision, a fine showing for a debut.

Foes to Face Zone Defense

Otherwise Maryland will stick to its regular line-up.

Connecticut vies with the famous Rhode Island State quint for scoring honors in New England. Last year Rhode Island beat Connecticut, 101 to 80, and early this season won again by 71-68 after two extra periods. The Huskies, as the Connecticut teams are known, ran up 80 points a couple weeks ago in trimming Maine.

Few of the teams in that sector face the zone defense used by Maryland and it will be interesting to see if the Terps can slow the Huskies down.

'Bummy' Davis Volunteers for Army Service

By the United Press

New York, Feb. 13.—Al (Bummy) Davis, Brooklyn's bad-boy welterweight contender, will be inducted into the Army tomorrow as a volunteer.

Davis, whose license was revoked indefinitely for fouling tactics against Champion Fritzie Zivic in November, was ineligible to register for the draft because he was under 21 at that time. Since then, however, he passed his twenty-first birthday.

Davis applied for reinstatement at Tuesday's commission meeting. His application was taken under consideration. It was expected that his license will be returned after he completes his enlistment of one year in the Army.

Yanks' Gordon Off for Training

Eugene, Oreg., Feb. 13 (AP).—Joe Gordon, New York Yankee second baseman, left today for spring training with the American League club in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Gordon carried his 1941 contract with him. He had expressed dissatisfaction with the figure mentioned, believed to be slightly above the $14,000 he drew in 1940.

Here's how TO SELECT A DOG
by Arthur Frederick Jones
American Kennel Gazette Dog Authority

If you're a city dweller, pick a breed of medium or small size that does not need much exercise. And, if seasonal shedding of hair annoys you, choose a short-haired dog. Look for a healthy coat, sturdy legs and clear eyes—an animal that meets the accepted standards for his breed.

Female dogs are usually gentler... males more spirited. The dog chosen for children should not be of the one-man type or a breed that is nervous or high-strung. Let the Kennel people know what qualities you seek in the dog you buy.

COLLIE. This sturdy breed, one of the finest of all watchdogs, welcomes plenty of exercise. A handsome, courageous animal capable of deep devotion for his master.

WIRE FOX TERRIER. High-spirited and inquisitive by nature, this trim-looking fellow is a menace to prowlers; a gay companion to his friends.

BOSTON TERRIER. An alert and playful pet, he often seems to prefer human companionship to that of other dogs. His smooth coat makes for easy grooming, and his size enables him to fit well in the small home.

COCKER SPANIEL. America's most popular dog. Affectionate, intelligent and quick to learn, he is equally happy with you at home or at work afield. A splendid "all-around" dog.

AND Here's how TO SELECT THE WHISKEY THAT SUITS YOUR TASTE

Apprentice McCreary Rides Three More Hialeah Winners

Youngster Makes Total 11 for Week

Scores With Dorimar In Featured Palm Island Purse; Near Leading Eads

By the Associated Press

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 13.—Racing fans were talking more about Apprentice Conn McCreary than horses here this afternoon.

The midget Missourian completed a triple when he captured the Palm Island, a mile and a sixteenth turf course event fifth on the card, astride Dorimar. The latter is owned by the Woodvale Farm of the Royce G. Martins, who employ McCreary. The victory was the eleventh this week for the smallest booter on the grounds and marked his twenty-fifth success of the meeting, only two less than the total to date of Wendell Eads, leading apprentice of the Florida season. After his score on Dorimar, McCreary had only five more winners to go before acquiring the necessary 40 victories and losing his precious five-pound apprentice allowance.

Dorimar registered by a length over F. P. Jump's Ranger II, while the latter held a like margin over Tallyho Stable's Topee, the favorite. Dorimer paid $7.60 for $2.

Earlier in the day, McCreary won on Weisenheimer and Sir Gibson, the latter starting a double for the Woodvale Farm.

It did not look as if the St. Louis boy had a chance to win with Dorimar until the field reached the stretch. The little guy did not rush his mount although the combination trailed the field to the last turn. Then the hottest rider here, who can ride at 98 pounds or less, went to work on the game daughter of Man o' War, which is a Widener eligible. Dorimar wore down all those in front of her and won going away. Topee and Ranger II were in the thick of battle all the way.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—REMEMBERING, $9.10, $4.10, $3.20; IRISH IVY, $5.30, $4.30; INTRUDING, $15.80.

REMEMBERING, going forwardly from the start, shook off IRISH IVY through the stretch, but had nothing left at the finish. IRISH IVY settled into her stride quickly, took a clear lead in the run out of the chute, but was no match for the winner in the final drive. INTRUDING, well up all the way, responded to pressure gamely to wear down BROWN DANCER. The latter was troubled at the start and moved up strongly at the furlong pole but faltered in the final drive.

SECOND RACE—Seven furlongs (chute). Purse, $1,200. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 2:38. Off 2:39. Winner, Woodvale Farm's b. g. (4), by Kai Feng—Lady Gibson. Trained by S. Judge. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:24⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SIR GIBSON, $7.10, $3.10, $2.70; ROYAL RUBY II, $3.70, $3.00; INGOMAR, $3.40.

SIR GIBSON, under restraint until midway around the turn, moved up steadily while going around the field and, taking command through the stretch, won in hand. ROYAL RUBY II forced a steady pace and raced THE STORK and SCOTCH PLAID into defeat, but faltered in the stretch. INGOMAR broke slowly and closed a big gap to wear THE STORK down in the final drive.

Daily Double, REMEMBERING and SIR GIBSON, Paid $30.50

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs (chute). Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:06. Off 3:07½. Winner, Tower Stable's b. g. (5), by Wise Counsellor—Inscrutable. Trained by M. Jolley. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:24⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WEISENHEIMER, $13.60, $5.00, $3.80; HANDIBOY, $9.40, $6.80; SHORT DISTANCE, $9.10.

WEISENHEIMER weaved his way into contention after going the first 3 furlongs, shook off HANDIBOY in the final furlong and won as his rider pleased. HANDIBOY displayed excellent speed, but bore out badly entering the stretch. SHORT DISTANCE, moving early, swung around the leaders in the last quarter mile and finished strong. DOUBLE B raced evenly while saving ground.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs (chute). Purse, $1,300; allowances. For 3-year-olds. The De Lido. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:36. Off 3:37½. Winner, Woolford Farm's ch. c. (3), by Insco—Green Leaf. Trained by R. O. Higdon. Value to winner, $650; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:24.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SIGNATOR, $2.80, $2.50, $2.20; MAEPEACE, $5.80, $3.60; PONTY, $3.30.

SIGNATOR outclassed his opposition, drew clear at his leisure rounding the lower turn and was only galloping in the last quarter mile. MAEPEACE, under extreme pressure all the way, disposed of PONTY in the stretch run. PONTY saved much ground and was easily best of the others. REACT stopped badly after going about 5 furlongs.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles (turf course). Purse, $1,500; allowances. For 4-year-olds and upward. The Palm Island. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:05. Off 4:06. Winner, Woodvale Farm's ch. f. (4), by Man o' War—Neshaminy. Trained by S. Judge. Value to winner, $1,100; second, $250; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:48⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DORIMAR, $7.60, $4.10, $2.80; RANGER II, $15.00, $5.10; TOPEE, $2.50.

DORIMAR trailed the field under restraint until well straightened into the stretch, closed gamely when placed to pressure and wore the leaders down to win going away. RANGER II displayed excellent speed and saved ground entering the stretch, took command, but could not maintain his position. TOPEE, rushed into contention on the outside going down the backstretch and faltered when the final test came. MYTHICAL KING turned in a good performance.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,400. For 3-year-olds. Grade C. Start good from gate. Won cleverly; place driving. Went to post 4:37. Off 4:37½. Winner, S. Tufano's b. c. (3), by Broker's Tip—On Hand. Trained by G. W. Carroll. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $250; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:50⅘.

SHAUN G	(Meynell)	108	4	5	3½	4½½	6½	7	7	23.70

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARKET WISE, $5.20, $3.70, $2.80; JACOPUS, $5.70, 3.80; CLARKSVILLE, 3.80.

MARKET WISE, steadied off the pace until midway down the backstretch, moved up stoutly on the outside of the leader and drew out into a long lead rounding the lower turn, but then had to be shaken up through the stretch to maintain his lead. JACOPUS, going forwardly the entire trip, saved much ground turning into the stretch and finished stoutly. CLARKSVILLE displayed good speed and held the others safe. CAVALIER could not get up.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 5:08. Off 5:09½. Winner, J. U. Gratton's b. g. (5), by Longridge—Miss Busy Body. Trained by H. Brown. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:51.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUSY MAN, $4.70, $3.20, $2.50; FELSUN, $4.10, $3.10; PAUL PRY, $3.60.

BUSY MAN, held the field safe for speed and cleverly rated in front, had something in reserve when challenged and held FELSUN safe in the final drive. FELSUN gradually improved his position in the last 3 furlongs on the outside, but could not overhaul the winner. PAUL PRY responded determinedly to punishment and held the others safe. PAIR OF DICE, prominent in the early running, faltered in the last quarter mile.

EIGHTH RACE—One and three-sixteenths miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place same. Went to post 5:38. Off 5:38½. Winner, J. H. Miles' ch. g. (4), by Big Brand—Miss Marg. Trained by J. J. Bauer. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:59⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BIG BRAND'S SON, $28.10, $13.40, $8.90; FLAG POST, $5.30, $4.10; ARDOUR, $6.90.

BIG BRAND'S SON was sent into a long lead early, steadied along in front and maintained his advantage to the end, winning with ease. FLAG POST followed in closest pursuit of the winner all the way and had no excuses. ARDOUR was bothered early and moved on the inside, but hung in the final stages. CLARO was unable to threaten at any stage.

Durham Club Gets Dodgers' Backing

Durham, N. C., Feb. 13 (AP).—Professional baseball will remain in Durham with the Brooklyn Dodgers placing their Piedmont League franchise here this year.

This decision was reached today at a meeting of Durham baseball leaders, civic club heads and city officials, with Larry MacPhail, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers. MacPhail asked for support of the club from the fans of the city and ironed out minor details, such as park rental, etc.

Immediately after the meeting the machinery necessary to get the club going was put in motion, with Bascom Baynes, chairman of the Durham Athletic Commission, agreeing to serve as president of the Bulls.

Selections at Hialeah Park

Dear Al:

I don't know where Charles S. Howard gets all his luck, but I would like to borrow about a half pound of it. To begin with, Howard was not a poor man, but the horse business has sent his fortune up in the cloud figures. It just doesn't seem in the books that one man should acquire so many good horses. Take Alfred G. Vanderbilt. He has spent a fortune and he has had only one real, topflight performer. Howard, however, got the amazing Seabiscuit, then Kayak II, and then Mioland. Now he comes through with Porter's Cap and a darned good Kentucky Derby candidate. These horses are not the result of a lot of thinking on the part of Howard. I mean that he did not plan their breeding but picked them up after they were on the hoof and in action. He has a great trainer in Tom Smith, but other men have had great trainers and have not come up with horses of the caliber that seem by some magic to thrive in the Howard barn. Porter's Cap is a lightweight in the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap and I wouldn't be surprised if Smith sent him after the older horses. Of course, Howard has Mioland and could keep Porter's Cap for the Kentucky Derby. However, Smith can't let down much in the training of the colt and I can't see how the $100,000 race, barring accident, could hurt him. I have a note here from Ralph Murdock: The Elks Skeet Club is going to stage another turkey shoot on Sunday at O'Donnell's Farm. The public is invited and everybody has a chance to win a turkey. I took one home myself last December so it can't be so hard. A lot easier than hitting a winner in Florida. See you on the range.

BILL.

First race—Notes is rather short on name but has plenty of speed. Could be the right one in a rather open, juvenile sprint. Cooch's Bridge has worked well and promises to do a lot of running. Pal is a fair sort and belongs in the money.

Second race—Starkee will have Wayne Wright in the saddle, and appears to have a good chance in a field of this sort. I'm going to string along. Little Mom deserves some respect on her front-running ability. Okabbit has a good race as a recommendation.

Third race—Socratic failed us last out, but I'm going to give this one another chance. McCreary is slated to do the booting and I expect a winning effort. Hasty Man breaks off the rail and is dangerous at the light assignment. Dr. South for the show end.

Fourth race—Blue Lily has the speed of this party and Eddie Arcaro is slated to take over the saddle job. Looks like a solid proposition. Proud One has a good figure and may be the runner-up. Silver Tower has a chance due to light weight.

Fifth race—I'm going to try to dig up a longshot in this field. Bright Trace gets in with 101 pounds and may be the right one. Armor Bearer and Rehearsal have speed and will battle it out if I have overestimated the ability of the top one.

Sixth race—Mar Le will have McCreary in the saddle and has worked good enough to turn back a field of this sort. The Wheatley Stable pair of Snow Ridge and Thellusson is a threat. Wise Bee for the show end.

Seventh race—Sickiebill gets 119 pounds for this, but may overcome the heavy impost to collect a set of brackets. The distance suits. Cave Hill will have Eads to do the riding and may be a keen factor. Cuckoo to take care of the others.

Eighth race—Stairs has been racing kindly and deserves the call in the day's finale. Moonfolly and Stable may fill out the money bracket.

Best bet—Blue Lily.

Turf Club to Honor Memory of Jockey Earl Dew

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Feb. 13.—The memory of little Earl Dew, American jockey champion of 1940, who was killed in a fall from a horse several weeks ago, will be honored at Santa Anita Park March 3. The Los Angeles Turf Club will send a check for $5,000 to the boy's parents at Sac City, Iowa.

A committee of jockeys now racing at Santa Anita, where Dew rode many winners, requested that the feature race on March 3 be named after the jockey, whose death occurred at Agua Caliente, Mexico.

Chrysler Nets $37,802,279, 4-Year Peak

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 13.—Chrysler Corporation and its wholly owned United States subsidiaries, today reported for the year 1940 net profit of $37,802,279 after taxes and charges, equal to $8.89 a common share.

Despite sharply higher taxes and the exclusion of earnings of foreign companies, these profits were the largest by the corporation since 1937.

In 1939 net profit totaled $36,879,829, or $8.42 a common share.

Indicated net profit for the final 1940 quarter was $7,098,185, or $1.63 a share, compared with $5,476,711, or $1.26 a share, in the like 1939 period.

$1.50 Dividend Voted

Directors voted a dividend of $1.50 a share on common stock, payable March 14 to holders of record February 24, which compared with a year-end disbursement of $1.75 a share last December and a $1.25 payment in March, 1940.

K. T. Keller, president, pointed out that all taxes in the United States for 1940, including provision for income and excess profits taxes, amounted to $53,177,345, an increase of $25,400,783 over similar taxes in 1939.

Provision for Federal and State income taxes and excess profits levies in 1940 was $23,500,000, compared with $7,750,000 in 1939.

Sales of the corporation and its United States subsidiaries for the year aggregated $744,561,239, representing 1,044,290 vehicles. Sales, including those of both domestic and foreign companies, in 1939 totaled $549,806,327 for 778,781 vehicles. The 1940 dollar value of sales and the number of cars and trucks sold both were the largest since 1937.

Foreign Units Excluded

Commenting on the elimination of foreign units from the profits account in 1940, Keller said:

"Owing to the increasing exchange restrictions and to other possible influences of the war in Europe, foreign subsidiaries have been excluded from the consolidated statements this year and investments in these subsidiaries are carried in the statement at cost to the corporation. This change resulted in excluding from the consolidated earned surplus the undistributed earnings of these subsidiaries in the amount of $6,162,608. Full reserve has been provided against the investment in Belgium."

In regard to the current pace of sales of the company's cars, he added:

"Both retail sales to the consuming public and factory shipments to dealers are at high levels for this time of the year. Stocks of unsold new cars in dealers' inventories are high, but relative to the current rate of retail sales, they are seasonally a little lower than normal. The used car market is in a strong position."

Defense Work Cited

The Chrysler president outlined the corporation's defense goods operations to date, with the words:

"In the line of defense activities, we have received orders from the United States Government for 58,000 vehicles of various descriptions, some of them highly specialized for defense purposes, a substantial part of which has been shipped.

"Work on the tank arsenal for which a contract was awarded to us last August is proceeding on schedule, and 700,000 square feet of new building are now under roof. . . .

"We also have taken an order to convert the design of a foreign machine gun to American standards and to produce two sample guns. . . .

"The Air Corps is showing some interest in a new in-line liquid-cooled airplane motor designed by our engineers."

Big Board Rejects Change in Hours

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 13.—The board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange today rejected proposals for a change in the present periods of trading, retaining the Monday-to-Friday hours of 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. and Saturday session of 10 a. m. to noon.

Four proposals had been submitted to the governors. They were:

To extend the Monday-to-Friday sessions from 10 a. m. to 3:30 p. m.;

To extend the Monday-to-Friday sessions from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.;

To close Saturdays during the summer;

To close every Saturday through the year.

The governors gave three reasons for refusing the request, made by some members, for lengthened hours. They were:

"The committee is convinced . . . that the possibility of wider use by the public of the exchange's facilities is too remote to warrant the requested change . . .

"We are convinced that the interests of the public would seriously suffer if, as the result of later closing, newspapers curtailed the publication of essential information as to prices and volume of trading in listed securities . . . held by millions of persons . . .

"A majority of . . . member firms and individual members was opposed to the specific proposal to extend the trading session . . . and a majority . . . was opposed to closing the exchange on Saturday."

State Prohibits Stock Selling By D. C. Group

Richmond, Va., Feb. 13 (AP).—An injunction to prohibit Fuse Indicator Corporation, a Delaware chartered concern, and six individuals from offering, promoting or selling securities of the corporation in Virginia without authorization "according to law" was made permanent today by the State corporation commission.

The commission's action followed charges that the defendants sold a Richmond stenographer stock in the corporation at a price of $3,600 in violation of section 6 of the Virginia securities law requiring authorization for the sale of securities in the State; section 3 (C) dealing with securities of a corporation whose assets include a material portion in the nature of patents or trademarks.

The injunction extended to William C. Linton, named as president of the corporation; Grover C. Long, J. J. Ford, Alice M. Yarbrough, Edward C. Wootton and R. M. Cannon. All are or have been residents of Washington or vicinity, commission officials said.

Bank Excess Reserves Rise $20,000,000

By the Associated Press

Lendable excess reserves of banks increased $20,000,000 to a total of $6,330,000,000 in the week ended February 12.

The Federal Reserve said the gain was due primarily to Treasury spending, reversing recent decreases in lendale funds caused by Treasury borrowing.

The board's statement said:

"During the week ended February 12 member bank reserve balances increased $29,000,000. Additions to member bank reserves arose from a reduction of $70,000,000 in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks, and increases of $43,000,000 in reserve bank credit and $8,000,000 in gold stock, offset in part by increases of $38,000,000 in money in circulation and $53,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts. Excess reserves of member banks on February 12 were estimated to be approximately $6,330,000,000, an increase of $20,0000,000 for the week."

Changes in member bank reserve balances and related items during the week and the year ended February 12, 1941, were reported as follows, in millions of dollars:

Holiday Reduces Bank Clearings

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—Bank clearings in the short week ended Wednesday fell sharply below the preceding full week, due to the Lincoln holiday observance but showed a continued rise above the same 1940 week.

Total transactions for 23 cities amounted to $4,378,475,000, Dun & Bradstreet reported. This was a gain of 3.1 per cent over $4,246,329,000 for the like short week of last year.

New York exchanges for the past week were $2,340,846,000, against $2,371,848,000 a year ago, or a decrease of 1.3 per cent. The aggregate for outside cities, at $2,037,629,000, was a gain of 8.7 per cent over the $1,874,681,000 for the like 1940 week.

Week's Loadings Decline Slightly

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday 710,196 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended last Saturday.

This was a decrease of 4,127 cars, or 0.6 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 82,767, or 13.2 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 133,844, or 23.2 per cent, compared with 1939.

The drop in total loadings was contrary to the usual trend at this time of year.

London Stocks

London, Feb. 13 (AP).—Developments in the Balkans cast a shadow across the stock market today. Selling was of minor proportions, but potential buyers held aloof pending further insight into what was going on to the south. The general trend of the market at the close was lower.

High-priced stocks, Indian bonds and an assortment of recently active issues were affected by the cautious attitude of investors and traders alike, although some individual recoveries were to be seen here and there when trading stopped. Japanese bonds lost an outside 1½ points.

Your Federal Income Tax

(Prepared by Bureau of Internal Revenue, Treasury Department.)

Casualties, Theft and Wagers

To be deductible, a loss arising from "fires, storms, shipwrecks, or other casualty" need not be connected with the taxpayer's trade or business. If his home or his automobile is destroyed by fire, or his summer bungalow damaged by flood or storm, he may claim a deduction for the loss sustained.

Loss of property by theft or burglary is an allowable deduction, and need not be incurred in trade or business. Hence, the loss occasioned by the theft of jewelry or an automobile used for pleasure and convenience is deductible. It must be established, however, that the property actually was stolen. Should circumstances attending the loss leave the owner in doubt as to whether it was stolen or lost, the claim would not be allowed.

Losses from wagering transactions are allowable only to the extent of the gains from such transactions.

A loss is deductible only in the year in which it is sustained, even though, as in the case of a theft or casualty, it may not be discovered until a later year. Losses compensated for by insurance or otherwise, of course, are not deductible. However, in the event the amount of insurance is not sufficient to recompense for the loss sustained, the excess of the loss over the amount of the insurance is deductible.

In general, losses for which an amount may be deducted for income tax purposes must be evidenced by closed and completed transactions, fixed by identifiable events, bona fide and actually sustained during the taxable period for which claimed. For instance, a person possessing stock of a corporation cannot deduct as a loss merely an account of shrinkage in value of such stock through fluctuation of the market or otherwise. In the case of an individual the loss allowable in such cases is that actually suffered when the stock is disposed of.

If any securities (that is, shares of stock in a corporation and rights to subscribe for or to such shares) become worthless during the taxable year and are capital assets, the loss resulting therefrom shall, for income tax purposes, be considered as a loss from the sale or exchange, on the last day of such taxable year of capital assets.

American Can Net Drops to $17,440,906

By the Associated Press

American Can Co. reported yesterday consolidated net income for 1940 of $17,440,906, or $5.88 a common share, compared with $18,284,964, or $6.22 a share, in 1939.

M. J. Sullivan, president, said 1940 was "the largest year in dollar volume of sales" in the company's history. They totaled $197,915,224, an increase of 4.3 per cent over the previous year. "The somewhat reduced earnings in 1940, as compared with 1939," he said, "are accounted for by increased taxes and labor costs."

Union Bag & Paper Corp.

Union Bag & Paper Corporation reported net profit for 1940 of $2,129,946, or $1.67 a capital share, compared with $965,532, or 76 cents a share, in 1939.

George A. Fuller Co.

George A. Fuller Co., construction engineers, reported net profit of $416,729 for year ended December 31, 1940, equal to $10.73 a share on common stock. This compares with net of $161,561, or 50 cents a share in 1939.

Unfinished business at end of year amounted to $16,160,898. Since the close of the year, Fuller Co. has obtained a contract to build the new home office of Prudential Insurance Co. in Newark, N. J., at a cost of about $6,500,000.

American General Corp.

American General Corporation, an investing concern, reported assets as of December 31 were equal to $5.59 a common share, compared with $4.57 last June 30 and $7.78 a share at the end of 1939.

Equity Corp.

The Equity Corporation reported assets at the end of 1940 equaled $50.30 per share of $3 convertible preferred stock, compared with $39.09 last June 30 and $59.55 at the end of 1939.

M. A. Hanna Co.

The M. A. Hanna Co. announced 1940 net profit of $3,022,132, equal after all charges and preferred dividend requirements to $2.33 a share on the common, against $1,904,316, or $1.23 a share the preceding year.

Pennroad Investment Corp.

The Pennroad Investment Corporation reported its income from investments in 1940 was $2,083,068.65 after deduction of expenses and taxes. The corporation's statement showed that the 1939 net income was $1,329,261.23.

Payment of 20 cents per share in dividends was announced for 1940, as against dividend of 10 cents per share the preceding year.

American Seating Co.

American Seating Co. and subsidiaries, makers of furniture at Grand Rapids and elsewhere, reported net profit for 1940 of $456,679, or $2.07 a share, compared with $403,312, or $1.82 a share, in 1939.

Chain Belt Co.

Chain Belt Co. and subsidiaries reported net profit for 1940 of $1,039,076, or $2.13 a share, compared with $936,651, or $1.92 a share, in 1939. The company said its production of 105-millimeter howitzers, for which it has a $2,250,000 order, will begin this summer and extend well into 1942 on the present basis.

Northern Pipe Line Co.

Northern Pipe Line Co., operating a pipe line system across Pennsylvania, reported net income for 1940 of $84,511, or 70 cents a share, compared with $36,829, or 30 cents a share, in 1939.

New York Dry Goods

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—Woman's wear woolen piece goods were fairly active today and at full asking prices. Blanket mills reported heavy initial orders on new lines with variations from the price levels prevailing at the close of 1940.

A considerable volume of rayon goods changed hands with acetate crepes and novelties prices tending higher. Traders generally concentrated on staple pigment taffetas and spun yarn novelties. Silk continued neglected.

Specialty numbers in cotton goods attracted most attention at firm and unchanged quotations. Coarse yarn goods also met good demand.

Sales were reported on the basis of the following quotations for immediate delivery: Print cloths, 38½, 64x60s, 5.35, 5¼. Broadcloths, 37, 100x60, 4.10, 7¼, 7¾. Sheetings, 37, 48x48, 4.00, 6¾-6¾. Combed lawns, 40, 76x72, 9.00, 7¼.

Sugar Futures

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—Domestic sugar futures today moved up 1 to 2 points on sales of 12,200 tons. Cuban and trade accounts absorbed most of the offerings.

After world futures reached new seasonal lows coincident with fresh tension over the foreign situation, they rallied to close ½ points lower to 2½ higher. Turnover was 11,850 tons.

All offerings of raws were held at 3 cents or higher. Refined was unchanged locally at 4.45 cents.

Building construction in the 37 States east of the Rockies last month was 55 per cent higher than in January, 1940, the F. W. Dodge Corporation reported yesterday.

The statistical service listed last month's total of building contracts awarded as $305,205,000, with commercial building running 80 per cent ahead of the like 1940 month, manufacturing building 330 per cent ahead, and small dwellings 76 per cent ahead.

Banquet Treasurer Named

Neal Wells, National Savings & Trust Co., chief consul of Washington Chapter of American Institute of Banking, has been appointed treasurer of the committee which is making plans for the thirty-sixth annual banquet to be held on February 22 at the Willard Hotel.

Mr. Wells stated that early reservations indicate an attendance of well over 1,000. Reservations will close as of February 15, he said.

D. C. Debaters Win

Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Banking emerged as victor in a debate with the Baltimore Chapter team, it was announced yesterday. Subject was, "That all business enterprise engaged in production and distribution of war materials should be under the supervision of the Federal Government." The D. C. team took the affirmative side.

Local debaters were Stephen O. Porter, Riggs National Bank; E. Wallace Schreiner, First National Bank of Alexandria, and Roland Carr, Riggs National Bank.

Personal Loan Volume Soars

Consumers borrowed and paid back more money to industrial banking companies making personal and other consumer loans last year than ever before.

New loans totaled $535,800,000 and repayments $504,700,000. At the end of the year, loans still outstanding totaled $287,700,000, or about $30,000,000 more than at the beginning of the year.

The Commerce Department, after a survey of small loans, noted that the 1940 loan total was about $125,000,000 larger than in 1929 and about $47,000,000 more than in 1939.

U. S. Gold Imports Swelled by Huge African Receipt

Gold imports increased to $234,246,043 in January from a December total of $137,178,365.

The Commerce Department attributed the gain primarily to $149,725,000 from South Africa—most of which was brought here by the U. S. cruiser Louisville.

Other large shipments were $46,880,000 from Canada, $11,136,000 from Australia, $6,085,000 from Japan, $4,501,000 from India and $3,185,000 from the Philippine Islands.

Foreign gold depositetd under earmark in the Federal Reserve Banks increased $52,812,248 to a total of $1,860,485,511.

Silver imports totaling $4,575,517 were about the same as the preceding month and included $2,137,000 from Mexico, $720,000 from Canada, $593,000 from Japan and $470,000 from Peru.

Exports amounted to $4,470 of gold and $319,292 of silver.

Brewers Play Celtics Here Sunday Night

The Washington Brewers, currently tied for the American Basketball League's second-half lead with the Kate Smith Celtics, of Brooklyn, N. Y., with three games won and a single loss, yesterday were pointing for Sunday night's meeting with the Kate Smiths at Riverside Stadium, 8:45 o'clock.

This game, which is to involve the league's lead, looms as the most important yet featured at Riverside this season.

The Brewers, aware that they have a splendid chance to win the second-half league race and also looking to the future, yesterday announced that they not only have lines out for an experienced player, but also will be prepared to put in a bid for several outstanding stars in the new American Basketball League draft which will be introduced for the first time this year.

The American League draft will be similar to that of professional football, in that it will give each club an opportunity to put in a bid for outstanding college stars who are to graduate in February and in June.

As in professional football, the clubs nearest the bottom of the race will be given first call on players.

Coach Mack Posnack, of the Brewers, yesterday announced that he had scouted several college stars for whom he will put in a claim in the draft, and believes this newest move will go far toward adding interest and power to the professional sport.

Regal Early Favorite for A.A.U. Tourney

The Regal Clothiers, crack basketball team, will be pretourney favorites among the many local teams that will compete in the District Amateur Athletic Union's annual basketball tournament to be held February 24 at Heurich Gymnasium.

Teams are to compete in the men's unlimited, women's unlimited and men's 145 pounds and under classes, with trophies and individual prizes to be awarded the winner and representatives of all classes.

Adam Hats, surprise team of the Heurich League, will play the dark-horse role of the fine group of contestants which will also include Delaware & Hudson, the Jewish Community Center, Petworth A. C., with the F. B. I. team a probable entrant.

Rated as one of the finest women's teams in the tournament's history, the Treasury girls, last year's winners and holders of the title two years prior to this, are favored to repeat their feat this year in the women's division.

Entry blanks for the tournament are available at the Boys Club of Washington, 230 C Street Northwest.

Bruins Get Williams for Brewers Game

The signing of Long John Williams, former Harlem Yankee star, and the return to the lineup of Buck Covington gave officials of the colored Washington Bruin professional basketball club much encouragement yesterday as they made ready for their clashes with the Heurich Brewers next Wednesday, and the Harlem Globe Trotters in March.

Williams, 6-foot-4-inch utility, replaces Ezra Murdock, former Morris Brown College center, whose release was announced earlier in the day by the Bruins. The New York sharpshooter came to terms after several days of bickering, began when the deal for Dolly King fell through.

The announcement pertaining to Covington was made by Dr. Pete Johnson, team physician. He stated that the injured knee which has kept the crack colored guard on the sidelines for three weeks is on the mend and that he will probably be back in the lineup when the Bruins play Sunday afternoon.

Wilson Thrs. Drubs Alumni

Wilson Teachers' smooth-clicking basketball team soundly trounced the Alumni five yesterday afternoon to the discordant tune of 67-34.

The winners, paced by high-scoring Center Ernie Cole with 18 points to his credit, established their superiority early in the game by running up a 14-3 lead in the first quarter and then retiring at the half at 25-11.

Guard Charley Clark and Forward Hal Offshin tagged Cole for scoring honors for the victors with ten points, respectively. Leading the Alumni scorers was Guard "Flash" Gordon, who accounted for 15 of the losers' total points.

McTeer Released By Hockey Eagles

in a defenseman from Canada in time for Tuesday night's game with Atlantic City.

The Eagles' boss also has his eyes on a colorful Canadian forward and several other players from the Dominion who would, if brought here, strengthen the club.

The All-American Olympics, loaded down with former college stars and credited with a spectacular 3-to-3 overtime tie with the locals in Boston last week, are expected to provide lively opposition tonight as the locals endeavor to go back into a tie with the Orioles for the Eastern League's lead.

Recreation Collegians Win

The Recreation Collegians turned in a good brand of basketball last night to defeat the Virginia State College, 35-30, in the Bannaeker Junior High gymnasium. Watts, Parker and Henley did the best work for the winners.

Bill Ackerman Outdoors . . .

Bob Thompson, for the last two years, has been the link between the North Carolina Conservation Department and the sportsmen seeking their fun in his neck of the woods. A letter or telegram would bring an immediate return of detailed information for ACKERMAN any part of the State. Many readers of this column know that from personal contact, and will be sorry to hear that he has severed his connection with the State.

He is in the same game of publicizing the outdoors, however, but now, for only a part of the State—the mountain section of the western half. Local anglers and hunters, who have found swell sport in that area during the last two years, will now have a service that will be hard to beat. Contact with Bob at Asheville will insure the success of any fishing or hunting venture regardless of what it may be—from wild Russian boar shooting to fly-fishing.

"Bird Portraits In Color," by Dr. Thomas S. Roberts was first published in September, 1934, by the University of Minnesota Press. Because the original printing is exhausted, and the demand has become great enough, 6,000 more copies have been bound up.

The book is just what the name implies—95 full color plates that are unsurpassed in brilliancy and accuracy, by half a dozen noted artists of wildlife. Maj. Allen Brooks, who painted 38 of the illustrations, is the dean of American bird artists, and George M. Sutton, on the staff of Cornell, while Walter A. Weber is here in Washington with the National Park Service.

Dr. Robert's contribution is a brief description of each of the 561 birds depicted, giving its size, distinguishing marks, its range, its most interesting habits, the type and location of its nest, and the color of the eggs.

A picture book for the youngsters, a guide for teen-agers and embryo ornithologists, and a companion for bird-lovers everywhere. That should be enough for any single book, but "Bird Portraits" will have an interest for sportsmen far beyond that, for the portraits of all our waterfowl as well as those of all our uplands game birds in their natural colors, and with many of the age variations, will give them a better knowledge of their sport.

Most surprising, the fact that this book is selling for but three bucks and a half. Remember though, the printing is limited—if you want it shell out now.

The opening of the trout season in Maryland is but six weeks off, and, because of an open winter, the 30,000 big trout, from 8 to 14 inches, that State distributing trucks will start delivering to Maryland streams next week, are an exceptionally fine lot. It looks like good going for fly-fishermen.

There are 60,000 more fine big trout being held in reserve for stocking through the season. Nearly the total number stocked in 1940.

Blair Quintet Bows, 36-29, To St. John's

Taking command soon after the start, the St. John's High five was never headed thereafter and shot its way to a 36-29 victory over the Montgomery-Blair team in the latter's gymnasium. St. John's led, 18-10, at the half.

Hughes and Hathaway were the big guns in the St. John's attack and accounted for 13 and 8 points, respectively. The passing of the visitors was of high order. Carter, Kelley and Reynolds did the best work for Montgomery-Blair. This was the second victory of St. John's over the suburban quintet.

On the Line . . .

there is no world as good as the sports world, so far as fairness, generosity, honesty, courage and morality is concerned. Shall we unite it, and secede from the rest of this worst of all planets?

'BOUT TIME PEOPLE stopped calling Charley Howard lucky. He has a hold on big-time California racing stakes for a number of sensible reasons. In the first place he has a great trainer in Tom Smith . . . He is matching up great blood lines. His horses are running on their home grounds, when they take on the travel-sore invaders from the East . . . He picks his spots, and doesn't overwork his nags . . . The caliber of racing on the Coast, generally, isn't as high as Eastern or Hialeah racing. Howard is a shrewd, smart, able horseman, and he is making racing pay, which is miraculous.

PREDICTIONS: Greg Rice, world 2-mile champ, will race at a mile before the indoor season is over . . . Some of the former Notre Dame grid stars mentioned as Layden's successor aren't being considered, really, because the Rev. Father Hugh O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame and the man who will pick the coach, was the school's astute prefect of discipline when the stars, now coaches, were raising cain in school . . . Larry MacPhail is even money to pick a fight with Batista.

STILL DAZED AT THE SIGHT OF THE PSEUDO-WATSON, GEORGE BIGS HURRIES TO THE HIDEOUT OF HIS HIRELINGS...
HIYA, BOSS!
YOU, YOU...!
WHY, WHAT'S TH' MATTER, BOSS? YOU LOOK PEEVED!
AND WHY SHOULDN'T I WHEN I'VE GOT TWO DOUBLECROSSING RATS LIKE YOU WORKING FOR ME! WHAT DO YOU MEAN BY LETTING WATSON GO?
YOU AIN'T GONE BALMY, HAVE YOU BOSS?
WATSON IS STILL HERE! HE'S IN THE SAME ROOM WHERE WE LEFT HIM!
PROVE IT!
IN A MINUTE YOU'LL SEE HIM WITH YOUR OWN EYES!
GONE!!

JOE PALOOKA — A Shot at the Garden — BY HAM FISHER

HOW MANY FIGHTS HAS HE HAD KNOBBY? I NEVER HEARD OF HIM.
SEVENTEEN. ALL KAYOS TOO, MIKE. THIS GUY'S ANOTHER JO—I MEAN—HE'S—ALMOST—I MEAN WELL YOU KNOW I KNOW A HEAVY WHEN I SEE ONE.
KNOBBY, ARE YOU SURE YOU WANT TO HANDLE HIM? WHY DON'T YOU GET A WELTER OR LIGHTWEIGHT OR—
I KNOW WHAT YA MEAN MIKE. I FELT THAT WAY TOO AN' I'LL EXPLAIN IT ALL. I GOTTA EAT—I'M BROKE—I WOULDN'T HANDLE ANOTHER GUY—
—BUT JOE INSISTS ON IT! IT'S HIS IDEE—HERE'S A LETTER FROM 'IM—READ IT—AN' LOOK MIKE—IF JOE'LL FIGHT AGAIN WHEN HE GITS OUT—I'LL DROP THIS BOY'S CONTRACK SO FAST—
LET'S SEE.
OKAY. I'LL GIVE YOU A SPOT ON THE GARDEN PROGRAM. I HOPE YOU WON'T BE CRITICIZED.
THANKS MIKE—ANYBUDDY WHICH WANTS T'PAN ME KIN GO JUMP IN TH' LAKE. I KNOW I'M DOIN' RIGHT.

with Glynn

It gets Lucile Cohan—she's WJSV's Nancy Dixon, whom you hear every morning at 9, giving you the latest shopping news—the least bit peeved when well meaning people say to her: "Well, don't you have a nice, easy job! Just think, you only have to spend those 15 minutes on the air and then you have the whole day to yourself."

Because for that 15 minutes a day of broadcasting, our heroine puts in about as strenuous a 10-hour day of work as can be found in these here parts.

In the first place, there's the pretty heroic business of getting up every morning at 6:45 and getting to the studios at 8:30, where there's a frenzied job of getting together last-minute information. There's the broadcast we mentioned.

But, oddly, that's only the beginning of Nancy Dixon's day. Daily she goes through monumental lists of items submitted to her by Washington's stores. She chooses from 14 to 18 that she thinks will be most interesting for her shopper listeners. That's at least an hour's work. Then each item she selects for mention she goes and shops for herself, making certain about its quality and appeal. This simple process takes anywhere from four to five hours. There's then the matter of describing them accurately, checking endless detail. And just getting the material in shape for the broadcast takes another two or three hours.

The Post Radio Time Table

10:45 a. m., WMAL—Eddie Dowling, producer of even more hits than the current Saroyan play, "The Time of Your Life" at the National, gets up early to chat with shopper Natalie Core.

2:30 p. m., WOL—The Philadelphia Orchestra's is the initial salute of the fiftieth anniversary of the American debut of Ignace Jan Paderewski. With Ormandy conducting and Rudolph Serkin at the piano, the orchestra dedicates Brahms' Piano Concerto to the great Polish artist. Also programmed is the First Symphony, in C minor, of Brahms.

3:30, WINX—Susan B. Anthony's birthday is observed by a group of women's clubs.

7:30, WRC—Alec Templeton returns to Chicago to be greeted by Eddie Peabody and the Dinning Sisters.

8, WOL—The Children's Hospital Blood Bank is aided by the Junior Board of Commerce, Tony Wakeman, Art Brown, Walter Compton, Benny Meroff's Orchestra, Frank Blair and many others from the Willard Room of the Willard. Public admission is 50 cents for the benefit of the Blood Bank fund.

8, WJSV—Joe Howard and Beatrice Kaye drop in for a Gay Nineties session with Kate Smith before commencing their new commercial series.

8:30, WRC—President Henry Noble MacCracken, of Vassar, and Deems Taylor join the Information Please regulars.

10, WMAL—Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson discusses "National Defense" at the annual meeting of the Reserve Officers Association.

10:15, WJSV—Estelle M. Sternberger speaks on the Public Affairs program, asking "Can America Turn the Tide?"

11:15, WOL—Final broadcast in the World Title Billiards Meet.

Contract Bridge

One of Walter Malowan's most successful and least subtle psychic bids is presented in today's box. The hand was dealt in a rubber-bridge game and Malowan wisely "played his opponents."

Today's Hand

East-West Vulnerable
NORTH DEALER

	♠ 5 4 ♡ K 9 3 2 ◇ Q J 10 4 3 ♣ 5 4
♠ A Q 10 8 7 6 ♡ A ◇ A 6 5 ♣ K 9 8	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ K J 9 ♡ 4 ◇ 9 8 7 ♣ A Q J 10 7 6
	Malowan ♠ 3 2 ♡ Q J 10 8 7 6 5 ◇ K 2 ♣ 3 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♡	1 ♠
2 ♡	3 ♣	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Q ◇.

As champion players have a knack of doing, he sensed heavy high cards against him when his partner and second hand passed. His opening bid of a heart, based on a seven-card suit and a king, had the inhibiting effect of keeping the adversaries out of a "cold" grand slam at spades, clubs or even no trump.

His opponents should not have been misled by his bid, but the result showed that they were, and the saving of 1,500 points by any fair means is worth applause.

Malowan himself summed up the hand in these words, "It was a silly psychic but it worked."

We take issue, however; no bid or play, psychic or otherwise, is silly if it is successful.

Film Traces Road Development In America

America's progress in highway development from dirt roads to superhighways was traced at the first showing of the Fox Movietone News short, "The Modern Highway," viewed by more than 100 Government road officials and road builders at the Willard Hotel.

Sponsored by the American Road Builders' Association, the film reviewed the Dupont Highway, called the "grandfather of all superhighways," showed scenes from the most extensive of modern superhighways, the Pennsylvania Turnpike, and was climaxed with a view of the highway of the future—the Futurama at the World's Fair.

Overton Heads Senate Group's D. C. Tax Unit

Impetus was given the Overton fiscal formula in the Senate yesterday with the appointment of a subcommittee on taxation of the Senate District Committee.

Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, was named chairman by Senator Reynolds, chairman of the full committee. Other members are Senators Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland; McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada; Clark (Democrat), of Idaho; Austin (Republican), of Vermont, and Holman (Republican), of Oregon.

Reynolds set up the subcommittee promptly after reading published reports that Representative Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, who is slated for appointment to the House subcommittee on District taxation, is favorably inclined toward the Overton formula.

Tax Assessor Edward A. Dent is preparing new data on the amount of land held by the Federal Government within the District so that an estimate can be made of what the formula would return when applied to the 1942 budget.

Two years ago it would have raised the Federal payment from $6,000,000 to slightly more than $8,000,000. This year it is expected the payment would be higher.

The Overton formula will run into opposition on the House subcommittee, however, as Representative Bates (Republican), of Massachusetts, said yesterday he was opposed to increasing the Federal payment at this time.

29th Division ToBeMobilized By Feb. 20

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Fort George G. Meade, Md., Feb. 13.—All elements of the Twenty-ninth Division, 10,000 strong will be concentrated here by the night of February 20, under orders issued today by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding.

Except for a few isolated companies, from the Eastern Shore and western Maryland, the division's two infantry and one artillery brigade will have rolled into Meade by truck or train a week from today. Those few companies will arrive February 21.

Late this afternoon, after a conference with nine contractors and representatives of the constructing quartermaster's office, Gen. Reckord telephoned mobilization orders to commanders of the 115th Infantry and 110th Field Artillery (Maryland), the 111th Field Artillery (Virginia) and the 176th Field Artillery (Pennsylvania) to be here next Thursday night. Written orders will follow immediately.

Earlier in the day, instructions were issued the 176th and the 116th Infantry, of Virginia, and the 175th, of Maryland to move in the first four days of next week. Headquarters and service companies of the 116th (Roanoke), and the 176th (Richmond), and an advance detachment of the 175th (Baltimore), are to arrive Monday.

The entire 175th Regiment will come in Tuesday from Baltimore. Wednesday, the 176th and four companies of the 116th will reach camp, followed Thursday by the remainder of the 116th.

First of the elements to arrive under the speeded schedule will be the District's 121st Engineers, and 104th Ordnance Company, which will come into camp by truck tomorrow. Advance elements of the 121st consisting of an officer, three noncommissioned officers and eight men from each company, moved into their quarters this afternoon.

They will set up company kitchens, draw all necessary supplies of food and equipment and prepare tomorrow night's supper for their units. Other members of the detachments will start the heating plants in barracks and messhalls.

On arrival, the engineers will find waiting for them a large amount of special equipment which they did not have for training before induction into Federal service. This included 28 aluminum assault boats, a footbarge, 288 feet long, three water purification units, seven bulldozers, seven portable air compressors with air-driven chain and circular saws, and a 10-ton portable steel truss bridge 108 feet long.

The engineers and ordnance troops will be followed Monday by the Twenty-ninth Signal Company, of Norfolk.

The single unit of the National Guards of the District, Virginia and Maryland unaccounted for today was the former Twenty-ninth Tank Company, of Danville, commanded by Capt. Bill Bailey. Recently assigned to the new 191st Tank Battalion, as Company D, it will join New York, Boston and Hartford companies here in tents by February 24.

The New York company is here already and the Boston and Hartford companies are expected within the next two days. Tank officers here said they had not been notified when the Danville company would arrive.

The Infantry and Artillery regiments will add 666 officers and 6,927 men to the troops now here and expected tomorrow bringing the division to its full complement of 980 officers and 9,775 men.

Gen. Record said all troops would be restricted to their regimental areas for two weeks after arrival. This measure, he said, was adopted to minimize the danger of any contagious disease, should it develop, spreading beyond a single company or regiment.

He said he had been assured facilities for 200 beds would be provided at the camp hospital by Monday night. Although barracks for all troops have not been completed in their regimental area, regimental headquarters barracks and company mess halls have been given construction priority, and overflow from incomplete camps can be taken care of in those which have been finished.

Battery A, of the 110th Field Artillery, Pikesville, Md., under Capt. Norman Bottom, has been ordered to report tomorrow at 10 a. m. to serve as demonstration battery for a junior battery officers' school opening Monday. The school for 45 young officers of the three artillery regiments, will continue 30 days.
